Foes Have Day of Speech Making

BY WILLIAM MOORE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—Foes of ratification of the allied nations charter paraded before the senate foreign relations committee today and in 15 minute relays blasted the proposed new league of nations from every angle.

Ladies who got their tongues twisted and exclaimed "O, darn it!" ladies who knew the drawing room lingo of international affairs, and gentlemen who just dropped in to enjoy the air conditioning were free to say whatever they pleased.

Witnesses ranged from the president of the National League of Women Voters to the only member of the United Nations of Earth association. It was the first time since the international organization opened its San Francisco conference on April 25 that everybody was sure what every one else meant.

Chicago Well Represented

Chicago was represented by Mrs. Florence Hoban Griesel of 3454 N. Lincoln av., who ran for congress in the last election; Mrs. Grace Keefe of 6209 S. Laflin; Mrs. Ruth Ann Bassler of 1200 Judson av., Evanston, and Mrs. Helene Johnson of 23½ W. 111th st.

Mrs. Griesel of Chicago's Women for Political Education, talked about the new international charter in language everybody could understand. She told Chairman Connally [D., Tex.] of the senate foreign relations committee, "I can't talk over you, Senator!" when he chatted instead of listening, and then she told off all the senators within hearing distance about everything from getting this country into war to neglecting to keep butter on the American dining table.

"In the charter, the united nations call themselves the peace loving states," Mrs. Griesel said. "That's a laugh. Every one had to be in war to get into the conference and all neutral countries were kept out.

How Come the Change?

"Nearly all these men who were supposed to be representing the United States [Connally and Sen. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), who were also present, were in the American delegation at San Francisco] were the 'peace loving war makers just a few years ago. How come the sudden change?

"I can remember most of you [looking at the committee] screeching for war a few years ago, and suddenly you are peace loving. Sen. Pepper [D., Fla.], who said we could beat Japan in three weeks, is now one of the peace loving people.

"Before any charter can be accepted, we must have the trial of Kimmel and Short . . . We must also have the trial of Tyler Kent [a state department employe in jail in England] and see what can be done to punish those who were wrong in submitting him, an American citizen, to be tried in a British court.

Denies All Want Charter

"Acceptance of this charter, as it is, means war. You haven't begun to find the causes of war.

"The story is that every one wants this charter. Well, they don't. President Truman said every one

Bigger Output of Passenger Cars Forecast

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—The likelihood of increased passenger car production quotas this year and an end to automobile rationing by January was held out by the war production board today.

Industry executives at a closed "working meeting" with governmental officials were told also that the WPB would decide "within a few weeks" whether to give automobile manufacturers permission to start a multi-million dollar factory expansion program.

The automobile industry advisory committee, made up of presidents and executives of the 10 companies reëntering production, asked that it be authorized immediately to expand and build new plants for full post-war output of 4 million cars or more a year.

Admits Action Needed

Henry P. Nelson, WPB coördinator of automotive reconversion, acknowledged that action must be taken "some time this summer" to insure full post-war employment.

He asked the industry to submit estimated costs and locations of the proposed new plants and branch factories, but said no priority aid would be granted if approval is given. The industry now has priority help for "bottleneck" construction required to produce only 2 million cars a year, half the pre-war rate of output.

By the first of next year, production should reach a level at which rationing to essential drivers can be eliminated, Nelson told a news conference, after the session with the industry committee.

No "Bright Work"

He discounted recent fears that textile shortages would hinder automobile construction by restricting upholstery materials. He said that chromium "bright work" on bumpers, radio grills, and handles would be impossible for some time.

Tires are not expected to be a particularly difficult reconversion problem, Nelson added, altho only four will be sold on each new car. The spare tire will be lacking.

The industry's concern lest cars begin to reach showrooms without the necessary price tags affixed by the OPA was eased by OPA officials attending the conference. They promised to be ready "with the answers very quickly" on price questions.

WPB to Ease Controls

Nelson reported these developments of interest to automotive centers.

1. WPB will relax its controls over all materials used in making passenger cars, except these five particularly critical items—tin, cadmium, antimony, burlap, and chromic acid.

2. The ceilings on passenger car output—about 245,000 in the next six months and about 450,000 in the first quarter of 1946—will be increased as soon as materials loosen up. "We expect the next 60 days to make a great change," he said.

3. Some companies complained of inability to get bottleneck machine tools and plant equipment for resumed production with their AA-3 priority rating. Nelson said WPB would not raise the priority, but would give individual help to any company having a genuine equipment problem.

Believe India Talks Have Broken Down

[By Wireless to the New York Times and The Chicago Tribune]

SIMLA, India, July 11—The Simla conference of political leaders reached a virtual breakdown today when Mohammed Ali Jinnah, president of the Moslem league, and Viceroy Wavell failed to reach an agreement after a 10 minute discussion on the question of Moslem seats in the proposed new central government.

It was understood the viceroy advised Jinnah that he could not accept the latter's position that the league alone represented all the Moslems of India nor could he yield the viceroy's constitutional prerogative of selecting the members of his government by commiting himself to name only nominees designated by Jinnah. Jinnah reiterated the league's stand and the two parted.

Talks with Gandhi

Soon afterward, Wavell saw Mohandas K. Gandhi, Nationalist leader, and in a talk lasting nearly an hour was understood to have explained his position and presented Gandhi with a list of the government members selected by the viceroy. The list was said to have contained the names of four Moslem league members and one nonleague Moslem, who was not, however, a member of the All-India Congress party.

In view of the fact that the viceroy's list does not contain Moslem members of the Congress party, it was said in Congress circles tonight that it would be unacceptable to that party.

Doubts Party Can Be Saved

In his original proposals, Wavell said that the conference would be considered a failure if the parties could not agree on the composition of the new central government. Such an agreement now is lacking and it appears that all that remains to be done now is to declare a conference breakdown at a scheduled meeting Saturday.

POWER-DIVING BIRD CARRIES ON FEUD WITH DOG, OWNER

Robert Wiersig, 2344 N. California av., learned last night that he has a canny adversary in the large night bird that has been feuding with him and his cocker spaniel, Sandy, for several weeks.

The bird, long and slender with a two foot wing spread, first directed its attacks against Wiersig when he was washing the windows of his home. He almost toppled off the ladder when the bird dived on him. At dusk Tuesday evening, Wiersig was in his yard when the bird screeched above him and dived again. He swung with a stick but succeeded only in breaking a window in his garage.

When the bird struck again after sunset last evening, Wiersig summoned Policemen George Smith and Glenn Kohl from the Shakespeare av. station. While they stood by for an hour, the bird wheeled and screeched high in the air. As soon as they drove away, the bird went into a power dive—straight for Wiersig and his dog.

Last night, Wiersig was devising a trap. He said he will bait it with meat, since it was believed the bird, brown with white stripes on the wings, is a hawk.

BRITONS CROSS SWITZERLAND; MUST QUIT WAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, July 11—Switzerland, in giving permission for British units stationed in Italy to cross Swiss territory en route to Britain, required and obtained assurance that such troops will not be used against Japan in the war still raging in the far east.

This relaxation of Swiss neutrality was decided on only after long hesitation. The matter is being discussed in the Swiss press, and the government's decision is generally criticized. It is stressed that the "principle of absolute neutrality has now been abandoned."

The Feuille d'Avis of Neuchatel, a newspaper reputed to be close to the foreign minister, Dr. Max Petitpierre, says "The time has come to relax the conception of Swiss neutrality, since it is interpreted by the necessity of practical politics."

Bad Liquor Kills Three U. S. Soldiers in Berlin

BERLIN, July 11 (AP) — Three American soldiers have died and two others suffered permanent impairment of vision after drinking alcohol obtained from unauthorized channels in Berlin, officials disclosed today.

GIs Smuggle Refugee, 9, to Land of Free

Boston, Mass., July 11 (AP)—While nearly 4,000 soldiers roared with glee today because they were back in their native land, a drooping figure in khaki walked from the dock in tears.

An immigration inspector beside him said he was an Italian boy who had been smuggled aboard the transport.

Nine years old, blue eyed, and blond, Natale [Kisic] Piavallo, an orphan, wore the trim little uniform with its 8th division insignia that his comrades of company L, 121st infantry, had provided after they released him from a prison camp at Schwerin, Germany.

Smuggled in Bag

They said he had been imprisoned after killing a nazi officer who had abused him. Because of his small size, they added, it had been easy to bring him aboard the navy transport, General Bliss, in a barracks bag.

Separated from his shipboard companions, who were starting for redeployment furloughs, Natale sat thru the long hours in immigration offices while officials pondered what to do with him.

In his ears were the farewell words of his friends who said there ought not to be a problem—that more than one of their number stood ready to give him legal adoption.

Father Killed in War

Immigration officials quoted the boy as saying that he went from Italy to Yugoslavia with Italian soldiers, then to Czechslovakia. From there the Germans sent him to a prison camp.

He doesn't remember his mother at all, and his father left the Italian army to join Russian forces and was killed fighting the Germans, the federal men added.

Officials said the boy would be taken care of in a private home, pending a decision on the case by the Washington board of immigration appeals.

Russia Will Build Lake Twice as Big as Boulder's

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—The Moscow radio said tonight Russia will build the world's largest artificial lake on the Kura river in the soviet republic of Azerbaijan. The dam will be 248 feet high and nearly a mile long. The broadcast said the lake would be twice as large as the water impounded behind Boulder dam, which contains 32,359,000 acre feet.

TELL SPLITTING OF FEES WITH SONS OF JUDGE

Witnesses Say They Divided Thousands

Washington, D. C., July 11 [Special]—A procession of witnesses before a house judiciary subcommittee today painted a picture of gaudy corruption in the Federal court for the middle district of Pennsylvania under the 20 year regime of Judge Albert W. Johnson, who retired last week on a $10,000 a year life pension.

Testimony included charges that:

1. One man, accustomed to a $3,000 a year income, was appointed by Judge Johnson to a $12,000 a year receivership but was asked to split this fee 50-50 with one of the judge's sons and gave this son $17,000 in cash over a three year period.

2. A beer salesman acted as a broker in collecting fee splits from Johnson appointed receivers, turning over $20,000 to another son of the judge and collecting a 10 per cent commission from the son.

3. A deputy clerk, now an army captain, performed such multifarious duties as writing opinions for the judge, acting as his chauffeur, and running errands for him, while other court appointees were messenger boys and personal servants for the judge.

4. The judge organized a hunting and fishing lodge to which persons aspiring to receivership appointments were sold memberships at $500 each with dues of $40 a year.

5. The judge ordered employes of his court in Lewisburg to move into apartments in a building owned by him, and paid for the painting of his residence by giving the painter an appointment as a court appraiser.

Judge May Attend

Chairman Kefauver [D., Tenn.] of the subcommittee announced after today's hearing that Judge Johnson, a Republican, may attend tomorow's session.

"He has been invited," Kefauver said. The 72 year old ex-jurist has not been present or represented at the two days of open session which began yesterday. The hearing is a climax to an investigation of Judge Johnson's regime which the subcommittee has conducted for the last year.

Statute of Limitations

M. H. Goldschein, counsel for the committee, answered an inquiry from Rep. Michner [R., Mich.] regarding possible criminal action against Judge Johnson by stating that the statute of limitations allows only three years in such cases and that matters disclosed in the investigation run back to eight years.

Impeachment of the judge by congress is still a possibility despite his retirement, it was said. If successful, this would cut off his pension. Impeachment proceedings have never been carried out against a judge who has retired.

Investors Protest

Delmar K. Townsend of Hughsville, Pa., is the man who said he gave $17,000 in cash to a son of the judge in three years. Townsend testified Judge Johnson appointed him in 1935 as a receiver at $12,000 a year for the Williamsport [Pa.] Wire Rope company.

This company was in receivership from 1932 to 1938 and was sold on foreclosure in that year to the Bethlehem Steel company on orders

Dodge Secret Truman Talk to Churchill

ABOARD CRUISER AUGUSTA WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN, July 11 (AP)—President Truman intends to go into the Big Three meeting in Berlin next week without talking beforehand with Prime Minister Churchill.

The idea apparently is to assure Premier Stalin that the American President has no thought of making any independent agreements, even of a tentative nature.

[This word was in conflict with Spanish radio reports that Truman may arrive "at any moment" at St. Jean de Luz, the little French town near the Spanish border, where Churchill is vacationing.]

It still is not permitted to say where or when Mr. Truman will leave the Augusta, but it was disclosed that British men of war will escort the President's two cruiser force from the British Isles to a northern European port.

Confers With Experts

From this port, it was said, Mr. Truman will be flown to Potsdam for the meeting with Churchill and Stalin.

In preparation for that meeting, the President called in Secretary of State Byrnes, Adm. Leahy, and experts on Europe. They were gathered for hours today in the admiral's cabin on the Augusta.

It was in this setting that President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill met in 1941, when they formulated the Atlantic Charter.

Yesterday Fire Controlman 2/c Lawrence Truman of Owensboro, Ky., introduced himself to the President and established their relationship as third cousins. Lawrence got an invitation to the President's cabin.

Score of Problems

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—More than a score of important issues will be considered by the Big Three, reliable diplomatic quarters report.

Diplomats rated these as chief issues for consideration:

1. Coördination of the occupation policy in Germany, involving fraternization, reëducation of the Germans, and the extent to which political parties and trade unions will be allowed to function.

2. Recognition of Italy as a member of the united nations.

3. The Anglo-American request to Stalin to reopen eastern Europe.

4. Anticipated demand by Stalin for an allied economic "squeeze play" to force the fall of Franco's Spanish government.

5. An attempt to agree on a tentative outline of the future map of Europe—a job involving more than 30 territorial changes affecting nearly every country.

6. Possibility of establishing a unified police force to maintain peace in Europe.

PLEADS FOR SHIP TO BRING DYING SON, 5, TO U. S.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa, July 12 [Thursday]—(AP)—The father of a dying 5 year old boy appealed to the South African minister of transport today for space on a ship to take his son to America for a delicate throat operation.

A shipping jam has delayed the departure of little Weymouth Pedlar, son of a Kingwilliamstown planter, who is slowly wasting away in a hospital here.

The boy's only breath for months has come thru tubes inserted in his windpipe after his larynx closed following operations to remove growth from his vocal chords. Doctors say that Dr. Chevalier Jackson of Philadelphia is the only man in the world who can save him.

U.S. TASK FORCE MOVES UNDER RADIO SILENCE

Land Planes Attack Kyushu Island

Sabang Hit, Japs Say

San Francisco Cal., July 11 (AP)—Tokyo radio tonight broadcast an unconfirmed report that more than 200 planes from two carriers of a British task force attacked Sabang off the northern tip of Sumatra Island Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. Japanese time [8:30 p. m. Tuesday, Chicago time].

GUAM, July 12 [Thursday]—(AP)—While radio silence shrouded the next move of the big United States carrier task force 38, a Japanese military commentator said over Tokyo radio today that "without being able to resist this [air] challenge, we cannot annihilate the enemy on the homeland."

The unidentified commentator said "future attacks from the air undoubtedly will be the prelude to the decisive battle on the homeland."

Tokyo radio said about 1,900 carrier planes participated in Tuesday's assault, that it lasted 12 hours and that, in all, 1,940 American planes of all types were over Honshu Island that day.

Tokyo also speculated that an American invasion might be near.

Hit Honshu at Night

Adm. Nimitz, disclosing night air attacks Tuesday night off Honshu, said no additional word had been received from the task force since yesterday when he reported its planes had destroyed or damaged 154 enemy aircraft, all but two of them on the ground, up to noon Tuesday.

Noting the absence of Yank carrier aircraft over Tokyo yesterday, one Japanese broadcaster concluded it was "apparent that the enemy task force has withdrawn after the raid for fear of our special attacks."

The enemy radio also said that "due to our tactical opposition, practically no Japanese planes or warships were damaged." What was meant by "our tactical opposition" was not clear unless it was hiding planes and refusing to fight in the air.

Tokyo radio's discussion of the 3d fleet attack made another ambiguous reference to a task force operating east of the Kanto plain area and also to the southeast.

The whereabouts of the armada of carriers, battleships, cruisers, and destroyers has been a mystery since it unleashed 1,000 planes at Tokyo's air fields Tuesday.

Huri Rockets at Jap Ships

Adm. Nimitz himself promised the Japanese that navy and marine aircraft would keep raining blows on their homeland in preparation for "further amphibious assaults."

The Tokyo radio reminded listeners that the last time carrier planes struck the Japanese capital Iwo Island was invaded.

Tuesday night, Nimitz said, "a number" of enemy ships were hit with rockets by marine aircraft south of Honshu.

Nimitz said "strong forces" of Corsair fighters and Avenger torpedo bombers followed up the Tuesday attacks by hitting enemy air fields on Kyushu and in the northern Ryukyus. Wednesday they blasted hangars, shops, and buildings at Miyazaki air field on Kyushu.

Previously it was reported from Okinawa that 200 American airmen hit the Kyushu coast, Korea, and the China coast Tuesday.

Nimitz said yesterday's raiders bombed and rocketed Inujo air field on Tanega Island, south of Kyushu.

Additionally, he announced that search Privateers of fleet air wing 1 set three cargo ships afire off the China coast that day and that enemy air fields in the northern Ryukyus were cratered Monday and Tuesday.

New Raids on Formosa

Gen. MacArthur's war bulletin told of fresh heavy bomber and fighting raids on Formosa, and sweeps along the Asiatic coast as far as Indo-China.

Slackening ground fire on Formosa was reported by MacArthur.

Eire a Republic—de Valera

DUBLIN, Eire, July 11 (AP)—Premier Eamon de Valera today declared that Eire is a republic, but refused to elaborate.

James Dillon, opposition leader and a persistent critic of de Valera's policies, asked the prime minister at a session of the dail [parliament] whether the country was a republic or not, adding, "nobody seems to know."

"It's a republic," de Valera replied.

"That's the greatest news I've heard for a long time," Dillon said. "Now we know where we are and the league of nations at San Francisco knows. Can anybody tell me when did this happen?"

"You'll hear about it later," de Valera answered, closing the argument.

The British government takes the position that Eire is a dominion. Eire itself by an act of the dail has authorized the king of England to act for it in the international field "so long as Eire is associated with Canada, Great Britain, New Zealand, and South Africa and so long as the king is recognized by those nations as a symbol of their cooperation and continues to act on behalf of each of those nations for the purposes of appointment of diplomatic and consular representatives and the conclusion of international agreements."

Eire's constitution of 1937 does not include the term "republic," altho it provides all the machinery for one. Neither does the constitution mention the king in connection with internal affairs of state.

5th air force spilled fragmentation bombs Monday on three west coast air fields, without drawing the heavy ack-ack encountered previously.

On the coast of French Indo-China, where headquarters has reported communication networks virtually paralyzed by sabotage and air attacks, four 7th fleet Liberators damaged two locomotives and a string of box cars and bombed a hangar at Bien Hoa Monday.

Australian manned Liberators and Catalinas worked over enemy air fields in eastern Java and Dutch Celebes. Other bombers and fighters swept the Banda sea and Halmahera, where 30,000 Japanese have been isolated for more than a year.

Far east air force headquarters disclosed that Dutch piloted Kittyhawks, based on Schouten Island, also are hitting Halmahera and the Vogelkop peninsula of Dutch New Guinea.

Three Cities' Areas Razed

Large portions of three Japanese industrial cities were burned out or damaged by the July 7 Super Fortress incendiary raid, the 21st bomber command reported.

Reconnaissance photographs showed 64 per cent of Kobe burned out, 50 per cent of the built-up area in the port and industrial center of Shimizu damaged, and 43 per cent of the railroad terminus at Chiba razed.

In addition, the photos showed heavy damage to three industrial targets of the Chicusa factory in Nagoya arsenal district, the Tachikawa army arsenal, and the Utsure river oil refinery.

The Chigusa factory was already struck by several demolition and incendiary attacks and now has 77 per cent of its roof damaged and 33 of its buildings partially burned out. The Tachikawa arsenal now appears 50 per cent destroyed.

The southern section of Kofu, one of Japan's largest inland cities, is almost completely destroyed and 50 per cent of the buildings in the railroad yard have been wiped out.

The entire urban section of Shimizu, about 85 miles southwest of Tokyo, has been wiped out with the exception of the extreme north and south sections and a small part of the waterside.

Gates Places U. S. Fleet Loss at 2,700 Planes

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—More than 17,000 Japanese planes have been destroyed since Dec. 7, 1941, by United States marine and navy planes, Undersecretary Artemus L. Gates of the navy said today.

Gates said American fleet combat losses during the same period have approximated 2,700, or a combat ratio of better than six to one. He predicted the Japanese air force will be eliminated soon "as an effective weapon."

In his final report as assistant secretary for air, a post he surrendered last week after nearly four years service to become undersecretary, Gates described destruction of Japanese air power as naval aviation's "first job," and expressed confidence it "will be accomplished shortly."

Okinawa Toughest Job

"Preliminary figures for the first quarter of this year indicate that approximately 2,800 Japanese aircraft were destroyed by fleet planes against combat losses of about 300, a combat ratio of over nine to one," he said. "The most recent campaign, that for the possession of Okinawa, has been the most intense of any so far encountered. From the beginning of the campaign in mid-March up to and into June, more than 3,700 enemy planes were destroyed by navy and marine units; 460 by our fleet AA gunners, 457 by marine pilots of the tactical air force, 2,605 by carrier based aircraft, 216 in the course of suicide tactics, and 38 by patrol planes.

"Navy and marine air borne combat losses amounted to more than 650, a combat ratio of approximately six to one.

"Our air-sea team will undoubtedly meet even stiffer tests as it progresses to the home islands of Japan, where we can expect to encounter increased use of the kamikaze corps suicide pilots, as well as increased use of suicide boats and suicide swimmers. So far, however, no fast carrier, battleship, or cruiser has been sunk by Japanese suicide tactics, altho extensive damage has been done."

26,000 Planes Deployed

Gates said more than 26,000 aircraft were deployed to the fleet last year. The navy's carriers, now totaling about 100, Gates said, represent a tonnage of approximately 1,250,000, the largest single portion of total combat tonnage. Personnel now assigned to naval aviation, including marines, totals about 750,000.

"Altho we cannot yet see with clarity the pattern of the world following the war," Gates said, "it is nevertheless clear from our past experience, that the United States will need an effective mobile force with powerful air weapons in order to protect this country and the other Americas."

PADILLA QUITS MEXICO CABINET; PLANS IN DOUBT

MEXICO CITY, July 11 (AP)—Ezequiel Padilla said tonight that he had resigned as foreign secretary of Mexico. He told a press conference that he would remain at home and rest for a period and that his future plans would be decided later.

Padilla indicated that recent criticisms of Mexico's foreign policy under his direction were the chief cause of his resignation and said he wished his supporters to cease conducting a presidential campaign in his favor. He did not elaborate on the attacks against his foreign policy, but it has frequently been criticized as being too friendly to the United States.

The outgoing secretary, who presided over the Chapultepec conference, headed Mexico's delegation to the security conference in San Francisco. Later he visited President Truman in Washington.

TRIO ARRESTED; ADMIT FORCING WINDOW OF BAR

Englewood police yesterday arrested three young men in a tavern at 629 W. 63d st., into which detectives said they had broken by prying rear window bars apart with an automobile jack.

The three are George Jackson, 20, of 715 W. 61st st.; Vernon Parr, 17, of 436 W. 66th st., and Louis Lassin Jr., 16, of 9623 S. Racine av.

Police said they admitted trying to burglarize the tavern and that they had burglarized four other business establishments in the last two months. Their burglaries netted them more than $1,000, which was spent on liquor and girls, police said the trio told them.

RIVAL WHO HIT HUSBAND WITH AX FINED $100

Charles Barthel, 39, of 2549 Montrose av., a landscaper designer, who was surprised July 2 by Jack Tait, 39, of 347 Walnut st., Northfield, in a rendezvous with Tait's wife, Margaret, was fined $100 and $5 costs yesterday by Justice of the Peace Harry Sullivan on a charge of assault and battery. Tait testified that Barthel struck him across the face with an ax, fracturing his jawbone, when he broke up the couple's "date" at Dundee rd. and route 41 after following them from Wilson av. and Broadway. The hearing was held in the Morton Grove county highway police station.

AUSSIES DRIVE 3 MILE WEDGE INTO JAP LINES

MANILA, July 12 [Thursday] (AP)—Australian 7th division troops, aided by searing fire bomb strikes of United States 13th air force lightnings, Monday drove a three mile wedge into Japanese outer defense lines guarding "Smashed Stone" ridge, inland from Balikpapan, on east Borneo.

Headquarters today announced the gain which brought leading elements thru densely forested hinterland north of Australian occupied Balikpapan to within a half mile of enemy held fortifications on a 200 foot rise called Mount Batochampar.

Jellied gasoline bombs were dropped by low flying P-38s, scorching a path for the advancing foot soldiers over a 12 mile radius.

At the same time, 7th fleet warships and other 13th air force planes hammered the enemy line of resistance northwest of Manggar airdrome.

I KNEW WOMAN WHO TOOK BABY, MOTHER SAYS

Mrs. Velma Arnold of 1246 N. Bell av., a "26" girl, who charged that her son, William Lee, 17 months' old, had been kidnaped by a woman stranger, admitted to North av. police last night that the woman was not actually a stranger.

She had identified her as a Mrs. Mary McDonald. Last night she told Acting Capt. Patrick Shea that she and the woman were inmates of the Geneva School for Girls in 1937, that they had met there then and once again six months ago in a Clark st. tavern.

Mrs. Arnold insisted, however, that the rest of her story was true, that the woman took the baby from her home last Friday night, promising to return him Sunday, and has since failed to do so. Both the McDonald woman and the child are being sought.

SAILOR AND $100 SOON PARTED BY MANILA'S PRICES

Two Months' Savings Buy Few Trinkets

BY WALTER SIMMONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

MANILA, P. I., July 11—Seaman Johnny Jones tucked $100, savings of two months, into his billfold and stepped into a small boat bound for Manila's water front. What happened to him and his $100 while ashore is the story of Manila and its inflation.

Johnny knew that a dollar was worth exactly two pesos, but didn't know that Manila, even before the war, was considered one of the most expensive cities to live in. He even had ideas of picking up a few souvenirs at bargain prices.

That was why he was stunned when the salesman in a little store in Rizal st. asked 40 pesos for a pair of carved wooden slippers known as bakias. But Johnny knew his girl back home would be pleased, so he bought them. He was embarrassed when an army officer standing nearby smiled and said: "Those things sold for two pesos before the war, son."

Ice Cream Costs 75 Cents

Outside, Johnny paused and bought a bit of ice cream from a sidewalk peddler. It was good but it costs 1½ pesos. He also had a synthetic orange drink for one peso, and bought a little two ounce bag of sugared peanuts—another peso.

By now he had ceased to be amazed at Manila's high prices. He bought a purse for his girl for 30 pesos, half a dozen snapshots showing the city's ruins for five pesos, and a tablecloth of bridge table size for 50 pesos. Famous in the Philippines, these cloths of pina fabric sell for five pesos on Cebu. Johnny bought four silk handkerchiefs for 16 pesos, then went into a barber shop for a haircut. First he asked the price. He was told 50 centavos [25 cents] the official ceiling.

After the haircut the barber suggested a shampoo. Johnny lolled in the chair as the barber worked. Then it was over. "Five pesos 50 centavos," said the barber.

Shampoo 30 Pesos a Bottle

Johnny demurred. "Shampoo soap costs me 30 pesos a bottle on the black market," explained the barber defensively. Johnny paid. He noted that he had 60 pesos left.

On the street again he brushed past a youth who wanted to sell him a suspiciously new looking Jap flag for 50 pesos. But he did buy for seven pesos a ring made from melted silver coins. He didn't know that the making of rings from coins, tho illegal, is such a growing industry that there is almost no change in Manila. And Johnny stopped at another sidewalk hawker's stand to buy for a peso each 20 pieces of Jap occupation money such as literally paved the city's streets in February and March.

After a shoe shine, which cost one peso, Johnny's feet ached so he strolled into a restaurant where a band was playing. He ordered a drink and studied the menu. Fried chicken sounded good. He ordered another drink while waiting for the food to be prepared and had three others with his meal. They were only 65 proof and didn't even give Johnny a glow.

Dinner and Drinks 25 Pesos

The fried chicken was stringy like rubber bands, and the total bill was 25 pesos, including 10 pesos for the meal. Johnny had seven pesos left.

It was time to get back to his boat. Out of cigarets, he bought a package of a native brand for a peso and a half. Now he felt dreadfully poor as he looked into the well stocked stores where money meant so little. He had another ice cream and spent the rest of his money for four more Jap occupation bills for the boys back aboard ship.

He had learned that Manila, where washer women make up to $150 a week doing laundry for GIs, is a city which gets as much as it can from its soldier and sailor customers for what little it has.

BRITISH ASSERT CARRIERS BALK SUICIDE PLANES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—The British admiralty, drawing on experience obtained in the early days of the war when its aircraft carriers were attacked by axis planes, has worked out defenses that have enabled its carriers to weather attacks by Jap suicide planes, a British naval information spokesman said tonight.

The disclosure at Guam Sunday that three British carriers had been hit by kamikaze [suicide] planes with only minor damage stirred interest here because American ships have been badly damaged in such attacks.

There was no information available as to whether the improvements worked out by the British and first incorporated into one of their carriers in an American shipyard, have been passed on to American ship designers.

Details Restricted

The navy said today that details of carrier construction are restricted. Some observers said that conditions existing when suicide attacks occurred might permit one attack to succeed where a similar one would fail.

The British, while asserting that their protective measures have paid dividends, declined to disclose the details. Such information, they said, would be sought by the Japs.

The British carriers hit by the suicide bombers were the Indefatigable, the Victorious, and an unidentified ship. The attacks occurred during the two months starting March 26 when the British were attacking the Sakishima group between Okinawa and Formosa.

70 Men Killed

The Indefatigable took two hits in one day and the unidentified ship was hit on successive days. The Victorious was hit once. British casualties for the entire operation were 70 killed and 34 wounded seriously. In contrast, the United States carrier Bunker Hill, hit by two suicide planes off Okinawa, suffered casualties of 373 killed and 264 wounded.

The British naval spokesman, who based his information on a statement made in London by Capt. Charles E. Lambe, former commander of the British carrier Illustrious, conceded that in improving the defenses some sacrifice had been made in the number of planes carried.

Capt. Lambe said the problem of giving protection to carriers always has been difficult, but that the British had been able to gain considerable experience in the Atlantic and the Mediterranean.

He said that the Ark Royal, which was sunk in November, 1941, was the key ship from which evolved the improvements later embodied in every British carrier then projected or being built.

BOMBER TO FLY MYSTERY DANE, FAMILY TO U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, July 11—One of the first emigrants to the United States from Denmark since V-E day can be expected shortly in a Flying Fortress. He is a Danish grocer, C. Nielsen, who lives on Dalmose Island off Zeeland, and he will be accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Nielsen was approached by the Danish foreign office in September, 1944, and asked whether he was prepared to proceed to the United States. After Denmark's liberation Nielsen was called to SHAEF where an American major rushed permission for the Nielsen family to depart by bomber for America.

Why the doors of the United States were opened for Nielsen was an unanswerable question in Denmark today. It was reported that the grocer's son was the manager of an American financial institution called the American Trust company, the address of which was not given. From 1910 to 1919 Nielsen, himself, was employed in the Denver, Colo., accounting department of a railway company.

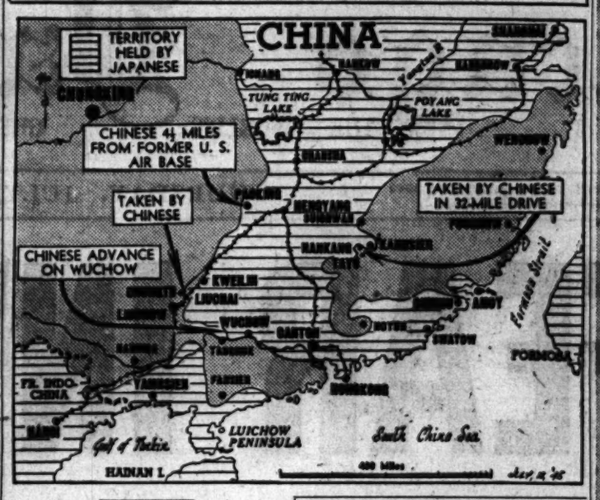
BRITISH ERASE STRONGPOINT OF JAPS IN BURMA

CALCUTTA, India, July 11 (AP)—British troops have wiped out a Japanese strongpoint in the lower Sittang river area of Burma, and have repulsed two enemy attacks near Toungoo, 100 miles to the north, the southeast Asia command announced today.

The Japanese still are moving troops westward toward the lower Sittang bend in apparent efforts to ease the plight of trapped enemy forces attempting to cross the river farther upstream and escape eastward toward Thailand, headquarters said.

The destroyed enemy stronghold was on the railway between Abya and Nyaungkashe, 25 miles northeast of Pegu. The British only yesterday announced their withdrawal from Nyaungkashe.

Chinese in New Advances



Capture Air Base

CHUNGKING, China, July 11 (AP)—Chinese troops, driving 32 miles in three days, have recaptured a fifth abandoned United States air base and pushed to within less than 15 miles of Kanhsien, site of still another major American air field lost to the enemy, the Chinese high command announced today.

This offensive, striking toward Kanhsien from the southwest, overran Sincheng—where the United States 14th air force abandoned a base last Jan. 29—and then drove on 17 miles and recaptured Nankang, 15 miles from Kanhsien, on Tuesday afternoon, the high command said.

It declared the Japanese were fleeing toward Kanhsien, 240 miles north of Hong Kong, with the Chinese in pursuit.

'LORD HAW HAW' OF FRANCE GETS DEATH SENTENCE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, July 11—Paul Ferdonnet, who, under the nickname of "The Traitor of Stuttgart," enjoyed a notoriety in France similar to that of Broadcaster Lord Haw Haw in England, today was sentenced to death by the Court of Justice after a trial lasting only a few hours. He immediately gave notice of appeal.

Tho claiming to be a French patriot and never to have collaborated with the Germans, Ferdonnet admitted he had worked in the Nazi propaganda office from the first day of the war.

"It was purely mechanical work," he insisted. "The police requisitioned me. I might as well have been working in a war factory. It was compulsory labor." Ferdonnet astonished the packed courtroom by asserting that he had never spoken on the radio and never been in Stuttgart. He insisted his duties consisted merely of translating documents and writing scripts.

HEAT FROM FIRE SHOOTS BOMBS BACK INTO B-29

TINIAN, Marianas Islands, July 11 (AP)—Thermal air currents generated by fires which B-29s started in Wakayama yesterday were so strong they shoved the incendiaries right back into one Super Fort thru its own bomb bay.

Maj. Robert H. Langdale of Houston, Tex., said today that just after his bombardier had released all incendiaries, fused and ready to burst into flame, the hot air sent them crashing upwards into his B-29. They tore away a bomb bay door and hit the plane's horizontal stabilizer, but fell out again without doing any major damage to the plane.

Climaxing the eerie experience, powerful updrafts of scorching hot air flipped the Super Fort over on its back in a half loop, heading the plane back over the burning targets. The plane was flying belly up for several seconds until Langdale brought it under control and back on its course for a safe return to Tinian.

"Turmoil sure raged inside the plane," said Lt. Richard C. Baskett of Holton, Kas., "when the bombs bounced up into the bomb bay. Water flasks and loose equipment were floating around in the air and sometimes hit us when we weren't looking. It was just like actually being in the middle of one of those horror motion pictures."

U. S. AND BRITAIN TAKE OVER ZONES IN BERLIN TODAY

4 Power Command Meets in 'Friendliness'

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, July 11—American and British military authorities will assume full government control of American and British sectors in the German capital starting at 9 a. m. tomorrow.

The decision was reached at the first conference of the "kommandantur," [command post] the joint American, British, Russian, and French command for the control of Berlin. It was taken after a temporary agreement was reached for feeding and fueling Berlin, by which each occupying nation takes care of its own sector.

The conference took place in the headquarters of Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov in the former Berlin Institute for Training Veterinaries in the center of town. It had been repaired and repainted, and the Russians had erected a high column in front of it on the remnants of a former German monument. The column was topped by a large red and gold star with the hammer and sickle in the middle, and decorated with American, British, Russian, and French flags.

Russian Presides

In the paneled counsel room Col. Gen. Alexander Gorbatov presided. Maj. Gen. Floyd L. Parks represented the United States, Maj. Gen. L. O. Lyne represented Britain, and Gen. Geoffrey de Beauchesne represented France.

Gorbatov will head the "kommandantur" at first, after which other members will rotate on a 15 day basis.

Gen. Lyne, who later announced assumption of military government by the Americans and British tomorrow, declared: "In view of the great friendliness and desire to work together, which was evidenced today, I cannot believe there is any problem which cannot be solved."

He admitted that the powers were confronted with a number of most difficult problems. The most important, at the moment, is feeding and fueling the various sectors of Berlin, details of which were being worked out by a special group of experts meeting now.

"Complete Unanimity"

Should it prove impossible to carry out the agreement reached at the "kommandantur," the control council will be asked to intercede, but today Americans and British are under the impression that "complete unanimity has been achieved in everything at the meeting of the kommandantur."

Its next meeting is scheduled for July 18 with other meetings to follow at weekly intervals.

WISCONSIN TOWN READY TO GREET ITS FAMOUS SON

Mitscher on Way to See His Mother

Gets Shore Duty

La Crosse, Wis., July 11 (AP)—Vice Adm. Mitscher, pausing tonight on his way to Hillsboro, Wis., and a reunion with his mother, told reporters that he had been assigned to duty in Washington "for the present time" and would report at the capitol shortly after tomorrow's reception at his birthplace.

BY CARL WIEGMAN
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Hillsboro, Wis., July 11 — This pleasant little town is excited and a little bit worried. Its most famous son, Vice Adm. Mitscher, who was born here 58 years ago, is expected to arrive tomorrow to visit his mother, and the 1,106 citizens of Hillsboro would like to do him honor without, at the same time, intruding on the family reunion.

This is the first time Hillsboro ever had a chance to entertain an admiral, and Mayor Howard Moon said he wants to make no mistakes.

Adm. Mitscher, who led the famed task force 58 to many victories against the Japs, has not been here since 1934, when he was a lieutenant commander. Today there are banners stretched across the main street, bunting on the lamp posts, and a sign in every store window saying, "Welcome, Adm. Mitscher."

Cream Colored Frame House

Two blocks from the main street is the home of the admiral's mother, Mrs. Myrta Mitscher, and his aunt, Mrs. Helen Pinch. It is an 8 room frame house, painted cream color, with a screened front porch.

The peaceful scene is a far cry from the bridge of the aircraft carrier Bunker Hill, where Mitscher sat last May 11 off Okinawa when enemy suicide planes scored two bomb hits.

A large thermometer on the porch recorded a comfortable temperature of 72 this afternoon, but inside the house feverish preparations were under way for the famous guest. The admiral is coming by automobile with his wife, but nobody knows the exact time of their arrival. During the day various rumors went thru the town.

Fried Chicken for Dinner

Somebody reported hearing on the radio that he was seen near Janesville and would be here tonight. This proved false, but it caused a commotion at the family home.

Whenever he arrives the dinner menu will include fried chicken, buttered string beans, fruit salad, tossed salad, radishes, pickles, and angel food cake with strawberries.

Neighbors have supplied the salads and cake.

"I'm over 80, you know," she said, "and I don't photograph so well. I don't tell my exact age. People are as old as they feel."

Friends of Mrs. Mitscher said she is one of the town's most active Red Cross workers, and last Memorial day marched a mile in a parade with the Red Cross group.

FRENCH TRY TO SLIP HOMELESS INTO U. S. SECTOR IN AUSTRIA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

U. S. 3D ARMY HDQ., BAD TOLZ, Germany, July 11—American occupation forces disclosed today that the French troops who have taken over the Austrian Tyrol in accordance with the agreement of July 5 extending the French zone beyond Vorarlberg, today loaded up a trainful of displaced persons and tried to slip them across the line into the American zone. Americans stopped the train at the frontier and turned it back. The French planned to throw the responsibility for feeding these people from the French to the Americans, it was said.

According to military government officers, the problem of redistributing the homeless is serious but progress is being made. New camps for the Polish homeless are being established in southern Bavaria.

The French occupied Vorarlberg and the Tyrol with a considerable display of force. Highways yesterday were jammed with artillery and truck traffic.

MEDAL OF HONOR WINNER ARRIVES AT FT. SHERIDAN

Sgt. Oscar G. Johnson, 24, of Foster City, Mich., who won the congressional medal of honor for heroism in Italy, arrived at Fort Sheridan from the Mediterranean last night for 30 day furlough and possible discharge.

"Every one wants to make something out of this, but actually I did only what had to be done," he said. What he did, and what had to be done, the official records say, was to kill 20 Germans, [his buddies said the number was nearer 150], and to capture 24, and then help evacuate wounded comrades. The action occurred Sept. 24, 1944, near Scarperia, Italy.

Sgt. Johnson's modesty was revealed not only by his disinclination to discuss his exploit, but by his display of battle ribbons. On his chest he wore the Purple Heart, a campaign ribbon with three battle stars, and a good conduct ribbon. The medal of honor ribbon lay concealed with the medal itself at the bottom of his GI trunk. Johnson said he is anxious to get home with his parents and three younger brothers on their 550 acre farm. As an honor medal winner he's eligible for discharge, but he doesn't know yet, he said, whether he'll return to civilian life.

STRANGE TRUCE LETS HIROHITO HAVE LAST WORD

These Japs Won't Quit Till He Says So

OKINAWA, July 11 (AP)—A weird truce has been arranged with a Japanese major commanding a garrison on an island off Okinawa whereby he permits Americans to swim and hunt shells on the beach but refuses to surrender "as long as there are no orders from the emperor or his representative."

The truce negotiations with the Japanese commander started June 13 when an IDI broadcast an appeal to the island garrison to surrender.

Giving the word to the Japanese were Lt. [j. g.] Henry C. Norton and Lt. [j. g.] D. L. Osborn, Japanese language officers, and two captured Japanese officers.

Lt. Osborn volunteered and swam ashore, planting three white flags with instructions that one flag was to be left standing if no negotiations were wanted and two left standing if a personal interview was desired.

Two Flags Fly

Next day two flags were flying. The Japanese commander sent a sergeant to meet one of the captured Japanese officers on the beach. The sergeant was told that one of the Jap major's military academy class mates was wounded and held as prisoner. The major agreed to talk with his class mate.

The Americans returned June 26 bearing the wounded officer, on a stretcher.

The Jap major arrived in full dress uniform to meet Lt. Col. George A. Clark, of Galeton, Pa., a marine officer commanding a nearby island. At the conference, thru interpreters, Col. Clark emphasized that the major and his staff could help rebuild a peaceful Japan if they chose to live rather than die by suicide or starvation.

Major Sends a Memorandum

As a gesture of good faith, Osborn and Norton accompanied the Japanese garrison commander to his headquarters unarmed.

Amiably enough, the major signed their short snorter bills.

After lunch, the Americans returned to the beach.

Next day a messenger appeared at the beach to report that the major had decided not to surrender without word from the emperor.

"We will refrain from harming any parties engaged in nonmilitary pursuits such as swimming, picnicking and shell gathering on the shores of the island."

He also expressed thanks to Clark "and every one in your party for your friendliness and warm heartedness."

N. Y. PAPERS ARRANGE TO DELIVER DESPITE STRIKE CONTINUANCE

New York, July 11 (AP)—The Publishers Association of New York said late today that machinery had been set in motion to restore "as rapidly as possible" normal delivery of 14 major newspapers affected by an 11 day old delivery men's strike.

The statement came after members of the newspaper and mail deliverers' union [unaffiliated] ignored a third directive by the war labor board to return to work by 8 a. m. today or lose their closed shop, as well as possible retroactive pay under a new contract.

A spokesman for the WLB said the closed shop feature of the union's contract with the publishers' association was voided when the strikers did not return to work this morning as ordered.

Disorders flared briefly outside the News building tonight when police said two strikers were stabbed in an altercation with three youths who had bought bundles of papers and were carrying them away on their shoulders.

34 CIO MEMBERS INDICTED ON 209 FRAUD CHARGES

Paterson, N. J., July 11 (AP)—A Passaic county grand jury today returned 209 indictments against 34 members and former officers of local 669, CIO United Automobile Workers, charging them with embezzlement and aiding and abetting in false pretenses.

George Tremper, former financial secretary of the local, whose 30,000 members are employed at the Wright Aeronautical corporation's plants in this area, and Albert Capone, former local president, were charged in a joint indictment with embezzlement of $32,659. Tremper also was indicted on three charges of embezzling $300 and Capone on two charges of embezzling $200.

Both were charged in 62 indictments with aiding and abetting in false pretenses, and the 32 other members were charged in 141 indictments with false pretenses.

Report Red Flyers Train in Germany for Combat

MOSCOW, July 11 (AP)—A dispatch to the soviet army organ Red Star from "an airdrome in Germany" said today Red army flyers were undergoing combat training under conditions approximating those of actual battle. The practice was said to be part of a large scale Red army battle training program.

'OTHER WOMAN' POSES AS WIFE TO GET DIVORCE

On April 2 Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court granted a divorce to a 25 year old woman who identified herself as Mrs. Mary Stryszyk of 1524 Elston av., who charged her husband, Hubert, 29, a private in the army, with desertion. A witness, who gave his name as Pvt. James Bennett, affirmed that he had known the couple for five years, and that Hubert did, indeed, desert Mary.

But at a hearing before Judge Sabath yesterday it developed that "Mrs. Mary Stryszyk" had not been that person at all, but had been Miss Sonia Peleck, 25, of 1246 Bosworth av. Also that Pvt. Bennett was, in reality, Pvt. Hubert Stryszyk.

"Divorce" Halts Allotment

The strange case was brought to light when Mrs. Stryszyk complained to the war department that she wasn't getting her allotment checks. The war department replied that her "divorce" had halted them.

This was news to Mrs. Stryszyk and she so informed the war department. Officials of the department unearthed the facts and turned them over to Judge Sabath.

At a hearing yesterday Miss Peleck tearfully admitted perpetrating the fraud at Hubert's behest. He had told her he was unhappily married, she said, and that his wife wouldn't give him a divorce. She had stayed with him near his camp from November, 1943, until November, 1944, she said, and a child, Robert, now 18 months old, had been born.

Told Her What to Say

Hubert suggested the plan to get a divorce, she said, and urged her coöperation so they could be married and give Robert a last name.

"He told me what to tell the lawyer," Sonia explained. "Before the hearing he coached me on what to tell the judge." Shortly after the decree was signed she and Hubert were married, she said.

Judge Sabath set aside the divorce and issued a bench warrant to be served when Stryszyk returns from overseas. He found Sonia guilty of contempt of court, but withheld sentence, on a motion of her court-appointed attorney, William L. Howard, until she could be examined by Dr. William Haines, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic.

GOVERNOR QUITS IN NEVADA FOR SEAT IN SENATE

Carson City, Nev., July 11 (AP)—Democratic Gov. E. P. Carville announced today upon his return from the governors' conference at Mackinac, Mich., that he will resign as governor of Nevada July 31.

Simultaneously, Lt. Gov. Vail Pittman disclosed that when he assumes the governorship he will appoint Carville to the United States senate to fill the unexpired term of the late Sen. James G. Scrugham.

Scrugham died recently after an extended illness. He was filling the unexpired term of the late Democratic Sen. Key Pittman ending Jan. 3, 1947. Lt. Gov. Pittman is a brother of the latter.

GREEK PREMIER ASKS U. S. HELP IN BORDER CRISIS

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—Yugoslavia tonight renewed assertions that Macedonians were fleeing from Greece "before an organized terror" as Greece's prime minister, Adm. Petros Voulgaris, hurried to Salonika for a personal investigation of border troubles.

Before leaving Athens, Voulgaris formally appealed to Britain and the United States to protect the Greek population in northern Epirus, along the Albanian border, until frontier disputes in that region could be settled at the international peace conference.

The Yugoslav ministry of information said that Greeks from western Thrace, the Athens area, and Salonika, as well as Macedonians, were fleeing from the alleged terror.

CHARTER'S FOES GET IN LICKS AT SENATE HEARING

Each Gets 15 Minutes; Connally Holds Watch

must accept it because there is no alternative. He is wrong. There are many alternatives. One doesn't need an alternative to jumping in the lake. You just don't jump.

"I just finished a trip on the North American steamer which covers most of the Great Lakes. We had about one-half inch of butter for breakfast and no other during the day. When we stopped at Niagara Falls, the whole boat rushed over to Canada for steaks. And we got them!

Continent's Laughing Stock

"The conversation was not fit for a peace loving senator's ears. I can remember when it was such a thrill to be an American. We held our heads high and we were free. Now we sneak over the border to get something to eat. You have made us Americans the laughing stock of this continent.

"Instead of laboring so hard at San Francisco, with all these foreigners eating our scarce food and drinking liquor by the gallon, why haven't you demanded the truth about Pearl Harbor?"

Mrs. Keefe, representing the Women's League for Political Education, protested against the speed of senate action on the charter.

"World Statism"

From Mrs. Bassler of the League for Political Education, came the charge that the charter creates "world statism."

"You call this a league of peace loving nations but the test at San Francisco was whether you'd been at war," she chided.

Mrs. Johnson raised the constitutional issue and questioned the senate's right to set up rules for an international organization in which the United States is to join.

David Darrin of Washington was the representative of the United Nations of Earth association. He confessed there are no other members. Connally rapped for order once, "so we can hear Mr. Darrin and his organization," and admonished Darrin, after Darrin had told his own plan for a world state, to "be sure to report to your association on your appearance here."

"O, Darn It!"

When "H. V. Somers" was called, Mrs. Helen Virginia Somers of Philadelphia stepped up to say she represented herself, the United States government, and the people. A tongue twister in her speech got her and she exclaimed, "O, darn it!"

Gravely informing the senators "I'm not a crackpot," the plump, middle aged woman attacked the Union Now movement and displayed the Union Now flag.

"We don't want it!" chanted women spectators.

Denies It Bars War.

Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War said there is nothing in the charter to prevent war among the Big Three. He declared that the charter mixes "three rival imperial powers" with international equality of nations which is like mixing "oil and water." It would mean an end to the right of nations to be neutral, he argued.

Ely Culbertson, bridge expert representing Fight for Total Peace, Inc., argued that the teeth in the charter turn out to be a set of false teeth that can bite no one except the little fellow. He submitted a statement contending the charter "abounds in good intentions" but that there is nothing in it "to prevent any of the Big Five from rearming with impunity or attacking a divided world with chances of success." He pleaded for arms limitation and an international police force.

Warren C. Stephens of Netcong, N. J., submitted 10 reservations to the charter, including one to outlaw opium.

Just Happened By

Paul D. Michele of Washington said he just happened to go by and saw some friends who urged him to testify. He said the charter was totalitarian. Connally asked him what he does for a living and Michele said he wasn't doing anything. He had written a book and has a garden, he said.

Mrs. Agnes Waters of Washington, D. C., listed as representing the National Blue Star Mothers, castigated the whole treaty. She charged "conspiracy" and "fraud" and when her 15 minutes was up didn't want to quit.

Connally refused to bargain for another five minutes, Mrs. Waters shouted her views further and the chairman banged the gavel so loud she couldn't be heard.

Police Escort Her Away

Calmly, Connally commented:

"I'll see if I can't make as much noise as you can."

Several policemen helped Mrs. Waters to her seat. She brushed off the arm of one, saying, "I'm not afraid of you" and subsided.

This concluded the hearing of the opposition views, and Chairman Connally then read telegrams indorsing the charter from the presidents of the American Bar association and the American Legion and said there are many more. He then called two more proponents of ratification, Mrs. Anna Lord Strauss, president of the League of Women Voters and W. E. D. Dubois of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Lists Alternatives

"The war has brought home to us in a way we are not likely soon to forget the fact that there is no such thing as 'isolation' in the world today," Mrs. Strauss said. "The only alternatives are these: To participate in international decisions, to lead the way in developing coöperation between nations, or to accept the results of decisions made without us. Both economically and politically, the latter policy might be disastrous.

"In the face of this choice, members of the League of Women Voters all over the country are overwhelmingly agreed that there is but one reasonable decision: That the United States should work with the other nations of the world. The sooner the charter is ratified, the sooner we can begin to translate words on paper into a living, functioning body."

Dubois said he favored United States ratification of the charter, but he urged a reservation clarifying a pledge of racial equality.

CHARTER TO END MINOR WARFARE, SAYS PROFESSOR

Enforcement procedures envisaged in the San Francisco peace charter will eliminate minor wars and "thus make greater stability in the world and lessen mutual suspicion and distrust among the major powers," Bernard Brodie, associate professor of the Institute of International Studies at Yale university, said yesterday. He gave a lecture at the 21st annual meeting of the Norman Walt Harris foundation at the University of Chicago.

"The common obligation to commit forces for the maintenance of peace will greatly enhance the stake which each state feels it has put into the partnership, even if the forces actually used be relatively small," he said.

Prof. Malbone W. Graham, University of California political scientist, said that in the charter "power has been channeled and constitutionalized. The greatest human safeguards have been placed around its exercise, yet power itself has deliberately not been shackled."

LEO PASVOLSKY: SOURCE OF ALL CHARTER FACTS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—Leo Pasvolsky, Russian born ardent internationalist, knows more about the new league of nations to preserve peace than any other person in the world. That's because he wrote the first draft of the charter of the world peace league and attended its revision and amplification all the way from the first day of the Dumbarton Oaks conference to the last day of the San Francisco conference. He bids for fame as father of the charter.

Leo Pasvolsky

That's why he was the chief witness for the administration in behalf of the charter before the senate foreign relations committee. Former State Secretary Stettinius opened the committee hearings last Monday by reading an explanation of the charter prepared for him by Pasvolsky, whose title is "special assistant to the secretary of state for international organization and security affairs." He was appointed to this position by Stettinius soon after assuming office as secretary of state.

Fountain Head of Wisdom

The committee did not question Stettinius, preferring to go directly to Pasvolsky as the fountain head of information on the intricacies of the charter to whom Stettinius himself would have been compelled to turn for answers to the questions of the senators. With Pasvolsky following Stettinius to the witness stand the committee tapped the fountain head for a day and a half.

President Truman has appointed Stettinius the United States representative in the world peace league. And Pasvolsky is to go right along with Stettinius to the capital of the league, when it is selected, to guide the American delegate thru the mazes of the charter and provide him with the answers to the questions that will arise. For Pasvolsky knows all the answers, can even give them before the questions are asked.

Only an Employe

This compendium of information on an unusually abstruse subject is a little rotund man with a balding round head and broad Muscovite features, generally illuminated by a quizzical smile and clouded by the smoke of a heavy jowled pipe he habitually smokes. For all his high sounding title he is only a curb service employe of the state department. He was brought into the department as an economist to assist in developing the Hull reciprocal tariff program and successively advanced to the highest rank outside of those positions filled by Presidential appointment subject to senate confirmation.

Pasvolsky, now a naturalized American citizen, was born at Pavlograd, Russia, in 1893 and came to this country with his parents in 1905. He was educated at the College of the City of New York, Columbia university, and the University of Geneva, Switzerland. During the first World war he was editor of the Russian Review, an English language monthly, the Russkoye Slovo, a Russian language daily, and the Amerikansky Viestnik, a Russian language monthly. After the war he was a free lance writer for several years but in 1922 joined the Brookings Institution in Washington as a member of the research staff of its institute of economics, which had been established by the Carnegie corporation to explore "current economic problems."

Favored Debt Cancellation

In 1929 Pasvolsky became widely known as joint author with Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings Institution, of a work on the World war debt settlements, followed by an even more exhaustive one in 1932 on "war debts and world prosperity" in which the cancellation of the debts was advocated. He has published several works on Russia and eastern Europe, including the "Economics of Communism."

As the author of the American draft and an expert on the subject Pasvolsky was the right hand man for Undersecretary Stettinius to whom Hull commended the negotiation of the preliminary draft of the charter at Dumbarton Oaks in 1944. Pasvolsky was the author of the first draft of the trusteeship plan to which the war and navy departments took violent exception because it would have committed the islands wrested from Japan to a trusteeship instead of permitting their annexation for naval bases under exclusive American control.

Hidden Valley WAC

(Story in adjoining column)

WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, who was marooned in New Guinea valley, as she arrived in Chicago yesterday. She holds axes and spears, souvenirs of adventure.

HERE'S A SOLDIER WHO REFUSES TO EMBRACE A WAC

WAC Corp. Margaret Hastings, 30, and Lt. Joseph McCollom, 26, who were rescued by glider after being marooned 47 days in Hidden Valley, a New Guinea fastness near Hollandia, met again yesterday at Chicago airport—and shook hands.

A photographer tried to get Lt. McCollom to put his arm around the pretty WAC, whose curly brown hair tossed in the wind. "Lay off that stuff!" the lieutenant commanded. He said that contrary to the suspicions of all the GIs in the Pacific, who dream of being marooned with a WAC, no romantic attachments were formed in Hidden Valley.

He Has Another Date

As if to prove it, Lt. McCollom brought along an attractive United Air Lines stewardess, Miss Wendy Hoffman, with whom he had a swimming date. Lt. McCollom is en route to his home in Trenton, Mo., and Corp. Hastings is flying back to her home in Owego, N. Y.

The third member of the marooned party, Sgt. Kenneth Decker of Kelso, Wash., remained on the west coast. The three were the only survivors of an army plane which crashed into a mountain in the isolated New Guinea jungles on May 13 and killed 20 WACs, soldiers, and sailors.

The survivors lived on rations from a plane life raft for four days and on the fifth an air crew dropped food and a radio. Thereafter gifts rained from the sky by parachute—60 blankets, 20 shelter tents, and food and clothing galore.

Invents Poker Game

Corp. Hastings was introduced to the natives as the queen of a white tribe. She invented a poker game called "deuces wild, roll your own, and fiery cross"—best five of 15 cards. "She was mighty good at those wild ones," the lieutenant said. Mostly the Americans read magazines dropped to them.

The pretty WAC smiled when she was asked to name significant things about her adventure.

135 MILE ROAD OPENS QUEBEC MINING REGION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

QUEBEC, Que., July 11—A 135 mile road into Quebec's rich mining field of Chibougamou has just been completed, Jonathan Robinson, Quebec minister of mines, announced today.

The road extends from St. Felicien to Chibougamou and took nine years to build. It opens up vast stretches of mining land to truck traffic which heretofore have been accessible only by canoe in summer and dog-sled in winter, or by plane.

The mining region was discovered about 1901. It is believed to contain vast deposits of various kinds, among them gold.

DUCE NOT RULED BY HIS MISTRESS, WIDOW INSISTS

Wife Calls Him Most Intelligent Man

New York, July 11 (AP)—Donna Rachele Mussolini, widow of the Italian dictator, was quoted in a broadcast from Rome tonight as declaring that her husband was was "one of the most intelligent men who ever lived."

Clete Roberts, Rome correspondent of the American Broadcasting company, said Signora Mussolini told him at an internment camp about 60 miles from Rome that Mussolini was treated unjustly.

Others to Blame

"They blame him for everything," Roberts quoted her as saying. "The blame should be placed on other people, from Badoglio to the king."

Roberts said Signora Mussolini's eyes flashed when he asked her about Claretta Petacci, Mussolini's mistress who was executed with him.

"They have done well to hang her," she shouted, pounding the table. "Mussolini never had anything to do with any woman. He never let them have any influence over him. All that propaganda they put out just to ruin him. I was the only one he thought anything of and I was the only woman who thought something of him."

Last Phone Talk

Signora Mussolini said she had been with her husband in northern Italy only eight days before he was captured by Partisans. She said he talked with her by telephone only six or seven hours before he was shot in the back in Milan, telling her to try to get to Switzerland but if she had any trouble with guards to give herself up to American military authorities.

She was picked up later in the same region where Mussolini was captured, near Lake Como, and was brought to an internment camp by British authorities. She is being held in protective custody, with two of her children, 16 year old Anna Maria and 17 year old Romano.

$250,000 VOTED FOR FEPC'S USE BY COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—The house appropriations committee about faced today and recommended a $250,000 fund for continued and unrestricted operation of the fair employment practice committee.

It did so at an afternoon session less than three hours after it had voted FEPC a $250,000 fund intended for "completely liquidating" the agency.

The latest action left both sides in the six weeks' fight over FEPC somewhat bewildered, and assured a record house vote tomorrow that may jar loose the $752,000,000 national war agencies supply bill that has been riding a parliamentary merry-go-round since June 1.

The burden of carrying an amendment now rests with FEPC's opponents. They indicated they would seek to eliminate the appropriations committee's final recommendation that the $250,000 fund be made available for normal FEPC functions until such time as congress enacts specific legislation dealing with that agency. A measure to create a permanent FEPC is pending.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

July 12—Henry David Thoreau

The man who was to see the glories of the simple American landscape as no person equally articulate had seen them before, and who was to embody in literature of rare distinction the quiet, sane thoughts on nature and human life which his habits of observation and his sense of the wonder of common things tended to produce, was born near Concord, Mass., 128 years ago today.

To Henry David Thoreau a maple leaf was a delight to the esthetic sense and a challenge to the imagination—more so than an Alpine gorge or a tumultuous sea would be to the average man. For decades he walked the fields and roads of Middlesex county and found in each change of season or of weather new things to engross and enchant him.

For 26 months he lived alone in the woods. It is this period which is recorded in his most famous book, "Walden; or Life in the Woods."

Yet Thoreau was not a mere recluse. He took a burning interest in the questions of his day—particularly slavery. He was a strong advocate of simplicity and his stay in the woods was partly a protest against the complexities which he saw stealing into American life.

Neither was he a recluse in the sense that he shunned human society. He counted among his friends Emerson and other distinguished men and women of his time and place. Altho he never married, he enjoyed a rich and warm family life in his parents' home. He made his living as a teacher [he was well educated] and as a maker of pencils [pencil making was the family business]. Thoreau died of tuberculosis in Concord two months before his 45th birthday.

U-BOAT CLEARED BY ARGENTINA IN SHIP SINKING

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, July 11 (AP)—The mystery of where the German U-boat 530 spent her time cruising between V-E day and her surrender here yesterday remained unsolved tonight. The Argentine navy ministry said the submarine had nothing to do with the sinking of the Brazilian cruiser Bahia. It could not have reached port so soon afterward, naval authorities said.

The Nazi commander, Otto Wermoutt, surrendered his craft and a crew of 54. Argentine inspectors said the U-boat was undamaged and carried no munitions. Her fuel supply was nearly exhausted and her crew was hungry.

Four Americans Missing

RECIFE, Brazil, July 11 (AP)—Four United States navy sound technicians were among the missing aboard the Brazilian cruiser Bahia. They were Emmette Peter Bale, William Joseph Eustau, Andrew Jackson Pendelton, and Frank Benjamin Sparks. Of the Bahia's 366 officers and men, only 31 have been landed here.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

The French government, on the other hand, was said to be anxious that the experts meet as soon as possible, with a soviet representative participating.

It was understood that the United States desires a thoro revision of the statute which internationalized Tangier in 1923.

Meanwhile American, British, and French experts marked time in Paris until their governments instruct them to go ahead.

DR. TOMAN HOME, TELLS OF 4-DAY BATTLE SURGERY

His old job as medical superintendent of the Bridewell hospital, where gunshot cases are frequent, was child's play compared with long stretches of operating on battle casualties off Iwo and Okinawa Islands, Lt. Comdr. Andrew Toman said yesterday as he returned to Chicago on a furlough.

For four days and nights he worked over wounded men while the Iwo battle raged thru the beachheads. Dr. Toman was chief of four surgeons on the U. S. S. Mifflin, an assault personnel auxiliary ship which carried fighting men to the battle and then, converted into a hospital ship, stood by while small boats brought many back as casualties.

Toman went thru another 96 hour stretch in the early stages of the Okinawa battle before his ship, loaded with casualties, put back to a base hospital. Without sleep, he lived on coffee and sandwiches.

In the role of proud father, John Toman, 22d ward Democratic committeeman and member of the board of tax appeals, anxiously asked about his son's health as he met the incoming train at the Dearborn station. Also present were the doctor's wife, Emily, and their 4 year old son, John II.

His job was to do emergency operations on a troop ship that didn't have the immunity of the Red Cross insignia carried by regular hospital ships.

"We had plenty of supplies—whole blood, plasma, whatever we needed," Toman said. "I take my hat off to the people who saw that we needed nothing but time and sleep."

For the next 30 days he'll divide his time between the Toman home at 4056 W. 21st pl. and the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Joseph Serhant, 1830 S. Oak Park av., Berwyn.

FRENCH INSIST DE GAULLE WAS INVITED TO U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—The mystery of whether President Truman issued a specific invitation to Gen. de Gaulle to visit the White House in August was cleared up today when the French embassy said without qualification that such an invitation had been issued and an equally definite acceptance from De Gaulle had been forwarded to Mr. Truman.

Despite the disclosure by the French embassy, the White House persisted in its refusal to comment on the Presidential invitation.

The state department had no comment, but referred inquiries to the White House. It was learned from state department sources, however, that White House and diplomatic comment is being withheld because news of the invitation and acceptance was "broken" in Paris prematurely before formal technicalities were completed, and that the White House will make an official announcement as soon as this is done.

POLISH GENERAL IN REICH BACKS LONDON REGIME

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—The commander of the Polish 1st armored division in occupied Germany has appealed to his troops to remain loyal to the exiled Polish government, asserting that "we shall return to Poland—but only with arms in hands," Polish armed forces headquarters here reported today.

The 1st armored division is part of 250,000 Polish troops abroad serving under British operational command. The order by Gen. Klemens Rudnicki raised the question whether the British could continue to support an armed force many of whose officers are antagonistic to the new Polish government in Warsaw, without straining Britain's relations with Warsaw and Moscow.

If a number of major officers continue loyal to the exiled regime, it appeared likely that Polish units would be withdrawn from the field and its members given the choice of returning home or becoming private citizens under the British flag.

BRITAIN MOVES TO EVICT FAMILY IN SEIZED HOME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 11—Public outcry against queues and the housing shortage met its first official resistance today when an eviction order was issued against a sailor's family which had been moved into an empty house commandeered by Brighton vigilantes without the landlord's consent.

Harry Cowley, leader of the vigilantes, said if the family is turned out of the commandeered house, his organization will immediately put it into another. He asserted the vigilantes intend to fight the summons in court.

There was still no indication that the ministry of labor intends doing anything to relieve the help shortage in stores, which many shop owners blame for the queueing evil. Some chain store proprietors say it is not the shortage of labor but the scarcity of food and other commodities that is responsible for the long waiting in line.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

34,000 SOLDIERS HOME AGAIN AS 8 SHIPS COME IN Captured Jap Diplomats Among Arrivals

New York, July 11 (AP)—More than 34,000 war hardened troops—the largest number to return here in a single day—arrived today aboard eight transports.

Leading the flotilla were the former luxury liner Queen Mary with 14,747 passengers and the West Point, the navy's largest transport, which carried 7,607 soldiers.

Navy planes, a blimp, and a helicopter met the ships in the lower bay. A New York City fireboat sent up sprays of water in salute.

Jap Diplomats Aboard

Aboard the West Point, in addition to the troops, were 33 Japanese diplomats taken into custody in Europe. Among them was Hiroshi Oshima, Japanese ambassador to Germany. They will be placed in quarantine and then interned.

Hanging over the starboard side of the vessel were banners of the 87th division carrying the legend "On to Tokyo."

The Queen Mary carried 8,452 American troops, 88 American nurses, 11 navy personnel, 10 American Red Cross officials, two American civilians, and 33 British shipping officials, in addition to 6,086 soldiers of the Canadian 1st army, 49 Canadian nurses, and 16 women members of the Canadian army.

Await Pacific Duty

Approximately 4,000 of the Canadian troops have volunteered for Pacific duty. After 30 day furloughs they will return to the United States to form a new Canadian 6th army, which will serve under American leadership in the war against Japan.

Other ships arriving were the James Parker, carrying 3,011 members of the 22d regiment of the 4th division, the John Ericsson with 7,493 soldiers of the 414th and 415th infantry regiments; the Andrew Hamilton, with 359 men; John Stevens, 368; Thomas Page, 363, and Alfred Moore, 412.

Sgt. Clifford P. Hinkel, 24, of 2446 Clybourne av., Chicago, a machine gunner, said he received the distinguished service cross for knocking out a machine gun nest in Holland.

Corp. Richard G. Clark, 24, of 801 Knoxville av., Peoria, Ill., returned with the silver star and a bronze star. He said he was in Holland moving toward the Maas river when he won the silver star.

Pvt. E. B. Tokars, Pvt. Tony Teisl, Sgt. R. H. Seay, and Pvt. Bernie Nudelman [left to right], Chicagoans, arriving on the West Point.

With a platoon he was having trouble with a machine gun nest, he said, and maneuvered into a position from which he was able to see the nest. He turned back many vehicles that would have been in the path of the guns, and then succeeded in silencing the nest.

BOY, 14, THUMBS WAY THRU WAR, NOW SEEKS A LIFT TO AMERICA

PARIS, July 11 (AP)—Fourteen year old Freddie Pets, who thumbed his way across Europe thru five years of war, is trying to get to the United States the same way.

The little four-footer is togged out in a battlejacket and khaki field trousers, and sports an air borne patch, glider pilot's wings and a European theater ribbon with three battle stars. He has been mascot and handy man for the 1st armored division in Italy, the 10th armored division in Germany, and the 65th infantry in Austria. Now the 436th troop carrier group has adopted him.

Freddie said his father was a trapeze performer who was killed in a fall. He went with his mother to her native Switzerland and she died in an automobile accident. For seven years, he says, he has wandered thru Spain, Germany, Italy, France, Austria, and Hungary.

$265 EACH MONTH FOR SOLDIER WHO LOST LEGS, ARMS

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—The United States stands ready to provide $265 monthly to help Sgt. Fredric Hensel start a chicken farm. Hensel is the nation's first quadruple battle amputee in the war.

The $265 is the maximum pension payable to war veterans. Hensel will be eligible for the maximum as soon as he is discharged from the army, a veterans administration official said today.

He has said he's thinking about getting a little chicken farm when he gets artificial arms and legs.

In addition to the $265 pension, the government will guarantee up to $2,000 of any loan he's able to arrange, providing he meets conditions of the GI bill of rights. Also, he can go to school to study chicken farming, with the government paying the bill.

MANY VETERANS HELD ELIGIBLE TO BE RECALLED

Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois state selective service director, said yesterday that many discharged veterans of World War II. are eligible for re-induction, but that local boards in Illinois are sending comparatively few men back into service.

"There seems to be a general misunderstanding," Armstrong said, "that, once a man has served in the armed forces, he cannot be re-inducted. Actually, Illinois boards have forwarded a large number of registrants for re-induction. The number, however, is only a fraction of the total released."

Service men discharged because of age or points retain their 1-C classification, Armstrong said, and local boards must get authorization from the national director before they can be reclassified.

Low Landing Speed

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 11—Details of the British jet propelled Meteor fighter, which was used against flying bombs last year, were revealed for the first time today.

It is a single seat, low wing monoplane of all metal construction with a tricycle landing gear and powered by two gas jet turbines. Its armament consists of four 20 millimeter Hispano guns with a camera gun mounted in the nose. The Meteor spans 43 feet, has a length of 41 feet, height of 13 feet, and a wing area of 374 square feet.

No speed was given but the plane is described as easily maneuverable and its landing speed comparatively low. There is little noise in the cockpit in flight and the usual vibration is said to be absent. Engine controls are simpler than with reciprocating engines, it was stated.

GIs LOSE OUT IN HOMECOMING BOUT ON POINTS

OCCUPIED GERMANY—(AP)—Thousands of soldiers over here are worried about their wives, sweethearts and families on one particular score. They wish the folks back home would realize that an 85 point "critical score"—or over 120 points—doesn't necessarily mean a trip home or demobilization.

Also, the mere fact that any outfit, from an army on down, is reported coming home doesn't mean that everybody in it will soon be stomping combat boots on the welcome mat.

After every mail, dozens of guys start tearing their hair over how they can convince some one back home that, in their case, it just isn't so and there is nothing they can do about it.

Like the captain the other morning.

Wife Threatens Divorce

"A divorce, she threatens," he moaned. "She means it. She knows I have 127 points. She's already seeing the neighbor boys with 85 or 90 points showing up. Now she's convinced that I just don't want to come home. I try to tell her I've been classified 'essential'—and that's a laugh, incidentally—but she just doesn't believe it."

He ran his hands thru his hair.

"She can't make up her mind whether I don't love her any more or whether I've fallen for some European babe or whether I've just fouled up and this is the way they are punishing me. But she is sure it is something like that and unless I convince her otherwise, she is Reno bound."

Her case is not an exception. The chaplain of a division which has been overseas nearly three years and fought all the way thru the Mediterranean and Europe said the other day that almost all surviving old timers in the division were deep in what he termed "domestic troubles" due to this situation.

Lots of 'Last Straw' Attitudes

"You'd be shocked at the number of wives and sweethearts who are taking a 'this is the last straw' attitude," he said.

And unfortunately, since that division is tabbed for the occupation, there's no telling how long it will take its "essential" officers to get home.

Also, it has been in combat so long that an 85 pointer is practically a johnny-come-lately. Hence, while the newer divisions—also working down from the top—are sending plenty of 85 pointers home, it takes 100 points or so even to get optimistic in this outfit.

In addition, records may be confused. Add to that the idea of priority of transportation for various reasons and you can get the vague idea of why 85 points is just the first step toward getting home.

8TH AIR FORCE FLIES ITS 2,118 BOMBERS HOME

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, July 11—The last of the United States 8th air force's 2,118 Flying Fortresses and Liberators have flown back to America from Britain, it was announced today. The operation transferring the mighty fleet of four engined bombers across the Atlantic was completed in 51 days by the United States air transport command. The bombers carried home 41,500 personnel.

Other type of planes of the 8th remain in Europe to serve with the occupational air force. Many of the personnel also remain to be redeployed by surface vessels.

It was also disclosed today that the air transport command, European division, has flown more than 41,000 sick or wounded American soldiers home from Europe since January, 1944.

Does BORDERLINE ANEMIA* Harm a Girl's Complexion?

YES, it does! Complexion loveliness lies in soft freshness . . . in radiant color. And the flush and glow of health are sadly missing if you have a Borderline Anemia. Borderline Anemia leaves your skin pale, dull, unattractive.

Weak, Faded Red Blood Cells Rob You of Energy

Medical science warns that 68% of women—as well as many thousands of men—have a Borderline Anemia, resulting from a ferro-nutritional deficiency of the blood. The red cells in their blood just aren't big enough or red enough or healthy enough to keep them vitally alive and alluring. Your blood is your "supply line" of energy for your whole body. Nothing else can take its place!

Build Up Blood and Energy with Ironized Yeast

So if your skin is poor—if you feel too tired to keep up with the crowd—take Ironized Yeast Tablets. They give you the vital, blood-building elements that doctors say most of us aren't getting enough of in other ways.

Of course your condition may stem from other causes—so you ought to consult your doctor regularly. But in a Borderline Anemia, Ironized Yeast Tablets will help by building up healthy, red blood cells, improving energy. On sale at all drug stores.

*Resulting from a ferro-nutritional blood deficiency.

IMPORTANT! Medical records show that up to 68% of WOMEN, 20% of MEN, 85% of CHILDREN suffer from BORDERLINE ANEMIA!

Italy Grants Autonomy to French Frontier Area

ROME, July 11 (AP)—The Italian cabinet today granted "local autonomy" to the Val d'Aosta region of northwestern Italy, in the first step of a move apparently intended to meet French, Yugoslav, and Austrian territorial demands at the peace conference. The Val d'Aosta region along the French frontier was occupied briefly after V-E day by French troops, who later withdrew.

Toledoan Is 500,000th

The 500,000th soldier to leave Europe was Pvt. John S. Pinney of Toledo, O., a former member of company K, 38th regiment, 2d infantry division. He boarded the converted freighter, Marine Angel, at Le Havre.

Pinney, a 109 point potential dischargee, was not greatly impressed by being number 500,000.

"As long as I get there," he said, "I don't mind the 499,999 who beat me."

Overseas 23 Months

Pinney has a wife, Virginia, and a 12 year old daughter, Jacqueline, waiting for him at Toledo. He has been overseas 23 months. He landed at Omaha beach on D-day plus one and wears the Purple Heart, the bronze star, the combat infantry man's badge, and five campaign stars.

"There were times," he related, "when I never expected to make it. My jeep was the last vehicle to leave Krinkel, Belgium, when the Germans pushed us out during the bulge, and I could feel their breaths on my neck. Then again in April after we crossed the Rhine my jeep hit a mine, but I got out with only a light head wound.

"It will be good getting back home again at my old job of driving a bus where the worst traffic hazards are women drivers."

GERMAN GIRLS SING SONGS IN ENGLISH AS SCHOOLS REOPEN

BERLIN, July 11 (AP)—Three months ago they were prospective candidates for Hitler's "union of German girls." Today they sat at their school desks and sang songs in English while a German once arrested by the Nazis as politically unreliable smiled proudly.

This class for 10 year old girls in bomb damaged Rueckert is in a secondary school a little more than a mile from the reichschancellery. It is an example of the soviet policy of reopening schools quickly to get children off the streets, regardless of whether purged textbooks are ready.

Dr. Oskar Schaefer, 59, educator with a Jewish wife, whose daughter escaped to Guatemala in 1939, apologized to American correspondents for the lack of facilities in the school. "But our children are learning useful things again; you can see that," he added. Schaefer said an uncle, W. P. Doerr, lives at 5487 Hyde Park blvd., Chicago.

Une perm' à Paris... Have a Coca-Cola

...Yank friendliness at Eiffel Tower

It's natural for a Yank soldier to share his home ways. The invitation Have a Coke is a symbol of his friendliness. It says We wish you well in a way as American as baseball. Wherever you hear Have a Coke, you hear the voice of America . . . inviting you to the pause that refreshes,—a symbol of good will everywhere.

You naturally hear Coca-Cola called by its friendly abbreviation "Coke". Both mean the quality product of The Coca-Cola Company.

HOUSE PROBERS HEAR REPORT ON ELLIOTT INQUIRY

U. S. Agents in New York to Quiz General

BY LAURENCE BURD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—A progress report from internal revenue agents on loans floated by Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt was heard today by the house ways and means committee.

Meanwhile, it was learned that revenue agents were in New York City today to question Roosevelt personally about his various borrowings which were apparently made to finance his tottering radio broadcasting enterprises.

Activity in Chicago

Other federal agents, it was disclosed, are in Chicago for the purpose of questioning Carruthers C. Ewing, attorney, about the $200,000 loan made to Gen. Roosevelt in 1939 by John Hartford, president of the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea company. Ewing is general counsel for the company. The loan was settled by Roosevelt in 1942 thru Jesse Jones, then secretary of commerce, by a small payment said to be about $4,000, or two cents on the dollar.

[Ewing, who is in St. Luke's hospital for examination, said yesterday two department of justice agents called upon him to ascertain the facts concerning the $200,000 loan made by Hartford to Gen. Roosevelt. Ewing said he told them all the facts he knew were contained in the statement Hartford had filed with his income tax return.]

Other publicly disclosed loans floated by Roosevelt include one of $70,000 by David G. Baird, New York insurance executive, and another for $50,000 by Maxwell M. Bilofsky, New York and New Jersey manufacturer of radio equipment.

"Intensive Investigation"

The progress report to the committee was made by Norman D. Cann, deputy internal revenue commissioner. Committee Chairman Doughton [D., N. C.] announced after the session that the Hartford-to-Roosevelt loan is still "under intensive investigation" by the revenue bureau.

Doughton said a complete report on this transaction will be made to his committee as soon as possible.

Committee members said a major purpose of the investigation is to determine whether Gen. Roosevelt had paid income taxes which may be due the federal treasury as a result of his financial gain in settling loans for less than the amounts borrowed.

Bad Debt Deductions

Hartford wrote off the $196,000 loss on his advance to the general as a "bad debt" in his 1942 income tax return, and Baird reportedly sought to make a similar "bad debt" deduction in an income tax return as a sequel to his loan to Roosevelt. Treasury officials have said, however, that Baird's claim has been disallowed and that the deduction by Hartford still is under scrutiny.

A member of the committee told a reporter after today's closed hearing that he understood the late President's second son engineered various loans for himself "in excess of $800,000."

The congressman said the committee is interested in reports that two advances totaling about $500,000 were made to Gen. Roosevelt by Texas oil interests.

FRAUD CHARGED TO MAKERS OF 'NEW LIFE' PILLS

Assistant United States Atty. Michael J. Boyle, whose abdomen is on the round side, filed an answer with Judge William J. Campbell in federal District court yesterday to the question which he said appears on the labels of boxes of tablets sold by the Gotu Kola Distributors, 188 W. Randolph st.:

"Does this exotic plant from Ceylon hold the answer for man's search for the secret of 'rejuvenation'?"

Atty. Boyle said the government has analyzed the Gotu Kola tablets and is convinced they cannot prolong life or keep abdomens flat.

In a criminal information charging Mrs. Laura Kordel, owner of the Gotu Kola company, and her husband, Lelord, with violating the federal food, drug, and cosmetics act and with misbranding drugs in interstate commerce, the government said it was fradulently claimed that the Gotu Kola tablets would:

"Give a man dynamic energy; energize brain cells; prevent brain fog; keep old age away; produce perfect physical life; enhance life by producing an erect posture, sharp eyes, velvety skin, limbs of splendid proportions, firm bodies, gracefully curved hips, flat abdomens, rhythm of motion, intelligence of eyes, and pleasing laughter."

STATE PLANNERS TOLD U. S. WILL KEEP HANDS OFF

Post-war reconversion will escape WPA [works projects administration] and other federally financed organizations unless there is extreme unemployment, 19 state planning leaders were assured yesterday at the opening conference of the American Society of Planning Officials in the Stevens hotel.

"Unless there is very great unemployment, there will be no federal grants for state and local public works construction," said R. C. Ashton of Chicago, division engineer of the bureau of community facilities, federal works agency. Ashton added that nothing not already a federal responsibility is contemplated in the years following the war.

The state planning officials were warned by Walter Blucher, executive director of the society and a member of the Illinois state planning commission, that if they waited for completion of a national program they stood a strong chance of meeting the post-war years unprepared.

REPORTS AUTOMOBILE STOLEN

TELL SPLITTING OF FEES WITH SONS OF JUDGE

of Judge Johnson over the protests of investors.

Townsend named Albert Johnson Jr., an attorney, as the son with whom he split his receivership fees, and said he paid the money periodically in cash, handing it to Albert Jr., in white envelopes in the latter's Williamsport law office.

Townsend said the fee split was solicited by another son of the judge, Miller Johnson, who asked him if he would be willing to help Albert Jr., and another son, Donald, who "have some obligations." Townsend said Miller Johnson assured him it would be "all right" to make these payments and that a daughter of the judge told Townsend's wife "this is done in big cases."

Pays Income Taxes

Townsend told the committee he paid income taxes on his entire fee before splitting with Albert Jr., and informed Albert Jr. of this. Townsend said he felt grateful for his new job and thought he could do what he wished with the money he received. He added, "As far as I know, the judge knew nothing about it."

Altho he neither hunts nor fishes, Townsend said he joined Judge Johnson's "Tea Springs Hunting and Fishing lodge," paying the $500 membership fee. He said the lodge was difficult to reach and he seldom used its facilities.

He said the wire rope company was on its way to full recovery in 1938 when Judge Johnson ordered its sale on foreclosure.

Jacob Greenes, beer salesman of Scranton, Pa., took the stand to admit blandly that over a two year period he carried upwards of $20,000 in fee splits from the wire rope company receivership to Donald M. Johnson, another son of the judge.

Greenes said a few words of recommendation from him to Donald Johnson resulted in the appointment of receivers and other officers in receivership cases.

Albert Houck, an army captain who was formerly a deputy clerk in Judge Johnson's court, said he was "practically ordered" by the judge to move from a private residence to an apartment house owned by the judge. Houck said this cost him an extra $20 to $40 a month.

Houck named Luther Martin as a painter who painted Judge Johnson's residence and took his pay by accepting an appointment from the judge as a court appraiser.

GRANDSTAND GLADIATORS

The foreign relations committee of the senate has been giving consideration to the question whether the security council of the new league of nations can order American soldiers into action without a declaration of war by congress.

It is curious that none of the senators called attention to the fact that if the security council can't send Americans it can't send anybody. More than two months have passed since fighting on land and in the air ceased in Europe and two or three years have passed since Britain had any considerable need for a naval force in European waters. Britain is formally at war with Japan, but where are the British divisions that were released when Germany collapsed? What Okinawas have they taken? What Iwos are they preparing to assault? And where is the great British battle fleet? We know that a task force from the royal navy has been operating behind ours because there were reports of a number of British carriers receiving bomb hits, but where is the rest of the fleet and what risks is it running and what losses is it taking?

We have been told so often that sometimes we almost can believe that the future peace of the world depends upon close coöperation among the three great allies. The doctrine apparently has not been preached in Moscow, for where is the Russian army that continues to receive lend-lease supplies from America? Where has it engaged the Japanese? Where is it coöperating? At San Francisco the Russians agreed to fight aggressors. Don't they regard Japan as an aggressor? If the one of our so-called allies which has declared war on Japan won't contribute more than a bare token force to the fighting, and if the other hasn't even joined in the war, what reason is there to suppose they will take any risks to keep the peace in future? Their actions make it abundantly clear that they will always be glad to have us win their Polands and their Hong Kongs for them and later to send our young men and our money into battle again to safeguard all such spoils if they are threatened. While that is happening our allies will be pleased to cheer us on from the grandstand, provided, of course, that free tickets are furnished.

LST FERRIES

The proposal to use the navy's surplus tank landing ships for ferrying operations in inland waters after the war is a natural. The navy has several thousands of these vessels. In all probability their utility for military purposes will be ended after the invasion of Japan, if that takes place. They are essentially large, sturdy, shallow draught ferry boats designed to shove their noses ashore on invasion beachheads and discharge tanks and other combat vehicles ready to go into battle, or trucks loaded and ready to start carrying their supplies to the fighting line.

The utility of an automobile ferry connecting Chicago with the lower ports across the lake in Michigan was well recognized before the war. The highways around the southern end of Lake Michigan, extensively used by vacation passenger automobiles as well as by trucks and trailers from Michigan's fruit regions and Detroit's automobile factories, were crowded and sometimes hazardous. Ferries would take both passenger cars and trucks across the lake at little, if any, loss in time and with a considerable saving of wear and tear on both the vehicles and their drivers. The only obstacle to the project was the cost of such ferries, which would have been a million dollars or more. Use of the navy's surplus ships would meet this objection of cost.

The shallow draught of the LSTs makes it possible that they can be used on rivers as well as on the Great Lakes. They, or slightly smaller craft, might be purchased by enterprising transportation companies to revive the old steamer traffic on the Illinois, Mississippi, the Ohio, the Tennessee, and other western rivers, permitting tourists to take their ease on the boat and at the same time have their automobiles available for side trips over the adjoining countryside wherever the boats stopped.

THE CARIBBEAN PROBLEM

The United States has had representatives working with the British on a Caribbean commission for the last three years. The commission was organized on the theory that the two nations could coöperate with mutual profit in the development of their possessions in the area, in which nearly all the islands are in chronic distress.

The commission has just issued a report urging regional coöperation to promote tourist traffic which would be a most important source of revenue to many of the inhabitants. The commission, unfortunately, confined its discussions to economic matters. Pressing as the problems of Caribbean poverty are, they are no more important than the political problem also present.

Any American-British coöperation in the Caribbean area should have as its cornerstone a pledge of both nations to train their nationals in the islands for the independence which the better educated of the islanders already desire.

America cannot in good conscience indulge in colonialism, nor can it view with approval a continuance of colonial exploitation by other nations in an area for the security of which we are made responsible by geographic fact.

The Philippines were far less advanced educationally or economically when we finished our pacification there in 1901 than the Caribbean islands are today. In 40 years we trained the Filipinos for independence. A quarter of a century should be more than sufficient for the same task in the Caribbean. Puerto Rico, Jamaica, the Virgin Islands, and the lesser British possessions should have their independence before 1970.

BOSTON: A WARNING TO CHICAGO

The Massachusetts legislature, which is on the point of investing 30 million dollars in air and maritime port facilities in the city of Boston, has been urged by the speaker of its house of representatives to investigate the city's financial structure. Speaker Frederick B. Willis asserts that Boston is standing "at the threshold of municipal bankruptcy." He cites its tax rate of $4.25 on a $100 valuation as proof that Boston today is the highest taxed large city in the country.

Unless the Boston spenders quicken their pace, they may very soon lose that unenviable title to Chicago. Chicago's 1944 tax rate will be in the neighborhood of $4.20. The city has for a decade or more been second only to Boston in its adjusted tax rate. Tax collections in Chicago are greatly improved and the city is able to sell securities at a low rate of interest, but the causes that almost forced Chicago into bankruptcy a decade and a half ago are still present in latent form, ready to flare up again.

Tax paying in this city is still largely on a voluntary basis. Nothing serious happens to the taxpayer who fails to pay his bill. The extravagance that nearly wrecked local governments in the last depression has been revived, after a brief interlude during which the politicians had to dance to their creditors' tune, and local governments again are collecting disproportionately high sums for the services they render.

A change in the economic climate of the nation would subject Chicago to the same storms that nearly wrecked it once before.

MORTALITY OF SMALL BUSINESS UNDER OPA

Several congressmen during the debate on the extension of the life of OPA mentioned the fact that during three years of rationing and price regulation 507,100 small businesses became extinct. This embraced the years 1941 to 1943 inclusive.

The Smaller War Plants corporation undertook a survey of the mortality rate and established that the process of extinction really got going in the third quarter of 1942, when the number of small manufacturers merging or selling out their businesses reached 132 per cent of the average quarterly rate in 1939.

In the fourth quarter of 1942 the rate had reached 182 per cent of 1939; in the first quarter of 1943, 141 per cent; in the second quarter, 145 per cent; in the third, 182; in the fourth, 212; in the first quarter of 1944, 173; in the second, 223; in the third, 250, and in the fourth quarter, 282 per cent.

The SWPC did not cite these figures in reference to the operations of OPA, but used them as an occasion to beat the drums over the dangers of "monopoly" and "giants of industry." Nevertheless, it made the significant comment, "By far the greatest number of monopoly mergers occurred in the food industries. This part of the economy, which has been one of the last to develop a trend toward large scale organizations, apparently is now following the path of the conquest of the little and independent industries."

As every one knows, the worst snarl in the whole OPA operation has been in food. Small operators, bedevilled with regulations, ceiling prices, and scarcities, have been least capable of survival. Rep. Howard Buffett, citing more than 20 independent packing plants which have been sold or leased to chain stores or similar organizations, said of the tendency of small business to disappear, "The conditions which bear so unequally on them are largely the impossible regulations of OPA, which discriminate against the small business man in favor of big business."

Rep. Reed of New York, asserting that the destruction of private enterprise in 1944 had been far more rapid than during preceding years, also attributed the decline to OPA. "It must be remembered," he stated, "that behind each of these destroyed or suspended concerns a pay roll is lost."

The only dissent to the view that burocracy was principally to blame was registered by Rep. Patman of Texas, a professional enemy of chain stores. Among other implausible and disingenuous explanations of what might have happened to vanished small businesses, he offered the idea that OPA could not be at fault, because bankruptcies in 1944 were at an all-time low. The answer to that is that the small business man is sufficiently intelligent to recognize the handwriting on the wall. He will prefer to give up and get out if he can before he is wiped out.

The one virtue which may be claimed for the war time managed economy is that it has provided a verdict on state control which no one can misread. The cost of the lesson is high, even if a half million independent enterprises no longer existing are reckoned as the sole cost. We have lived thru a strange era in which the detached and disinterested brain, guided by the slide-rule, has had both the first and last word. The results of the theory of an all-wise and all-dispensing Washington are clear: It just doesn't work.

As one disillusioned congressman, resorting to Confucius, remarked of crackdown rule by burocracy, "When there are no tigers in the mountains, even monkeys proclaim themselves kings."

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

Reg. U. S. Pat. Office

KNIT TWO, PURL ONE

[How to write love poems]

Any young man who knows how to knit a sweater for his sweater girl can easily learn to write her a love poem too, for the techniques are strikingly similar. Both are based on what we call the knit-two-purl-one formula.

If you have never attempted love poems before, we recommend that you begin by trying to think of an original word meaning love. But don't worry if you fail. The word "love" itself will do—and in fact has been used by many experienced poets, both minor and major. You find it in the slicks and you find it in the pulps. It "makes the world go 'round," as some one has said.

Now watch closely while we compose before your eyes a poem [Size Six] about what Queen Victoria—or was it Ella Wheeler Wilcox?—called "the grand passion."

* * *

For a Size Six poem we shall need, of course, six lines—two for the purling and four [in pairs] for the knitting. Of the four knitting lines one will end with the word "love" and the other three will rhyme with that. It is customary to select "love," "dove," "of," and "above." For the two purling lines almost anything will serve—such as "away" and "say." We will now begin by knitting two:

What the moon above
Is dreaming of

Our poem is now one-third done, and we proceed to the next operational process. Purl one, thus:

Is not for you to say;

The rest is a simple repetition of the pattern, using different words. Again we knit two:

So rhyme your love
With a turtledove

Again purl one:

And throw the verse away!

* * *

The task is done and it remains only to separate our poem from its entanglement of instructive prose. This is done by merely reading the italicized lines and ignoring the rest. See what you have? Granting that it is not great poetry—which takes more time—one must admit that our tiny opus has form, has rhythm, has a certain nebulous nobility of sentiment, has even a fragile daintiness and charm. And we find a world of wisdom in its final line.

Not every student, perhaps, will be able at his first attempt to make a better poem than this. On the other hand we are sure no one will make a worse.

VACANT HOUSE

Too many rooms, too many rooms!
Big and gaunt, the old house looms,
Clumsily towering above the rest,
Wearing a gable upon its crest.

Too many dreams, too many dreams!
The old house ponders thwarted schemes,
Mournfully yearning for those who have flown,
Patiently waiting to reclaim its own.

Helpful Hint

Linemaster: At my grocer's they used to have [but not any more] some little discs about the size of a penny which, if you dropped one in a cup of boiling water, would turn into soup. Well! Why doesn't the OPA use material like that in making those Red Point Tokens, which are supposed to be exchangeable for beef, whatever that is? At least we'd get some nourishment.

Yon Cassius

Success at Last

Where'er you find "the cooling western breeze,"

Alexander Pope

[This is the first time, we believe, that Mr. Pope, altho he began his experiments with metrical rhyming more than two centuries ago, ever made the Line. We like to encourage such persistence not only for his sake but for the renewal of hope which his belated success may bring to others who have been depressed by considerably briefer periods of non-recognition. —Ed.]

THE FORMULA

Poems are made with the greatest of ease:
Just write a few lines like the late B. L. T.'s,
With meter and rhyme and an ultimate wheeze.
Won't you open the door and let me in, please?

On My Knees

Memo to Dr. Collins

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks will answer questions of service men, veterans, and their dependents by mail if stamped envelope is sent to 435 N. Michigan av. The Tribune's veterans' bureau, 1 S. Dearborn st., Superior 0200, gives personal interviews.]

Mrs. M. K. asks: "Will you please publish the pay scale for enlisted men and explain the additional pay for service overseas and for flying?"

The monthly base pay of enlisted men follows: 7th grade, privates, $50; 6th grade, privates 1st class, $54; 5th grade, corporals and technicians 5th grade, $66; 4th grade, sergeants and technicians 4th grade, $78; 3d grade, staff sergeants and technicians 3d grade, $96; 2d grade, technical sergeant, $114; 1st grade, master sergeants and first sergeants, $138. When an enlisted man leaves the continental United States for overseas duty or goes to sea for sea duty [such as transport service] his pay is increased 20 per cent from the date of departure until the date of return. If on flying status when in the United States, an enlisted man receives 50 per cent additional pay—$50 as private plus $25 for a total of $75. If on flying status overseas, a private would receive $50 base, plus $10 for overseas, plus $30 for flying, or $90. Enlisted men not on flying status nor receiving $50 a month extra for parachute jumping who are required to participate in regular or frequent glider flights get 50 per cent additional, but not more than $50 additional a month. Parachutists get the $50 additional if not on flying pay status. Men rated expert infantry men get $5 a month extra pay, and those rated combat infantry men get $10 extra. Distinguished service awards are worth an additional $2 a month, and from $1 to $5 is paid for special qualifications in the use of arms.

A NECK MUSCLE MAY AFFECT A HAND

THE neck contains so many vital structures that it offers a virtual paradise for those interested in anatomy. Besides acting as a passageway for the esophagus, the trachea, and many nerves and blood vessels, we find muscles which are capable of moving it in various directions, the upper vertebral column, a few ribs and several glands [the thyroid and the parathyroids]. This is considerable paraphernalia for such a small space and sometimes the crowding causes trouble.

The story of the muscle called the "scalenus anticus" is typical. This little lever runs downward from the upper vertebrae to insert itself into the first rib. In close proximity are arteries, veins, and nerves which travel into the arm on that side. Because of the strategic position of the muscle, should anything go amiss, near-by structures cannot help but be influenced.

As a result of injury, spasm may occur, followed by thickening and tautness. Another possibility is enlargement due to overexercise. The man who attempts to improve his physique by strenuous athletic procedures, or the soldier who carries a heavy pack on his shoulders, may become musclebound. Now and then, curvature of the upper spine will produce an unaccustomed strain in this region.

Whatever the source of swelling of the muscle, pressure on adjacent parts will cause irritation. In the case of an artery, the amount of blood to the arm and hand is diminished. In consequence, the skin in that area is cooler than normal. Some experience a dull, heavy feeling as tho a weight were placed on the arm; in others, distress may be constant, or present only when the member is held in a certain position. Now and then the circulation is so impaired that the tips of the fingers are in danger of becoming gangrenous.

The disability is more likely to involve the nerves. The distribution of pain depends upon which fiber is pinched. The branches going to the shoulder may be affected entirely, or those leading to the forearm, the thumb, or the index finger and the sufferer complains chiefly of numbness and tingling. The hand may become so clumsy that the patient drops things frequently, as the grip is lost; but paralysis rarely ensues.

The vein is seldom disturbed because of its location in front of the muscle. Should compression take place, the fingers feel full and stiff. In a few instances, damage to the muscle is so great that everything in the vicinity is squeezed and a combination of all these symptoms is encountered.

The victim may obtain comfort with heat and massage. If the "pulley" is in severe spasm, the injection of a local anesthetic may afford relief. Occasionally surgery is necessary and alleviation is obtained finally by severing the muscle.

Not all cases of disagreeable sensations in the shoulder and arm are due to this phenomenon. Inflammation of any of the muscles in this area [myositis] or their fibrous tissue [fibrositis], and trouble with a bursa [bursitis] are other possibilities. But this condition must be kept in mind when such manifestations arise.

ORANGE FABLE

E. H. writes: I like to eat an orange at bedtime but my friends tell me it is harmful as oranges are golden at breakfast, silver at noon, and lead at night. Is this true?

REPLY

No. Your friends are way behind the times as this erroneous advice was discredited many years ago.

SUNSTROKE POSSIBILITY

G. A. writes: If a person has once suffered from sunstroke, is he more susceptible thereafter, on exposure to the sun?

REPLY

He would not be more but just as susceptible. The factors causing the original attack would still be present.

BUT DON'T OVERDO

F. C. writes: Is it advisable for one with a newly healed duodenal ulcer to avoid strenuous exercise?

REPLY

Not necessarily, as I doubt if exercise is capable of causing the lesion to reopen. Fatigue should be avoided, however.

TUBERCULIN TEST

L. D. writes: What does a positive tuberculin test mean?

REPLY

That the individual has harbored the germ at one time or other. It does not necessarily indicate that the disease is now active.

If there were dreams to sell,
How would you buy?
Finding each shopping stop
Only a dreamless shop?
Wouldst stand in line to swell
The crowds that sigh,
Under the rose to tell,
If there were dreams to sell,
[Dreams costing plenty dough,
Hawked by some furtive Joe]
And you did need a dream or so—

No Fish Shortage Here

The delightful fish taste of Chicago's water in recent weeks prompted Inspector Fred Bennett of the Evanston police department to become counselor to cooks. "Just add a little salad oil," he suggests, "and you'll have a herring sandwich."

Notes from Land in the Pacific

Corp. Whitt N. Schultz reports that Honolulu's Sanitary Tattoo shop was placed out of bounds recently for naval and military personnel. Reason: the shop is "unsanitary." . . . A soldier out there actually is named John P. McGoldbrick. . . . Two front line GI's had just finished seeing "A Song to Remember," Hollywood's version of Chopin's life, at a Honolulu theater. First soldier: "Who was this Chopin guy, anyway?" Second: "Don't know. I don't like him. Name sounds too much like Saipan."

The army, doing its best to cope with the average soldier's propensity for collecting souvenirs, set up a tent on Okinawa called Souvenir Headquarters. Here time bombs, Jap flags, dragon masks, Jap officers' corsets, etc., are inspected. The other day, Corp. Schultz writes, a private with that Pacific island stare in his eyes brought in a jar filled with viper heads the size of baseballs. The reptiles' eyes glared balefully out. The souvenir checker, a sergeant who thought he'd seen it all before, stared incredulously. "What are you going to do with this?" he demanded. "Gonna put 'em on me mantel piece back in Brooklyn," the private replied proudly.

An elevator in an Evanston store was stuck between floors a week or so ago when a fuse blew out. The operator expected some one to notice his plight immediately and come to his help. No one did until he began to sing violently, "I wish I could shimmy like my Sister Kate." The Evanston Review, reporting this incident, also chronicles its interest in the durable lady behind the advertisment: "Woman would like ironing two days a week."

He Wanted It

For months now a couple we know have been annoyed, and amused, to find a penciled note on their car each morning: "I want to buy this. Please, how much?" They foolishly refrained from answering this wistful one, for the other night he apparently could contain himself no longer. He took the car.

HE DROOLED

Chicago, July 7—Did you ever pay 95 cents admission to a movie and then have to sit thru one of those OWI pictures? That's what we did last night. The picture, "Something You Didn't Eat," by Disney and Warner Brothers, was supposed to teach Mrs. Jones the seven basic foods, also what to serve Mr. Jones to make up his three daily balanced meals:

Breakfast: Tumbler orange juice [where can we get oranges that are not all dry pulp?]; milk, 17 cents a quart; cereal, toast, butter [24 points a pound or oleo 14 points a pound], etc.

Lunch box: Four sandwiches wrapped in waxed paper in the metal lunch box, one unwrapped sandwich with lettuce [scarce and expensive] and boiled ham [64 cents and 12 or more points a pound], milk, apple pie [where can we get and how can we afford apples; lard for pastry 12 points a pound], etc.

Dinner: The picture was in technicolor and by this time every one's mouth was watering and all gave a big "Ah" when they saw what Mr. Jones "should" get for dinner: Three large slices pot roast [where did Mrs. Jones get that, also the points to buy it with?], four browned potatoes [our stores didn't have potatoes yesterday—when they have them the limit is three pounds]. NEGLECTED DOCUMENT

Chicago, July 4—Before reading your editorial, "We Hold These Truths to Be Self-Evident," I had read the Declaration of Independence to my three grandchildren, and had resolved on the spot to make it a yearly custom. [A little contact with the spirit of '76 is mighty stimulating to the adult mind, too.]

Inquiry had revealed that the eldest, 10 years old, had never heard of it. July 4, as taught in our schools, is a day on which you have to watch out for firecrackers. History means nothing to the politicians who prostrate themselves before the twin gods—safety and security. My grandson came home the last day of school with a whole page of typewritten warnings on how to keep alive during the vacation period. The way teachers "cluck," you'd think parents and guardians had vanished from the earth.

EASTERN CONTROL OF MAGAZINES

Holland, Mich., July 3—For some time I have been concerned over the magazine situation in America and was, therefore, very pleased to read your excellent editorial in Monday's TRIBUNE. You have mentioned the effect magazines have on the public mind. The American people should look more carefully and critically at the material presented to them in the magazines. We should not only ask who the owners of these periodicals are, but who are the editors, the contributors, and what do they represent?

It seems strange that there is no good magazine, literary or otherwise, of national scope, with its origin in Chicago, or even in the midwest. Atlantic Monthly, Harpers, Life, the Post, and Collier's, Reader's Digest, the various women's magazines, as well as such obvious organs of propaganda as Free World, whatever their merits or demerits, all have their editorial offices in the east—New York, Boston, or Philadelphia. It is true that there are some educational and religious journals published in Chicago, but they can hardly claim the circulation that any of the above mentioned have, or hope to wield a similar influence.

Why should the eastern seaboard hold a monopoly on magazine publication? The heart of America lies in the midwest. The people of the midwest represent America's best interests. Why is it that these people have no voice? We complain that the east controls elections, business, literature, music, and many other aspects of life, and yet no effort is made to assert our Americanism and our own distinctive talents and interests thru a magazine or publishing house located in our own region.

Chicago is the logical place for such an enterprise to have its origin. Surely there is the wealth there to finance it; surely there is the talent to staff a business office and an editorial office for both a magazine and a publishing house, and surely there are talented writers in this area. Is there no one in Chicago, then, with the courage and vision to start a monthly or weekly that would be as solidly American as THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE is in the newspaper field?

REPORT 2 GIs GET DEATH IN RDW OVER BEAST

Senators Demand Records of Court Martial

BY PHILIP DODD
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—Two senators have demanded the records of an army court martial in China which sentenced two American soldiers to death after a dispute with Chinese villagers over a water buffalo in which a Chinese woman was killed, it was learned today.

The two soldiers, Privates James Cooper, Norwood, O., and John V. Brennan, West Hartford, Conn., were sentenced May 29, according to word received by Sen. McMahon [D., Conn.], but as far as is known here the men have not been executed.

McMahon and Sen. Taft [R., O.] have asked the war department for a report of the matter and have been advised the record of the court martial is en route to Washington, their offices reported today.

Writes to Aunt

Brennan's case was reported to McMahon June 14, the Connecticut senator said today. He said Brennan had written an aunt of his sentence but had asked her not to tell his mother. The letter was forwarded to McMahon by the aunt's priest. McMahon said he immediately asked War Undersecretary Patterson to investigate, but had not made the matter public because of Brennan's request to keep the matter from his mother.

Taft was advised of Cooper's sentence this week by the soldier's wife, who came from Ohio to report the matter. She told a reporter today her first word of her husband's plight came Saturday in a letter from him dated June 26.

"Borrowed" Buffalo

Both soldiers in their letters told approximately the same story of the dispute in which the Chinese woman was killed. They said they had been drinking and had "borrowed" the water buffalo for a ride. Chinese villagers then attempted to pull them off the animal and in the ensuing scuffle the woman received injuries from which she later died.

"I swear as God is my judge," wrote Brennan, "we never intended to kill any one . . . one old lady who was 71 years old pulled me off the buffalo and I fell on top of her. It so happened this old lady died around three hours later. Two Chinese peasants testified we beat these people on the ground and that never happened at all, but they [the court martial] took their word in preference to ours and found us guilty of first degree murder."

Brennan said in his letter he had fought in North Africa before being transferred to China and had been awarded the Purple Heart. Mrs. Cooper said her husband has been overseas 26 months.

DEAF MUTE PENS NOTE: 'I KILLED WIFE AND BABY'

Peabody, Mass., July 11 (AP)—A weeping deaf mute boxer came into police headquarters today and wrote out before Desk Officer William J. Callahan, "I have just killed my wife and baby."

David Horblit

Police hurried to the home of the man, David Horblit, 26, and found the bodies of his young wife and infant, beaten to death.

The medical examiner, Dr. J. W. P. Murphy, who accompanied Police Chief James Murphy, said the wife, Katherine, 22, also a deaf mute, and Carolyn, 22 months, had been struck repeatedly with a hammer found on the scene and that any one of the blows could have caused death.

One of a series of messages published by this investment firm to help protect the savings of the American people and in the interests of a sound American economy.

IF YOU REALLY WANT TO PROTECT YOUR FAMILY AND YOUR HOME..

...Please Read This

TODAY your family stands at a crossroads. On the path you choose will depend, in some measure, the future of your country and, in very great measure, your own future.

The choice is a simple one. It is between having foresight and realism enough to conserve what you now have—or to let it get away from you, perhaps forever.

If you choose the first path, you will, in the interest of yourself and your family, take certain steps. You will first of all retain every War Bond you have, not merely for patriotic reasons, but because, in our opinion, War Bonds are unquestionably the best single investment you can make. Further, a glance at the interest you get from them will show you that you get your best return the longer you own them—so it will pay you well to keep them now and later.

Next, you will certainly own your own home, if it is possible to buy it at a fair price; otherwise, you'll save regularly to buy one when it can be built economically.

And you will want to see that your family, as a unit, is protected by enough insurance—more necessary today than ever before. Too, a fund for the education of your children is always desirable.

Finally, you'll maintain a growing cash savings account; first, to buy the things you want now but will need just as much later, when they can be bought at reasonable prices; second, to protect yourself against emergencies.

These things we suggest to you, not merely because they help our country, but because your family will surely benefit from them, just as unwise spending and foolish speculation will hurt them.

DU PAGE COUNTY GETS LABRIOLA IN RIDE SLAYING

Mangano Stepson Loses His Plea for Writ

Paul [Angie] Labriola, 29, stepson of the slain Capone gangster, Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, was arrested in Chicago yesterday and turned over to Du Page county authorities on a charge of murdering Maurice Barad, a minor racketeer, last March 29.

Labriola, hunted since the killing, was named by Barad's widow, Florence, who also tried to implicate him in three other killings and in the hijacking of $15,000 worth of cigarets from her husband. Mangano was killed at the time of the cigaret theft. Mrs. Barad was indicted when investigation showed the cigarets were stolen and stored in a garage she rented.

Widow Put on Probation

Labriola's arrest had the appearance of being timed. The indictment against Mrs. Barad was set aside last week and she was placed on probation for three years, with permission to leave the state. Her attorney, James Burke, said she was in fear of her life.

Sgt. Timothy O'Connell of the cartage detail led Labriola into the detective bureau. He said he found the fugitive at Montrose and Clarendon avs. Labriola said he had been "out of town." He declared Mrs. Barad's statements, which filled 11 pages, were "all lies."

Lack Supporting Evidence

A petition for a writ of habeas corpus for Labriola was heard by Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of the Criminal court in the afternoon and dismissed when Assistant State's Atty. George McMahon said a murder warrant had arrived from Du Page county.

Assistant State's Atty. Alex Napoli said no evidence had been produced to support Mrs. Barad's accusations and that Cook county was willing to release Labriola to Du Page county. Barad, lured from his home in an automobile, was believed to have been killed near Bensenville, where his body was found.

SEIZE GARDENER ON MARIJUANA RAISING CHARGE

Federal narcotic agents stopped for a second look when they saw the war garden at the home of Graciano O. Razo, 41, of 3680 Milwaukee av.

The tomatoes, lettuce, and string beans were neglected, but 504 weeds, about four feet tall, showed the effects of good cultivation. The agents identified the weeds as female marijuana plants, Assistant United States Atty. Jack Arnold Welfeld told United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday.

Razo, who came to Chicago from Mexico a few years ago to work in a war plant, was charged with illegal possession of marijuana and held to the federal grand jury in bond of $1,000.

WOMAN ADMITS FAKING NAME IN THEFT OF BABY

Marion, O., July 11 (AP)—The childless married woman who took an 8 day old baby from a hospital crib confessed today that she posed as the pregnant wife of another man, Police Chief William E. Marks said.

This twist to the case developed after the baby, Jean Eileen Creviston, was restored to her socialite mother, Mrs. John L. Creviston, after a three day disappearance.

The attractive, 29 year old woman, when taken into custody yesterday, gave the name of Mrs. Phyllis Lanman, wife of Estel E. Lanman, a Mansfield, O., candy salesman. Today, before she pleaded guilty in Municipal court to a charge of child theft, she said she really was Phyllis Ann Webster, wife of Staff Sgt. Ernest Webster who is overseas, Chief Marks reported.

She told the officer, he said, that she adopted Lanman's name during a three month period in which she bought baby clothes and a bassinet and stuffed her clothing with cotton batting to feign pregnancy. After pleading guilty today to the charge of child theft, Mrs. Webster was placed in jail, unable to provide $20,000 bond. In Mansfield, Lanman vigorously denied that Phyllis was his wife. He said she was a former employe.

UNRRA SEEKING 25,000 TRUCKS TO HELP IN EUROPE

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—The united nations relief and rehabilitation administration is trying to buy more than 25,000 motor trucks in this country. The number probably will be increased by acquisitions from army surpluses.

This was announced today by Roy F. Hendrickson, UNRRA's acting director, who said most of the trucks will be used in European countries which are receiving UNRRA financial assistance—Poland, Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia, Greece, and Albania.

Hendrickson said the countries have lost most of their transport facilities and that the trucks are needed to transport relief supplies.

FIND 3 RAPISTS OF WAC GUILTY; GET 3-1-1 YEARS

Three defendants accused of raping a WAC, were found guilty last night by a jury before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward of the Criminal court, and sentenced to prison for terms ranging from one to three years.

Anthony Giampa, 21, of 840 Lytle st., said to be an ex-soldier, got a three year sentence. Nick W. Malatesta, 18, of 5421 Harrison st., and Peter Ottomanelli, 17, of 1356 Taylor st., were each ordered imprisoned for one year.

Eight Women on Jury

The jury, comprised of eight women and four men, deliberated four hours, including time out for dinner. It is believed that in determining the sentences they considered the age factor. Giampa, in addition to being the oldest, also was the leader.

Neither the WAC, who is 23 and from Oklahoma, nor the defendants showed any reaction when the verdict was read. Several military policemen hovered near the WAC. She made no comment.

One Out on Bond

Roland Libonati, defense attorney, waived a motion for a new trial for the time being, and Judge Ward set further hearing on the case for July 18, when the defendants are to be arraigned on a charge of stealing an automobile tire on the night they raped the WAC. Malatesta will remain out on bond.

The WAC testified that she was picked up May 23 by Giampa, Malatesta, and Ottomanelli, who offered to drive her to the station to get a train for Camp Atterbury, Ind. Instead, she said, they drove her around for four hours, slapped her, and then attacked her in their automobile in an alley at the rear of 424 S. Ashland blvd. The three defendants admitted driving the WAC around, but denied having raped her. They were arrested with the WAC still in their car, after they had run thru a stoplight.

MRS. ANNE E. DUFFICY

Media, Pa., July 11 (AP)—A grandmother was held without bail on murder charges early today in the death of Sandra Lee McCann, 2½, whose soldier father was killed in Italy without having seen her.

Assistant District Atty. William Toal said Mrs. Anne E. Dufficy, 44, told him "Sandra became balky" when she attempted to bathe her Monday night.

"The grandmother said she lifted the baby from the tub and 'patted' her resoundingly in an effort to make her behave," Toal said.

"These blows, we charge, caused the little girl's death," Toal asserted.

The child's mother, Mrs. Roberta McCann, employed in a Bridgeport, Conn., war plant, was reported en route to Media. Mrs. McCann is the daughter of Mrs. Dufficy.

FLIES CAPTIVE BEAR CUB BACK TO WAUKEGAN

A 6 months old black bear was a passenger in a plane in which T. R. Booth, 1725 Runyard pl., Waukegan, and A. M. Baker, 346 Ahwahnee rd., Lake Forest, returned to Waukegan yesterday from a business trip to International Falls, Minn. Baker captured the bear Monday on the edge of the International Falls airport after the mother and another cub had scampered away. In a bag up to its front legs, the bear seemingly enjoyed the flight back, Baker said. The animal weighs about 30 pounds, and will be kept in a cage on Baker's farm near Lake Forest. Baker is a paving contractor and Booth, pilot of the plane, is a real estate dealer.

Bridgeport, Conn., July 11 (AP)—Superior Judge William H. Comley today ordered a reduction to $15,000 in the $50,000 bond under which Mrs. Imogene Stevens of New Canaan has been held since the June 23 fatal shooting of Albert Kovacs, young submarine sailor.

Judge Comley's order followed a hearing attended by Mrs. Stevens, her husband, Paratroop Maj. G. Ralsey Stevens, her attorney, David Goldstein, and jail officials.

"The next problem is to try and raise the bail," Maj. Stevens said.

Mrs. Stevens is awaiting trial on manslaughter charges.

Some words fool you:

BORE means...

BORE means...

but BALLANTINE Ale & Beer always means...

Purity, Body, Flavor!

BORE means to pierce a hole with a sharp tool that goes round and round. BORE also means to weary an audience with a dull speech that goes on and on.

Yes, bore is a word that fools you. There are a good many others, but Ballantine's not among them. Ballantine always means PURITY, BODY, FLAVOR. These are the qualities symbolized by Peter Ballantine's 3-ring trade mark, the qualities that make Ballantine so much better. Enjoy a bottle this evening.

ARMY'S 'LEISURE' IN DISCHARGE OF DOCTORS FLAYED

Senator Urges 7,000 Be Released 'Promptly'

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—Sen. Johnson [D., Colo.] accused the army today of taking "a leisurely attitude" toward releasing doctors who he said are urgently needed to minister to civilians.

Sen. Johnson

Other members of a military affairs subcommittee also complained that the army has a surplus of doctors and that it should speed up their return to regular practice. The committee is investigating comparative army and civilian medical services.

Brig. Gen. Robert W. Berry, representing the war department, disclosed plans to release 7,000 doctors by next May but he insisted, under committee prodding, that he was unable to guarantee earlier demobilization of all of them.

As Soon as Possible

He said some sort of priority might be worked out to hasten their return from Europe, pledging to "do all we can to get them out as soon as possible."

He cautioned, however, that a tremendous problem is involved in the transfer of troops to the Pacific and said the army has "to keep the pressure on Japan."

Johnson, demanding the "prompt release of these 7,000 doctors," declared "the leisurely attitude of the army toward this problem is something that this committee ought not to accept lying down."

While Berry denied that the army's approach was "leisurely," Johnson said that was "the right word" and complained that "nothing has happened" since V-E day to bring about the doctors' release.

Charges "Overstaffing"

Sen. Downey [D., Cal.], committee chairman, said testimony that "the army is way overstaffed with doctors in Europe" will be presented later.

He asserted that medical service for civilians is "totally inadequate," that doctors in civilian practice are "suffering from fatigue and strain," and that people are dying because of inability to obtain doctors.

Testimony at the hearing brought out that the army, navy, and veterans' administration now have about 60,000 doctors compared to 74,000 in active civilian practice.

FIREBOAT BUSSE PLANS FOUND IN GERMAN HANDS

Two Chicago fire officials, Chief Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney, and Chief Frank C. McAuliffe of the fire insurance patrol, who are on leave of absence while conducting a survey of bomb damage in European cities for the federal government, were surprised to find in a shipyard at Hamburg, Germany, complete plans for the Chicago fireboat Fred A. Busse, McAuliffe wrote in a letter to Chicago friends.

McAuliffe wrote that while he and Mullaney were viewing the Blohm and Voss yards in Hamburg they expressed interest in a fireboat that was partly completed. Without hesitation he said officials of the yard brought out the plans and exhibited them. How the Germans explained their possession of them McAuliffe did not say.

European firemen, he wrote, are much the same as their American brethren altho he prefers the American system of fire fighting to the European.

MRS. DONNELLEY SEEKS $196,009 FROM EX-MATE

Counsel for Mrs. Helen Pauling Donnelley of 1248 Astor st. yesterday filed a petition in the Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan seeking $196,009.23 from her former husband, Thorne Donnelley, a navy commander stationed in Washington, D. C.

The petition set forth that amount is due to Mrs. Donnelley in principal and interest under his agreement when they were divorced April 13, 1931, to pay her $30,000 a year for life. It requested that the court order an investigation of Comdr. Donnelley's financial status to establish his ability to pay the back alimony and maintain the yearly payments.

The case was assigned to Judge William R. Dusher of Rockford, sitting at Waukegan, who directed the defendant's attorneys to answer the petition by Aug. 15. Comdr. Donnelley is a son of the late Reuben H. Donnelley, publisher. This action supersedes a petition filed a year ago in Mrs. Donnelley's behalf seeking $177,262.18.

GI BILL WITHOUT BONUS APPROVED BY HOUSE GROUP

Procedure for Getting Loans Simplified

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—The house veterans' committee approved a revised GI bill of rights today—but first stripped it of a bonus provision that would have given each veteran $1,040.

That proposal, sponsored by Committee Chairman Rankin [D., Miss.] would have applied to every discharged veteran regardless of whether he has a job. Under the present bill unemployed veterans can get $20 a week assistance for one year.

Committee members offered no explanation for voting down the bonus plan. It can be brought up later as a separate measure.

Clash Over Union Issue

Meanwhile, another committee approved measure—to permit veterans to take jobs in "closed shops" without joining the union—prompted two controversies on the house floor.

Rep Green [D., Pa.] criticized Rankin for "reporting the bill out without hearings or more consideration." He asked unanimous consent that it be sent back to the committee.

Rankin blocked the move by objecting. He told Green "any member present [at the committee meeting] could have demanded a roll call vote, but they didn't."

Rankin Charges Smear

Green responded that "only 12 members were present, and I'm informed the vote was only four to three for the measure."

The other dispute occurred when Rep. Celler [D., N. Y.] said that a veteran who sought to appear against the bill was "cuffed and taken into custody" in Rankin's office yesterday. Rankin shouted that the charge was a "deliberate attempt to smear me."

He denied the veteran was manhandled, but he did say an ex-service man caused such a commotion in his office that one of his stenographers called a policeman.

Assistance Plan Revised

Today's bill revising terms of the GI assistance act of last session would:

Liberalize loan provisions eliminating the present requirement that loan applications be approved by the veterans' administration.

Permit veterans to take correspondence courses as well as regular college training.

Rankin said he hopes to get the bill to the house floor next week.

Japs Couldn't Take It from Borneo Fire Bombs

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—Improvised "belly tank" fire bombs dropped by 13th air force fighter planes helped drive the Japanese from the beaches during the landings on Borneo, a fighter group leader reported today. Col. Leo F. Dusard Jr., 29, commander of the "Sunbusters" fighter group of the 13th, told a news conference the Japanese "just couldn't take it" from the fire bombs.

DISPUTES STATE ON CONGRESS ST. RENTAL MONEY

An opinion of state officials that rental money collected by the city on properties condemned for the widening of Congress st. must be used for the benefit of Chicago motorists was challenged yesterday by City Controller Upham.

He cited a 1944 opinion by Corporation Counsel Hodes that the money, $172,583, should be deposited in the city's general fund. State officials contended that because the properties were purchased with the city's share of motor fuel tax funds, proceeds from the properties should be regarded the same as the original funds.

Upham said that because of the controversy the money has not been deposited in the general fund but is being kept in a special fund.

A freight airplane capable of carrying a boxcar load of goods took off from Chicago airport yesterday for Los Angeles, Cal., loaded with more than nine tons of gas stoves. The stoves will fill priority orders in California. The plane is operated by American Airlines.

The flight, scheduled to take 10¼ hours, will help to determine standards and rates for air freight service which the air line expects to inaugurate soon. The aircraft is a Consolidated Vultee C39, especially built to carry freight, with a load limit of 18,500 pounds. It is a four motored craft with a 110 foot wing spread, a fuselage 90 feet long, and 2,000 cubic feet of stowage space. The engines develop 8,400 horse power.

Air line officials and representatives of the stove manufacturing company said that half of the ranges were shipped without being crated and thus both shipping weight and crating expense, were saved. The load was the largest single air shipment of durable goods, they said.

The board of education yesterday amended its rules to permit ex-service men and women who are not more than 26 years old to take entrance examinations for Chicago Teachers college.

Examinations for next fall's freshman class will be held Sept. 22, and are open to residents of Chicago 16 to 26 years old who are United States citizens and graduates of accredited high schools. Data required for the examinations must be filed with the board of examiners by Sept. 15.

James B. McCahey, president of the board, said the date of the examinations had been held up this year by bills introduced in the legislature which would have turned Teachers college and three junior colleges over to the state. The bills did not pass.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 heart	1 spade	Pass	4 spades
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Queen of hearts.

When a crafty attack encounters an ingenious defense, something worth writing about is bound to occur.

The contract of four spades was reached in orthodox style. South's overcall was sketchy, but since it was at the level of one and by a non-vulnerable player no exception can be taken to it. North's jump to four spades was proper. A bid of three spades would not be forcing because his partner did not open the bidding. An alternate call by North was three clubs, a jump shift which is absolutely forcing, but since there was no question of slam and since spades were suitable for trumps, there was no advantage in delaying the action.

West opened the queen of hearts and East overtook with the king, shifting at once to the seven of clubs. It required no association with the FBI to conclude that it was a singleton club. It was also quite apparent that only a club ruff would defeat the contract, since the opening bid marked East with something important in spades. But how was West ever going to get the lead in order to return a club? It must be that East is going to take a chance on his partner holding the jack of hearts and when he gets in with his trump trick, plans to underlead the ace of hearts. How could this plan be thwarted?

The declarer hit upon a scheme. Its success depended upon East holding the queen of diamonds. The club return was won in dummy and the ace and king of diamonds were cashed. Then the ten of spades was led and East covered with the queen, South winning. The jack of diamonds was then led and the heart discarded from dummy. East won the trick with the queen but had no way to communicate with his partner to obtain the needed club ruff.

Declarer was lucky you say? Yes, but he did give Lady Luck a little courteous treatment.

Guard Baby's Tender Skin During Travel

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

To continue advice about the diaper problem when traveling with your baby on a long journey, a subject begun recently.

Besides getting the necessary quantity of disposable diapers—and be sure to compare with normal home use and buy plenty—it is advisable to get what are called diaper-liners. These are sheets of petal-soft paper to put inside the disposable diaper, to protect tender skin from chafing, a condition which can occur easily in summer and which can so distress your baby that he will fret and cry continually.

Besides taking this precaution against chafing, you should have the smoothest of powders and an antiseptic baby oil. Oil is best for tender skins, tho powder could be used at times after diaper changing, as it is cool and comforting.

There is also to be had in the drugstores a marvelous and quite new salve for this purpose, made on a codliver oil base, with zinc oxide and other ingredients which are healing and antiseptic.

With these supplies you are pretty well set, except for waterproof panties, which you wouldn't use regularly at home but do need to protect your clothing and the baby's en route. Before the war, obtaining these was no problem; but even now they can be had if you look around. These are thin, well-fitting little affairs into which to fit the disposable diapers, covered with the soft "liner" to be in contact with the skin. Drugstores sometimes carry the "liners."

Pattern Fashions

One of today's patterns is a trick number, while the other is a substantial addition to the summer wardrobe. Illustrated at the top of the sketch is a basket apron, a boon to the gardener. The other design makes a princess frock with sleek lines. Style No. 2906 is designed for one size requiring a yard of 35 inch fabric. Style No. 2957 is designed for sizes 14 to 48. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 35 inch material with 2¾ yards of binding. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The summer fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Latest Sherlock Movie Is Ably Done Mystery

"THE WOMAN IN GREEN"

My Mae Tinée

As far as I could see, the title has very little to do with the film; there's a woman in it all right, but I didn't see a smidge of green and no one even mentioned the color. The woman is Hillary Brooke, and she turns in a very smooth performance, in addition to being quite a pleasant sight to see.

It's another of the Sherlock Holmes mysteries, with Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce doing their customary excellent work in their customary roles. In fact, these mysteries are just about the best thing that Universal turns out. The plots generally are pretty neat, photography is sufficiently eerie, the casts are made up of capable people, and the dialog always is intelligent and sometimes dryly humorous.

The current series of crimes which stumps Scotland Yard and brings a plea for Holmes' help centers around women. The women usually are slain rather decorously, except that the fiend always chops off one finger to remember them by. There are no apparent clews, but if you know Sherlock, you're not surprised when he noses some out in short order. Henry Daniell and Paul Cavanagh have minor roles, but they both handle them well.

Aside from the fact that both Holmes and the good Dr. Watson are frequently a bit difficult to understand, I think you'll like this whodunit.

Show Business Again

"ON STAGE EVERYBODY"

Some one at Universal must have a great yen for the show business and simply dote on stories of old troupers. Here's Jack Oakie as a song and dance man again, and Peggy Ryan once more is his daughter, with Johnny Coy as her tap-dancing boy friend.

There also is an assortment of young people who were winners in some sort of radio contest, and they all perform briefly, if not very startlingly. The skeleton for all this is the fact that Oakie as Mike Sullivan refuses to believe that vaudeville is dead, even tho he and his daughter are slowly starving on the proceeds of their act. A hard headed Irishman, he hates and reviles radio, which he believes throttled his profession, and runs about smashing every receiving set he sees. Landed in jail for such behavior, he finally lets his wealthy father-in-law take over Peggy, and her ideas of what is termed "society" in the film are just about as weird as the characters selected to portray that nebulous class. After a good deal of nonsense, plump papa Sullivan is convinced that radio is here to stay.

Oakie is amiable, as always, and Peggy Ryan and Johnny Coy are both expert dancers, altho their numbers are not particularly original or attractive. In fact, that goes for the whole picture, as far as I'm concerned.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of all this talk about bobby sexers? [Asked of girls who wear them.]

WHERE ASKED

THE ANSWERS

Lorraine Jankowski, student, 2612 Cortland st.—Why don't people stop complaining and let us wear what we please? We have the right to wear what we choose. This is a free country, isn't it? We don't wear bobby sox and jeans to church. The way some people talk, you'd think it's a matter of life or death.

Lois Palacs, press operator, 5846 Wrightwood av.—There's certainly nothing wrong with wearing bobby sox and casual clothes. What I hate to see is women in anklets and high heels. I don't approve of wearing them to work in an office but for the kind of work I do they're ideal. It's nothing to be alarmed about.

Dolores Bauman, student, 2515 Cortland st.—I think it's our own affair what we wear as long as we are not delinquent and stay within the law. Dressing as we do, in bobby sox and dungarees, is better than to be like those young girls who are always dressed up as date bait and end up drinking in some night club or tavern.

Carol Marchetti, assembly worker, 4221 Narragansett av.—When you wear bobby sox you don't have to worry about the seams being straight. There are lots of reasons why they're practical. I don't know why any one has to get upset about our clothes. People have been wearing clothes for generations.

Joan Troccoli, student, 3300 Long av.—Women who make remarks about our wearing the clothes we do probably had just as ridiculous fads when they were young. It's just a sign that they're beyond the stage where they have an imagination. It's usually women without daughters who can't understand us.

Lorraine Mosier, assembly worker, 5512 Drummond pl.—Maybe some girls do go a little off the deep end in the clothes they wear. Certainly that's their worry, not mine. So long as they're happy, enjoying themselves, and content with their position, why annoy them by making remarks?

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., July 11—"There Goes Lona Henry" takes the sound stages at Goldwyn studio as soon as Danny Kaye winds up his opus. . . . Mary Pickford, being in a buying mood, acquired an unproduced play titled "Champagne for Everybody" by Laszlo Vadnay and Max Lief to star her Mexican discovery, Armen Dariz. It's a sort of "You Can't Take It with You" about an East Indian with an Oxford accent. . . . Adolphe Menjou, Basil Rathbone, Elisha Cook Jr., and Melville Cooper have been added to Ginger Rogers' and Sam Woods' "Heartbeat." Gee, what a cast! . . . "Suddenly It's Spring" gets Shirley Temple . . . and Ida Lupino gets "Verdict." With that title should go Sydney Greenstreet and Peter Lorre. Don't they always get this verdict: "Excellent performances?" . . . My hat's off to Harry Warner, who's contributing $20,000 a year for five years to the research fund at Cedars of Lebanon hospital. Step right up, boys—who's next?

Coals to Newcastle

Hunt Stromberg wanted some luscious shots of Jane Russell, so hired a top photographer, who in turn asked Carole Crane, Steven's ex-wife, to pick up some duds and bring them over to the studio for this sitting. What do you think she brought? Those cute little ruffles worn by undeveloped gals, and the town's busting right out laughing. . . . Since Walter Wanger's productions are now called Diana, after his daughter, I wonder if he'll still produce things like "Salome, Where She Danced." Wanger had Jess Barker under contract nine years ago. Never used him. Now he's borrowed him at a big price to play opposite his wife, Joan Bennett. . . . Jacques Tourneur, who did "Experiment Perilous" for R. K. O. has been borrowed to direct "Canyon Passage."

Welcome Back, Peggy

Peggy Wood will play in "The Bride Wore Boots." She brought hers along. . . . Metro is trying to buy Belita's contract from Monogram at a pretty figure. . . . Hal Wallis' sister, Minna, is still a go-between. This time she goes between Betty Hensel and Cary Grant who meet regularly at Minna's house. . . . Betty Grable's bringing baby home while Harry James does a mess of one night stands. Somebody said, "Do you realize he'll make more money in three weeks than the President?" A pal answered, "Why not? Harry Truman can't play 'Chili, Chili Beans' on the trumpet!" . . . Tommy Dull, who used to be an office boy in a studio here, enlisted, was injured, is out of the army, and can only work outdoors, so Stu Heisler has bought him a gas station.

It's Tough on Red

Red Skelton's illness has left him in bad shape. He may be transferred out here to Birmingham hospital. . . . Alan Ladd rides his own horse in his next picture, but Anne Baxter, a champion equestrienne at 14, hasn't yet found a horse she wants to ride in "Smoky." She doesn't want to ride at all. She's had a couple of bad spills. . . . Ransom Sherman and I put up a gag on his young son who's a page boy at CBS. Says young Sherman, "You and dad have made it impossible for me to forget my first day in my first job." All we did was heckle. . . . Freddie Lonsdale, author of "The Last of Mrs. Cheney," is a house guest here with the Cheever Cowdins. He leaves soon for New York to select a cast for his new play which Gilbert Miller produces. . . . When Olivia De Havilland and John Lund finished a torrid love scene in "To Each His Own," Director Mitch Leisen turned to his star and said, "Your volume is excellent, but your pitch is off." She replied, "You mean pitch as in throwing a ball—or pitching woo?"

Thru the Looking Glass

Wispy play shoes, with no heels and no toes and very little of anything else to hold them or the human foot together, are tempting footgear in hot weather, but if you value the health and long usefulness of your dogs, you'd better wear them ONLY for play. Don't wear them for work, either at home or in the office.

The Indian maiden, who had perfect posture and moved with beautiful balance, could wear soft, heelless moccasins that gave her foot no support, but we can't. Modern living has atrophied so many of our leg and foot muscles that we've grown dependent on support; we need it and should have it, unless we are trained from birth to do without it.

When you're on your feet for long hours, either trotting about your household tasks or working at a job in a store, office, or factory, you need a shoe that supports your foot, one that's long enough and broad enough, and one that helps you distribute your weight evenly.

Too high heels will pitch you forward; no heels at all, unless you're a constant wearer of "flatties," will give you aches and pains in the calf of the leg. Too soft, flexible shoes, like sloshy bedroom slippers or some play shoes, will encourage the bad foot habits you have. If your ankles normally turn in or out, for example, the shoe with no support will give only encouragement instead of resistance.

The open toes, too, while they're cool, and often give a longer, dressier line, aren't a good feature for a work shoe. It's neither safe nor hygienic to have the toes exposed while you're on the job.

Usual Season Is Under Way at Wausaukee

BY JUDITH CASS

THE cabins on the grounds of the Wausaukee club in Marinette county, Wis., of which three dozen or so Chicago families have pleasant memories dating back for a number of years, have been opened for the season, and reunions are in progress among the summer residents holding memberships there.

The Thomas Bulgers returned earlier this week from a long week-end in their cabin, shared with their son-in-law and daughter, Lt. [j. g.] and Mrs. John A. O'Brien, and their two elder children. Lt. O'Brien just has returned from the Pacific on a 15 day leave and is using part of the time to become acquainted with the youngest of his three children, a daughter, Kathleen, born in May.

Missing from the Wausaukee scene this summer will be the Winthrop M. Robinsons and their children, who moved to Phoenix, Ariz., last week. Mrs. Robinson's parents, the Nelson L. Bucks, still maintain their cabin at the club, altho they spend more time now at their Thunder Mountain ranch in near-by Crivitz, Wis. The Bucks now are at Thunder Mountain, where they will be joined later this month by their other daughters, Mrs. Frederick D. Sauter and Mrs. John W. Taylor Jr., Mr. Taylor, and their respective children. Capt. Sauter is stationed in Missouri.

Other Wausaukee Notes

Heading the Wausaukee club as president again this year will be Col. Leslie Gordon, who just has been transferred back to Chicago from Detroit, Mich. As the Gordons are busy putting their Winnetka home in order after an absence of several seasons, they will not go to Wausaukee until August. A former president, Charles D. Sproule, and Mrs. Sproule will spend the month of August there, as will Dr. and Mrs. Paul H. Holinger.

The John C. Slades now are vacationing at Wausaukee, and so is Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, who will spend the entire summer at the club with the exception of occasional two day trips back to Chicago. The John R. Shumans are there for a six week stay. The Ralph Gatelys have made no definite plans for their annual visit to Wausaukee as both of their sons are away in service, but they may go north in August.

The Telfer MacArthurs, who were devoted Wausaukee fans for a number of years, sold their cabin a few seasons ago as they were spending most of their time in their home between Lake Forest and Libertyville. Their younger daughter, Mrs. Winfield Newton Burdick Jr., and her daughter, Julia, will return Monday from a visit in South Orange, N. J., with Mr. and Mrs. Burdick Sr. Lt. Burdick is serving with the naval reserve in the Pacific.

The MacArthurs' elder daughter, Mrs. Gustavus Babson Jr., and her three little girls are living in the Highland Park home which the Babsons purchased recently. Lt. Babson gets home on occasional week-ends, as he now is stationed in Grosse Ile, Mich., having returned to this country from 10 months of sea duty.

Birth News

Somewhere in the Pacific Lt. Edmund J. Doering II. will learn of the arrival of a second son July 7 in St. Luke's hospital. The baby's mother is the former Caroline Castle, and the new infant has been

There Are Togs for a Vacation Here at Home

BY REA SEEGER

Summer vacationists spending the official two weeks at home and looking for sleek clothes will find the smartest and most carefully made models in the specialty shops filled with satisfying sports outfits. In such a shop dedicated to women's clothes for either active or spectator sports clothes, there are dresses made for free and easy hours around a golf course, dazzling white shorts and attached tops for tennis, clothes for sailing, and outfits for riding and all other sports.

Socks, shirts, sweaters, clever jackets, long or short coats for occasional chilly days, swim suits, and dozens of spectator sports dresses make a large and varied collection from which to choose. Also included are cotton skirts ready for wear with demure little puffed sleeve blouses or sheer white or gay colors, also long sleeved shirt blouses of strong colors and of patterned cottons in checks, stripes, dots, and plaids. Classic play costumes consisting of plaited shorts securely attached to a blouse top and the companion button-down-the-front skirt are smooth examples of expert tailoring and superb fitting.

Newest of all are the many clever jackets. Some are of navy blue wool with white braid trim, others of knitted cotton, exuberantly striped in a half dozen vivid colors. These cotton knits are especially attractive. They're cool looking in summer colors and white, and weigh next to nothing, yet they are sufficiently warm for any cool night or day. Prices are surprisingly modest considering the fine quality of the cotton, the gay patterns, and the effective knitted texture.

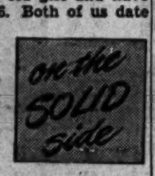
BY SHEILA DALY

[Copyright: 1945: By The Chicago Tribune]

"I'm a 15 year old girl and have a sister who is 16. Both of us date frequently, as do most of the other girls in our crowd. We've been wondering lately whether it's all right to ask fellows in after our dates. Sometimes our mother and dad are still up when we get home but sometimes we're alone. What do you think?"



If it's still on the bright side of the zero hour when you gals and your dates check in for the evening, and if either your father or mother is still waiting up, it might be fun to have the fellows in for a little while, provided the family approves. You might want to have something to eat if you didn't stop for your usual post-date hamburger and malted milk, or you may want to talk over the movie you saw together or just top off the evening with some extra chatter. But if the family has closed up shop for the night and is tucked away in its trundle beds by the time you and your dates arrive, say your farewells at the door. When he asked you out for the evening, that's just what he meant—no need to ask him in in return.

"I'm caught between two moods and don't know which to follow. Maybe you can help. I'm wondering whether a girl has a better chance to be popular if she's the rowdy, boisterous type, or if she'll make a bigger hit if she stays in the background most of the time and hopes for luck [and dateable boys] to come her way."

Fellows seldom are interested, for dating purposes, in girls who can outshout them. And just sitting back and watching what goes on isn't the speediest way of filling your free evenings, either. As usual, a middle course is the solution. A gal doesn't have to be boisterous to be fun; a joke told in a well modulated voice doesn't lose any of its punch for not having been screamed. But it does have to be told loud enough to be heard.

Valparaiso Plans Scholarships for German Youths

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS

Responsibility for a share in the reëducation of German youth by church related colleges and universities has been accepted by Valparaiso university of Valparaiso, Ind., President O. P. Kretzmann announced yesterday. He said that, for a start, 25 Lutheran students from northern Europe would be brought to Valparaiso and educated at the university's expense.

President Kretzmann explained that the university trustees contemplated return of the reëducated students to their native areas for leadership in the spiritual and civil reorientation of their people. Valparaiso university is supported by a nation-wide association of Missouri synod Lutherans with direct annual grants that largely eliminate dependence on endowments.

The Valparaiso plan for European scholarships is believed the first to be set up by a church related college in this country. Augustana college of the Augustana Lutheran synod at Rock Island has proposed a plan for Greek-Americans to set up a scholarship fund for Greek youths to study at Rock Island and then return to aid in the rehabilitation of Greece.

Valparaiso scholarships, not limited exclusively to German youth, will cover board, room, tuition, and transportation wherever necessary. Acquaintanceship with prospective scholarship winners will be made by a committee of the Missouri synod that will soon tour northern Europe.

Three European trained professors on the Valparaiso campus have been appointed by President Kretzmann to administer the scholarships. They are Professors Theodore Hoelty-Nickel, Ernest Schweibert, and Carl Lindberg.

White Collar GIRL

How's Your Pronunciation?

If I were a white collar girl with a job I'd like to keep, if I had perfected my office skills and didn't know precisely what to do next to insure my position for the future, I'd improve my knowledge of English.

Estelle Hunter, in her interesting, self-teaching course, "Practical English and Effective Speech," says: "The ability to write and speak correctly and effectively is an especially important factor in business advancement and success. An ambiguous phrase, a wrong word, a mistake in punctuation may result in misunderstandings, increased costs, and may alienate customers. For these reasons the business world demands a constantly rising standard in correct, effective speech."

Adapting one of Miss Hunter's pronunciation exercises:

Do you know how to pronounce the common word "surprise"? Do you sound the "r" in the first syllable or carelessly say "su-prize"?

How do you accent "positively"? Do you accent the first syllable [right] or the third [wrong]?

Do you know the "h" is not sounded in "forehead"?

Do you let yourself go and say "pardner" [wrong] for "partner"?

Do you twist "strictly" into the inaccurate "strickly"?

Do you mispronounce "genuine" to sound "gen-u-wine"—the last syllable to rhyme with "dine"?

Do you make the mistake of turning "coupon" into "kew-pon"?

How's your pronunciation?

Here's another "aye" in favor of feminine bosses. They're much more understanding; they are on an average much more capable than men in similar positions because they have to be superior to get the job; and you don't have to walk a tightrope of propriety with a constantly wary eye out for supervisory playfulness. Having spent nine months in an aircraft plant as float secretary, I know whereof I speak.

Selma Kaye's Glorious Soprano Gives Grant Park Preview of an Opera Star

It's fun to go out on a limb once in a while, so consider me recklessly out on one, predicting that the next smashing success in opera will be scored by Selma Kaye. Perhaps not as Leonora in "Il Trovatore," which she is to sing again with the Chicago Opera next fall, because that is one of the most difficult roles in the dramatic soprano repertory, a technical plum to be picked only by the singer in complete command of her fullest powers. Miss Kaye is young and on her way up the ladder. But the time is not far off when she is going to walk out on an opera stage, electrify an audience, and walk off that stage a star.

Grant park got a preview of what might happen last night when Miss Kaye appeared with the Grant Park Symphony orchestra under the direction of Nicolai Malko. A big, handsome girl with velvet skin and gleaming braids of black hair, she has a sumptuous voice. It is so powerful she stood far back of the microphone and even so, it sounded as big as all outdoors. It is a rich, shining soprano, which sometimes begins with a touch of the metallic, but quickly loses that alien quality in a true texture that manages, a great voice sometimes does manage, to be both solid and volatile. Its impact is thrilling, its confidence reassuring, its beauty tremendously exciting. With such gifts she ought to go straight to the top in opera. Last night I looked at the new moon over my left shoulder and wished her luck on the journey.

Miss Kaye began her performance with 'Aida's "Ritorna vincitor," an aria never quite happy out of its operatic setting. It was well done, but it struck no sparks. Then as an encore, she sang "Dich, theure Halle," from "Tannhäuser," and let the Wagnerian sopranos beware! It was a glorious performance with a climatic splendor I have not heard since Elisabeth Rethberg's prime. Later, she sang some songs, with Robert Macdonald at the piano, and tho "L'Amour, Toujours L'Amour" flowed like cream, her forte is opera. Even tho she can't yet resist a high note, whether it belongs there or not, her way with Santuzza's "Voi lo sapete" had a tingling, tempestuous fire I haven't heard since Rosa Raisa's. So you see, when I go out on a limb, I really go. And take the saw with me.

I wish I could say as many cheerful things about Remi Gassmann's Symphonic Overture in G, revived from the Chicago Symphony's golden jubilee season. But it is far too interesting a work to be obscured by murky performance. Only its sturdiness stood out, and the subtleties got lost in the orchestral shuffle. I'll stick to remembering Mr. Stock's beautiful performance, which did it justice. Mr. Malko had better luck with Schubert's "Unfinished," which went pleasantly enough, and Wagner's Venusberg music and finale from the Overture to "Tannhäuser" had some of the most beautiful playing of the park season, tho the conductor looked like a mixmaster in the process and only a clairvoyant orchestra could possibly have known what he wanted.

Michigan City Opera Opening to Draw 7,000

Saturday evening will be a night for pretty Joanne Jennings, 17, of Whitewater, Wis., to remember. She will make her operatic debut then in the beautiful natural setting that is the International Friendship Gardens at Michigan City, Ind.

Joanne Jennings

The young coloratura will sing the role of Gilda in "Rigoletto," with George Czaplicki in the title role and Michael Bartlett as the duke. The presentation also will feature the Bernice Holmes ballet and Chicago Opera chorus. The performance will mark the opening of the 1945 summer-musical season under the direction of Anna Fitzu. More than 7,000 persons are expected to attend. The curtain will rise at 8 p. m.

Operatic attractions have been given for several years in the famed gardens. Thousands have heard them, while sitting under the trees looking out over a star-reflected lagoon. The stage is centered on an island in the lagoon, and the Chicago Opera company orchestra under the direction of Jerzy Bojanowski will play the score from an anchored raft.

On July 28 Jarmila Novotna of the Metropolitan Opera company will appear in the role of Marie in "The Bartered Bride," with Anthony Marlowe, also of the Metropolitan, singing the part of the stutterer.

Other musical presentations at the gardens will include the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company extravaganza on July 21 and the regional musical contest Aug. 4 held in cooperation with the Chicago Music Festival, scheduled in Soldiers' field two weeks later. Kenneth Resur, the Carillco band, and the Carillco chorus under the direction of Harry S. Walsh, director of the Northerners, will feature the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company extravaganza.

'The Wicked Mrs. Steel'

INSTALMENT XXIII.

NEAR PANIC

"You're not ventilating anything—you're all behaving like malicious children." Ralph went on to plead. "Can't you see what you're doing? Each of you was cheated into the belief that you would inherit all that money. Each of you played with the idea of murdering her. I often felt like murdering her myself, with a hundredth of your provocation. There was never any danger of any of us actually doing it. But now you are jumping at this trivial business of the missing tablets to fasten your own secret desires on some one else. It's pure chance it happens to be Gillian."

Before Ralph could answer, Ruth came in. She went over to the window. In the road, Mr. Tollerman was thrusting thru a bunch of some 50 persons.

"Who rung the bell?" she demanded.

"I did." Simon emitted a rumbling cough. "We wish you to tell us in your own way all that happened last night when Miss Beynon asked you to take the sleeping draught to Mrs.—to poor Mrs. Steel."

"She didn't. She wanted to take it up herself, only Margaret was in one of her tantrums and I thought I'd better. And what's it got to do with you, Simon Steel?"

While Simon was recovering, Ruth turned to Gillian.

"What's he getting at about that sleeping draught, Miss?"

"There are five tablets missing, Ruth," answered Gillian. "Mr. Steel wants to find out what happened to them."

"Ah! He was always poking his nose in where he had no business to. Does he think I've stolen them?"

"Being impertinent to me, my good woman, will not help you. Those five tablets might have caused your mistress' death."

"They might have. But they didn't." Again the cackling chuckle. "Margaret Steel died in her own bed. In her sleep."

"You've heard the doctor say that," put in Lyle. "Got to account for the tablets all the same."

"Well, as me and Miss Beynon don't know, you can ask Miss Velerie, here."

"How dare you bring my name into it!" shrilled Valerie.

"It's Simon's fault," said Ruth indifferently. "But you was in here alone with her at 10, Miss Valerie, because I heard Miss Beynon go up to her room."

"That doesn't prove anything," Valerie was clear headed. Believing that she had seen the five tablets swallowed, she reasoned that Mrs. Steel, disturbed by Ralph Hanshew's call, had temporarily held off the effects of the fatal dose. Gillian's subsequent behavior seemed a heaven-sent red herring to drag suspicion from herself.

"Miss Weston," began Ralph, "perhaps you will tell us—"

"It's no good asking me a lot of questions," cried Valerie, her panic returning. "I always contradict myself—and besides I know nothing of all this."

"I suggest that we must all give all the help we can," pressed Ralph. "To begin with, let me say I no more suspect that you murdered Mrs. Steel than I suspect myself—"

"Or Gillian Beynon suspects herself!" Agnes Steel's voice was a tense half whisper.

"Did Mrs. Steel take any of the drug, or handle it, in your presence?"

"I don't know," answered Valerie. "Or Gillian Beynon suspect herself!"

The apparently vacuous remark was repeated. All turned to Agnes.

"You need not ask anybody any more questions. Everybody is telling the truth, including Gillian Beynon." The voice was now high pitched and rasping. "She doesn't know where those five tablets went. I know where they went. They went into Aunt Margaret's glass, and they killed her. And Gillian Beynon put them there, whether she suspects it or not."

"Agnes has gone nuts!" sniggered Lyle.

"I thought some one would make that idiotic remark. Perhaps you all think I am mad—that is because you are all very ignorant and never read anything to improve your minds. It was people like you Aunt Margaret wanted to educate, not only the children. I expect Mr. Hanshew. He knows that what I am saying is scientific."

"Well, really, I'm afraid I don't," said Ralph tolerantly.

"Yes, you do. You said practically the same thing yourself. You said each of us had played with the idea of murdering Aunt Margaret. It's true. I played with the idea myself. But people brought up like us can't commit murder. Whatever our dream-selves tell us to do, our conscious brains won't let us do anything outrageous. And so, if murder has to be done, we do it without our conscious brains knowing it."

"That's a new one on me," guffawed Lyle. "Got it out of a book didn't you, Agnes!"

"Who gave all this evidence against Gillian Beynon?" ranted Agnes. "Gillian Beynon herself. Because she thinks she's innocent. Why, she even told us she noticed the phial had too few tablets in it! That was her conscious brain. But it was her subconscious brain that put the tablets in the milk."

"Sit down, Agnes! You're making a fool of yourself," roared her father.

"You made her promise to destroy that will. It was too great a strain on her. She could no more throw that money away than any of us could. When the chance came, her subconsciousness seised it, but her conscious brain would not let her admit that she was committing murder."

"And do you believe," demanded Ralph, "that this precious bunkum about the subconsciousness amounts to proof of anything at all?"

"The police will call in proper medical scientists to hold a post-mortem examination. They will provide the kind of proof even my father can understand. And then you'll all feel foolish for laughing at a dowdy schoolmarm, who happens . . ."

"Look out! There's something going on outside!" shouted Lyle Weston, and ran to the window. "Hundreds of 'em! And they've broken into the garden!"

Lyle had exaggerated the numbers.

A Victory Garden Boiled Dinner

—A little meat flavor goes a long way when cooked with fresh vegetables. Such a dish makes a "homey" dinner which many a man will fondly recall as "just like Mother made." So why not yield to "his" whims and give your scanty red-point budget a treat at the same time?

An Attractive Boiled Dinner... stretches meat flavor

1. Cover 1 lb. brisket with 6 cups cold water
2. Add 1 tsp. salt, cover and simmer (don't boil) until almost tender (3 to 4 hours); skim off extra fat.
3. Add 6 or more potatoes, 6 or more onions, 6 or more carrots and continue simmering until tender.
4. About 15 min. before these vegetables are tender, add a head of cabbage, cut in sixths or eighths.
5. Arrange meat and vegetables on a warm platter and thicken the cooking liquid with a paste made of flour and water, adding Wilson's B-V as needed to give extra meat flavor to the gravy.

Serves 6.

---Clip Recipe Here---

Ahead of the Times?

If your Victory Garden hasn't progressed far enough to give you all of these vegetables, you'll find them on the market and at a reasonable price.

• • •

It's Accommodating

Beef flank or chuck may be used instead of brisket; in fact, this recipe will accommodate itself to any type of boiling beef your dealer can furnish. If you are from New England, Certified Corned Beef Brisket will be your choice. (Do not add salt when cooking corned beef.)

You may add turnips and beets, if you like, to your vegetables, but do cook and serve the beets separately, peeling them after they are cooked.

Start the meal with a refreshing B-V tomato juice cocktail (1 tsp. Wilson's B-V dissolved in 1 tbsp. hot water and added to 1 cup chilled tomato juice); serve milk as the beverage, add a cooling fresh fruit salad with iced watermelon for dessert and your meal will have a cooling over-all effect.

How Do You Rate?

If you're wise, you'll budget your red points so there won't be a meat famine in your home the last week of the month. Haven't you noticed there is often a better selection of meat in the markets during the last part of the month? This is because many homemakers spend their stamps too fast the early part of the month and so have none left the last week. It's as poor a policy with points as with money, believe me.

Yours for wise budgeting,

George Rector

Miss Sears has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander N. Jerrems in Los Angeles. As soon as Mr. and Mrs. Sears arrive, plans will be made for the ceremony, which will take place in the Wee Kirk of the Heather in Hollywood.

Here and There

About 50 members of the Arden Shore association met at the Washington Park race track yesterday to make initial plans for the annual Arden Shore ball before enjoying an afternoon at the races. The date of the party has been set for Oct. 27. It will be a dinner-dance in the Drake hotel, with Mrs. James O. McKinsey as general chairman. The association's August meeting will be moved ahead to July 23, the date of the annual association picnic at the Arden Shore camp in Lake Bluff. Mrs. McKinsey will announce committee heads at that time.

Patients in Gardiner General hospital enjoyed a games and dancing party from 6:30 to 8:30 p. m. yesterday given by 100 members of the Chicago chapter of the Junior Army-Navy Guild organization. Senior board members who assisted included Mrs. Ralph A. Bard, Mrs. Frederick A. Preston, Mrs. Robert E. Wood, and Mrs. Henry G. Taylor. Mrs. Frank J. Van Wyk is chairman of the entertainment committee.

The Opera Guild Juniors will give their first party in the Opera Guild room at Great Lakes at 7 o'clock tonight. On the program will be Miss Floria Campbell and Miss Betty Jeffries, who will sing, and Miss Jean Graham, pianist. Miss Beth Coleman is chairman of the party, which will be attended by patients in the hospital. Refreshments will be served.

ENGINEER POINTS TO LAKE FERRIES DOCKAGE SPACE

LSTs May Be Bought to Expand Service

BY GEORGE TAGGE

Ample dock space will exist for expanded lake ferry service after the war, Martin Ottershagen, city dock engineer, said yesterday. Proponents of the service hope that LSTs [tank landing ships] can be purchased cheaply enough to encourage business ventures providing jobs for navy veterans.

It is reported that the navy plans to move out of city-owned Navy pier in 1947. Sides of the steel and concrete structure provide 6,000 feet of dockage. North of the pier is 1,500 feet of wharf space and to the south is another 700 feet.

Training Pier Available

Also between Navy pier and the river is a wooden pier built by the navy for its airplane carrier training ships. This measures 500 by 33 feet and provides 1,000 feet of wharf.

"This would be ideal for LSTs in commercial use," Ottershagen said.

"I like the idea of having numerous medium size ships which give more frequent service and touch more ports than a few big ships."

The Ogden slip, just north of the river a few blocks from its mouth, is conveniently located, he said. Privately owned, most of the slip facilities are leased by the North Pier Terminal company.

The closed end of the slip, best suited for LSTs which receive and discharge cargo thru the bow, is not being used at all now, said W. W. Huggett, president of the terminal company.

LST Will Be on Display

An LST will be on display just west of the Michigan av. bridge in September. A bad feature of this location is that an LST would have to be swung cross-channel to take vehicles into its garagelike interior, Ottershagen pointed out. He also said a wharf which would require no bridge openings would be preferable.

Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said the city probably would be glad to get revenue from renting wharf facilities along the lower level of Wacker dr. It is 470 feet from the Wabash av. bridge to the Michigan av. bridge, but to the west there is only 320 feet between bridges.

Capt. Paul S. Goen, navy supervisor of LST construction at Seneca, Ill., said that while LSTs are not fast [10 miles an hour], this should offer no objection for overnight trips across the lake. Speed could be doubled, he said, by installing steam turbines in place of the twin 900 h. p. Diesel engines, but it would be necessary then to lengthen the craft by 50 feet to retain present cargo capacity.

July 11, 1945

THE farmer who does a perfect job of harvesting hay has to be a combination weather forecaster, machinist, personnel expert, chemist, carpenter, and quick change artist. All these talents have been portrayed in the harvest picture on the Wheaton and Fox River farms this season.

The men on the Wheaton farm have facilities for putting hay in the silos, baling it in the field, storing it loose in barns, or storing it in semi-cured condition in a ventilated mow. The choice of harvesting methods varies according to variety of hay, weather, lushness of growth, number of workers available, and moisture content of the hay stems.

Silo Ranks First

Based on this year's experiences in the hay fields, the men on the Wheaton farm have reached the following conclusions on the subject of harvesting hay in northern Illinois:

1. The silo is the logical storage place for the earliest cutting of alfalfa. Numerous rains are common in June, resulting in damage to field cured alfalfa. With a field hay chopper, alfalfa can be cut and blown into a silo in the middle of a rainstorm, so there is no danger of weather damage with this form of June harvest.

Ventilated Mow Second

2. The ideal way to store hay from a first cutting of alfalfa that cannot be stored as ensilage is in a ventilated hay mow. Few farmers now have such equipment, but the idea of mow ventilation has been so enthusiastically received that it seems certain most modern farms will have these installations in the post-war era. One mow on the Wheaton farm has been ventilated, and storage of hay in this mow will be started in the near future. This method of storage will be outlined in a future article in this column.

3. With the silos filled from the first cutting of alfalfa, and a portion of the ventilated mow filled from the same cutting, there still will be space in the ventilated mow for part of the August legumes. After the ventilated mow is filled with chopped hay, any remaining legumes will be baled for storage in other mows on the farm.

★ The GARDEN ★

JULY and August being the dry months in this region, gardeners who want to assure maximum growth of vegetables will take precautions against unnecessary loss of ground moisture.

Removal of weeds conserves moisture in two ways, mainly by eliminating plants that consume water. Secondly, the gardener hoeing weeds just below ground level loosens the topsoil and creates a soil mulch that reduces capillary movement of water thru the ground. Many gardeners hoe, or operate a wheel cultivator or rotary cultivator between rows, even when no weeds are present. Breaking of the topsoil crust and maintenance of a fine soil surface are reflected in added vegetable growth.

Other methods of mulching will be discussed tomorrow in this column.

CATTLE GRAZED IN SOUTHWEST COME TO MARKET

BY GAIL COMPTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Kansas City, Mo., July 11—The first loads of cattle fattened on the famous blue stem grass lands of Oklahoma and Kansas have arrived in this city's market. This is the type of cattle which will provide much of the nation's meat in coming months, cattlemen said today.

The hills of Kansas and the Osage pastures of Oklahoma are carrying approximately 380,000 head of cattle. The animals are shipped to these grass sections in the spring and gain 200 to 350 pounds on the lush and nutritious green feed. They begin to come to market at this time and will continue to arrive until September. The heaviest movement occurs in August.

"These grass fat cattle will furnish a major part of the consumers meat during the summer months," Lester Ryon, manager of the producers commission association, said today.

Feed Lots Emptied

"Corn belt feed lots are pretty well emptied now and will not take in any large numbers of feeders until fall," he said. "Thus the public will have to depend largely on the grass fattened cattle for their beef."

The blue stem grass cattle usually make only grade B carcasses so there will be few prime cuts of meat available this summer, commission men said. Under ordinary conditions it would be possible for corn belt feeders to buy these animals, fill them with corn, and convert them into A grade carcasses. Office of price administration ceilings, however, make it impossible, feeders said.

"These grass cattle should sell between 11 and 12 cents a pound, according to the drove compliance costs of packing concerns. They are selling, however, for 13 and 14 cents a pound which puts them out of the feeder's reach," one commission man said.

Animals Smaller Now

The blue stem country, in past years, was filled with three and four year old steers. The big frame of these aged steers produced a high tonnage of beef. Now such cattle largely have disappeared and the age and weight of the grass animals is less. This results in a considerable loss in beef tonnage, cattlemen said.

The reason many of these cattle are not going to the feedlot is explained in the operations of a feeder on the market today. He contracted for a drove of cattle off the grass ranges at a fair price. He could have sold them directly to a packer and shown a profit of approximately $17 a head. Instead he fed the animals for 100 days to increase their weight and ended with a profit of only $1.85 a head. The uncertainty of any profit at all under OPA regulations will keep him from trying it again, he said.

ARMY AND NAVY BILKED OF MEAT, U. S. SUIT SAYS

Criminal information charging 71 violations of the war food administration's order to slaughterers to set aside a percentage of all their meat for army and navy consumption was filed before Judge William J. Campbell in federal District court yesterday against the Streator Meat Packing company of Streator, La Salle county, and two of its officers.

The officers are Chicagoans: Meyer Ditlove, 5556 Van Buren st., president, and Abe Ordman, 1916 S. Hamlin av., secretary-treasurer. Ditlove and Ordman and a third officer were fined $400 each in federal court April 13, 1944, for charging more than office of price administration ceiling prices, and their company recently settled an OPA treble damage suit with a payment of $12,500.

In other informations filed in federal court Henry Oedzes, 16 E. 123d st., operator of a slaughter house in Dixmoor, was charged with selling 1,000 pounds of meat without receiving ration coupons at prices 10 to 13 cents higher than OPA ceilings, and Albert O'Neill, a slaughterer at 111th st. near Lake Calumet, was charged with selling 1,500 pounds of meat without ration coupons at excessive prices.

3 OWNERS FINED FOR VIOLATING FIRE ORDINANCE

Three property owners were fined yesterday by Judge Erwin J. Hasten in License court on charges of fire violations. George Poupitch, owner of a 50 room boarding house at 2366-2370 Clybourn av., was fined $100 and costs after testimony was given he was using oils in a small business venture in his basement. A motion to vacate will be heard Aug. 8. A fine of $25 was placed against Phillip Hammer, owner of an apartment hotel at 5313-5315 Lake Park av., for alleged failure to provide proper exit signs and an adequate sprinkler system. Mrs. Martha Dzienglewicz, 1643 W. 38th pl., also was fined $25 on charges that her back yard was covered with rubbish.

World Air Capital Union Is Organized by Workers

Mechanics employed by United Airlines yesterday organized a new local of the International Association of Machinists [AFL], which won an election held by the national labor relations board April 25. The new local was named World Air Capital lodge, No. 1478. Raymond Frost was elected president; John Dauter, vice president; Charles Beutell, recording secretary; Leo Given, financial secretary, and Robert Tanner, treasurer. Headquarters of the lodge are at 6005 S. Cicero av.

U. S. CAN'T FEED REST OF WORLD, SAYS ANDERSON

New York, July 11 (AP)—Agriculture Secretary Anderson appealed today for public understanding of the food problem and promised to report whether shortages resulted from the failure or nature or "official negligence or stupidity."

"I have no sympathy with the notion," he said, "that it is any part of the function of a public official to protect the people from the truth."

In a speech before the Advertising Federation of America, the new secretary said the nation and the world must realize that the demand for food exceeds the supply.

"America can't feed the world," he said. "We've got to make that clear and positive from the outset or we are inviting an awful lot of misunderstanding, trouble and ill will. But we must do what we can."

More Belgians Will Leave Today to Visit Leopold

BRUSSELS, Belgium, July 11—A new delegation of Belgians led by Regent Prince Charles, plans to depart tomorrow for Salzburg, Austria, where King Leopold has been weighing his abdication decision for nearly two months, it was learned today.

PRICE VIOLATION INJUNCTIONS HIT 10 LIQUOR SHOPS

Temporary injunctions forbidding over-ceiling sales were entered in Circuit court yesterday against 10 retail liquor stores charged by the Chicago area office of price administration with price violations.

Stores ordered by Judge Julius H. Miner to halt over-ceiling sales were Economy Grill, 312 E. 47th st.; Steven's Liquor store, 6017 S. Kedzie av.; City Liquor store, 4255 S. Cicero av.; Savoy Liquor store, 4659 State st.; Cooper's Liquor store and tavern, 326 E. 58th st.; Crown Wine and Liquor store, 3424 Sheffield av.; White Front Food shop, 936 E. 63d st.; House of Paradise, 673 S. State st.; Marquette Liquor Center, 3014 W. 63d, and Checker Liquors, 2503 Clark st.

Cases against five other liquor retailers similarly charged were postponed for later hearings.

One of Four Assailants of Policeman Captured

John Gibbs, 30, of 3230 Prairie av., one of four Negroes sought for an assault Tuesday night on Policeman Leo Brown of the Pekin Inn station, was arrested yesterday at 35th st. and Michigan av. by Capt. William Doyle of the Pekin Inn station. The Negroes knocked the policeman down, beat him, and fled with his gun.

PLANTING TIME OF VEGETABLES NOT YET ENDED

New plantings of carrots, beets, snap beans, and other quick maturing vegetables still can be made in northern Illinois, Prof. Lee A. Somers, vegetable gardening specialist of the University of Illinois college of agriculture, said yesterday. He spoke before community garden chairmen in the People's Gas building, 122 S. Michigan av.

Prof. Somers pointed out that aphids on tomato plants have been persistent this season. He recommended nicotine sulphate and said greatly affected plants should be destroyed.

BAN HORSE TRAVEL; A. L. TO REVISE SCHEDULE

16 Advance to 2d Round of Play

BY CHARLES BARTLETT
(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

Dayton, O., July 11—The 27th National Professional golf tournament got down to man to man business this bright day at the Moraine Country club, and when the firing was over tonight, 16 men survived for tomorrow's program of eight second round battles, all at 36 holes. Those 16 do not include the defending champion, Pvt. Bob Hamilton of Fort Lewis, Wash., nor two of the show's top pre-tourney choices, Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Sanford, Me., and Sgt. Ernie [Dutch] Harrison of Dayton's Wright field, all three being shunted to the sidelines.

The ensemble for the second round, however, still includes several other redoubtables, among them the co-medalists, Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., and Johnny Revolta of Evanston, Ill., Denny Shute of Akron, O., twice a winner in this wearing party; Sam Byrd of Detroit; Ky Laffoon, Chicago veteran, and Brothers Turnesa, Master Sgt. Jim of New York's Halloran General hospital, and Mike of White Plains, N. Y.

Johnson Upsets Harrison

The main reversal of the advance form charts was the 1 up triumph scored by slender, mustachioed Teri Johnson, former Illinois resident, who is now stationed in Norristown, Pa. Forty year old Teri dashed into a 5 up lead on the first 18, over Sgt. Harrison, the local favorite. The Sarge came back in the afternoon, gradually whittling down Johnson's margin until the match was squared going to the 35th. Here Johnson went 1 up with a birdie, and clinched the match with a half on the 36th.

Jack Grout, the bespectacled, 35 year old Oklahoma native who is now pro at Chicago's Butterfield Country club, sent Hamilton out with a display of well nigh perfect golf. Jack, playing in his third P. G. A. event, was held to a 1 up advantage by Pvt. Hamilton thru the first 18, Bob coming home with a quaint record of six bogeys, six pars, and six birdies, one of these being a 75 foot chip shot from back of the ninth green. Grout then fashioned a 3 up margin thru the 27th, took the 28th, and after surrendering the 30th, captured the next two to end the match, 5 and 4. Tonight Grout said he hopes his victory will help express his thanks for the purse with which Butterfield members sent him to the tournament.

Doser Beats McSpaden

Revolta made quick work of gaining a place in tomorrow's schedule of eight second round battles. The curly haired Revolta coasted to a 10 and 9 triumph over Frank Kringle of Linden, N. J.

One of the first favorites to fall in a tournament which is perennially loaded with upsets was McSpaden, runner-up for the 1937 championship and second leading money winner of the 1945 tournament campaign. Jug

TRIPPI, GEORGIA HALF BACK, TO JOIN ALL-STARS

He May Start Game Against Green Bay

All-Star Roster

THE list of college football players who have accepted invitations to join the All-Stars for the game Aug. 30 in Soldiers' field with the Green Bay Packers follows:

TACKLES—Glen Burreis, Tulsa; Clyde Flowers, Texas Christian.
GUARD—Pat Filley, Notre Dame.
CENTER—Gordon Appleby, Ohio State.
HALF BACK—Boris Dimancheff, Purdue; Sgt. Charles Trippi, University of Georgia.
FULL BACK—Sgt. Ernie Bonelli, Pittsburgh.

BY WILFRID SMITH

Chicago football fans never will forget Sgt. Charles Trippi, former University of Georgia half back who starred in the 1943 Rose bowl game when Georgia defeated U. C. L. A., 9 to 0. Trippi reached competitive heights in last year's All-Star game in Dyche stadium when, in the final minute, he narrowly failed to catch a pass from Lt. Glenn Dobbs which would have turned the 24 to 21 defeat by the Bears into victory.

Trippi previously had demonstrated his speed and sound play for 50,000 fans and only he could have come close to getting under Dobbs' long throw. Trippi now has accepted an invitation to join the 1945 All-Star squad and it is quite likely he will appear in the back field which will open the game with the Green Bay Packers in Soldiers' field on the night of Aug. 30. The former Georgia half back received this honor last year along with Dobbs, Creighton Miller of Notre Dame, and Lou Saban of Indiana.

Charley Does Everything

There isn't any phase of football at which Trippi is not proficient. He is a magnificent open field runner, a dependable kicker and passer, but above all his speed and shiftiness make him a preeminent pass receiver. Perhaps the greatest tribute to his all around ability was an assignment as right half back to start the game with the Bears when injuries depleted the college squad. This also permitted Dobbs to open the game at left half.

While Trippi played only one year at Georgia, southern coaches agree that no sophomore ever began competition in the Southeastern conference with greater promise. He climaxed that year in the Rose bowl where he gained 110 yards in 27 plays.

Trippi's longest run while playing for Georgia was 86 yards against Georgia Tech. In that same season he completed 27 of 53 forward passes. Since then, with the exception of the All-Star competition, Trippi's football has been confined to service teams. He now is stationed at Drew field.

He's a Pennsylvania Boy

Trippi is 23 years of age, weighs 187 pounds, and is 6 feet tall. He also plays baseball, winning an award while at Georgia, and many experts believe he has a future in professional baseball if he wishes. When he leaves military service he will be eligible for two more athletic years at the University of Georgia. Trippi's home is in Pittston, Pa., where he attended high school.

More than 50 college men, who never have played professional football, will be on the All-Star squad which will assemble at Northwestern university Aug. 12 to begin drills for the game with the Packers. If favorable replies are received from the last letters of invitation the squad may number 60. It is apparent now that the caliber of the college group will at least match that of any other of the war years.

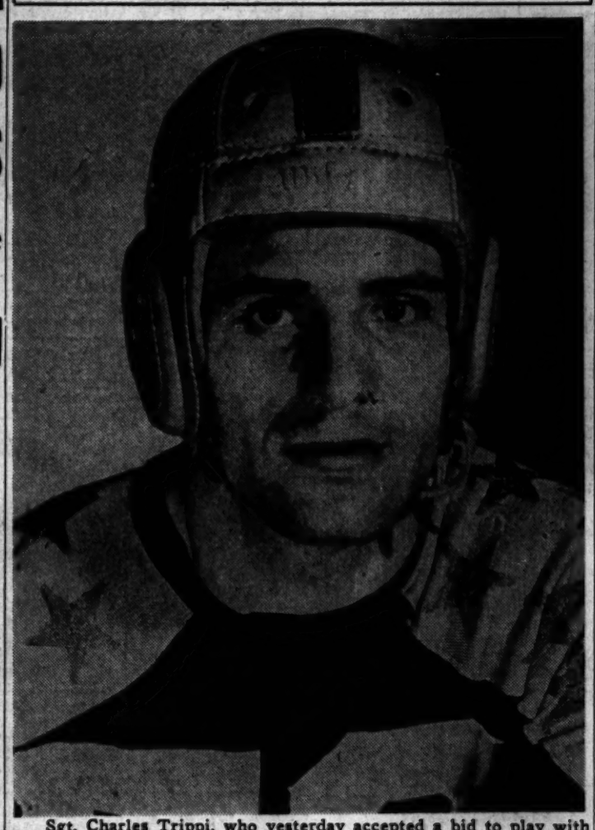
Joins Babe Dimancheff

The name of Babe Dimancheff, Purdue's star last fall who led the Western conference in scoring, is the only other back previously announced. Trippi and Dimancheff will be as fast a pair of half backs as any coach would desire. Dimancheff was a sprinter on the Boilermakers' track team and scored in the Big Ten meet last May.

Call for Musicians

MUSICIANS who wish to join the College All-Star band, which will appear in Soldiers' field the night of the All-Star game, Aug. 30, are asked to communicate with Ray Dvorak, director of bands at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wis.

HE'LL CARRY BALL FOR ALL-STARS



Sgt. Charles Trippi, who yesterday accepted a bid to play with the College All-Stars against the Green Bay Packers the night of Aug. 30 in Soldiers' field. Trippi was a sophomore back field sensation for the University of Georgia before entering military service.

CUBS PLAY HOST TO BRAVES IN 2 GAMES TODAY

BY EDWARD BURNS

The league leading Cubs will get back to pennant grabbing business this afternoon when they meet the dear Boston Braves in a double header in Wrigley field. Altho the Braves showed renewed verve against the Pirates after the pillaging Cubs had left Boston last week, there are good reasons to suspect the Cubs will do all right in this afternoon's double engagement. Two of the reasons are Hank Wyse, winner of 10 contests this season, despite a 10 day visit with his Tulsa draft board, and Claude Passau, also winner of 10, nine in succession since these same Braves beat him 3 to 2 in a six inning, rain soaked encounter in Boston on May 13.

Passeau Last to Stop Holmes

Wyse, too, has been beaten by the Braves in Wrigley field, in the first game of a double header on June 3. But that was a long time ago, and Bob Logan held the Cubs to one run. Logan, by the way, was the losing pitcher of the Cub victories in Boston on July 4.

And speaking of June 3—it was in the second game of the double header that day that Tommy Holmes, the National league's batting sensation, was last held hitless. That day Passeau held the Braves to two hits in a 3 to 1 Cub victory. Since June 3 Tommy has hit safely in 37 straight matches.

Cubs Won't Face Cooper

In Boston last week Wyse beat the Braves, 3 to 2, on seven hits, one of them by Holmes. In the opener of the series Passeau yielded 10 hits but that total wasn't very significant—the Cubs won the game, 24 to 2.

The Cubs are much too good sports to get comfort out of a rival athlete's physical misfortunes—but they did make note of an item from St. Louis saying Pitcher Mort Cooper is there and will be ready to pitch against the Cardinals. Thus Mort, who delights in teasing the Cubs, will not be available in the series opening this afternoon.

Chicago Turf Leaders Calm on ODT Ruling

Officials of the five race tracks in the Chicago area—Arlington Park, Washington Park, Sportsman's Park, Hawthorne, and Lincoln Fields—could only speculate yesterday on the effect the office of defense transportation's order against shipment of horses will have on future race meetings.

Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Arlington and Washington Parks, which are conducting a 64 day coördinated meeting at Washington Park, voiced the opinion that clarification of the ruling will have to be made before any one connected with Chicago racing can speak with any authority.

400 Stabled 10 Miles Away

Lindheimer, however, did say that the order will have no effect on the current program unless the 400 horses stabled at Lincoln Fields, 10 miles away, will not be permitted to continue activities at Washington Park, to which they move by van to fill their daily engagements.

[The ODT said the ban did not include transportation of animals by private trucks or trailers.]

Washington Park itself has about 1,000 thorobreds on the Homewood grounds, among them many of the nation's better performers, which under the ODT ruling must remain there at least until the close on Sept. 6 unless they are shipped by private truck or trailer.

Bidwill Sees No Obstacles

Charles Bidwill, chairman of the board of the Chicago Business Men's Racing association, operators of the Hawthorne track, said last night in Miami, Fla., that both Hawthorne and Sportsman's Park would be able to hold fall meetings.

"As long as the ODT ban permits horsemen to van their horses in privately owned vehicles I don't see how the ruling will affect us," Bidwill said. Hawthorne is located at 35th st. and 52d av. and Sportsman's Park at 33d st. and 52d av.

Status Is Ambiguous

Chicago ODT officials said that the status of private trucks carrying animals was ambiguous. However, Mel G. Barnes, a district manager of the ODT, pointed out that the only way such truck owners could obtain gasoline would be to obtain a certificate of war necessity from the ODT for a quarterly allotment of gas.

He explained that the allotment is made by the ODT and the ration currency issued by the OPA after a statement is made as to the use to which the truck is put.

James F. Riley, acting director of the metropolitan area OPA, said that trailer users were entitled to a B book with gasoline to last 650 miles per month if they could prove they made their livelihood by horseracing.

Rail and Truck Trips Stopped by ODT Order

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—Horse racing suffered a new blow today as the government prohibited transportation of racing and show animals by railroad and common or contract truck carriers. The effect is to confine horse racing to tracks now operating, except in cases where arrangements can be made to move the horses by means not falling under the ban.

The orders were issued by the office of defense transportation and the interstate commerce commission as a result of the war time transportation crisis. The ban became effective at 5 p. m., Chicago war time, today, and will expire July 1, 1946, unless modified or lifted in the meantime.

Immediate reaction of racing officials was varied. Some felt they could carry on without serious consequences while others said the orders would put them out of business.

May Hit Southern Tracks

The situation appeared to be that racing can continue indefinitely at tracks where horses are now quartered but that other tracks, such as those in Florida and in New Orleans, may be hit hard, if not shut down altogether.

The ODT explained that the ruling does not apply to privately owned trucks, making it possible for owners to move horses from track to track in such vehicles. Nor is there any provision prohibiting owners from attaching trailers to their automobiles and hauling their horses. These conditions apparently will enable some shipment of horses, especially between tracks not too far apart, such as in New York state.

It also was explained that horses may be returned to home stables by rail or truck if the owners sign affidavits they will not be raced or exhibited.

Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT director, said these latest prohibitions on the billion dollar sport which was completely shut down for four months, January thru April, will make a considerable volume of equipment available for other transportation purposes.

ODT Explains Action

The ODT had no actual count of the number of cars used in the shipment of racing and show animals, but it recently asked the railroads to report the amount of transportation involved and said it has received enough information to warrant this action.

ODT officials emphasized that the order is not a slap at racing, but merely a result of the mounting transportation emergency in which every type of rolling stock in the country must be utilized.

The ICC order prohibiting rail transportation was issued at the request of Johnson in order to expedite the movement of troops, materials, and civilian supplies needed for the prosecution of the war.

Florida Official Pessimistic

C. F. Baldwin, Florida racing commissioner: "It looks like there will be no racing in Florida again this winter."

Edwin T. Keller, general manager of the Down East Trotting association, said he believed the grand circuit light harness program at Old Orchard Beach, Me., starting next Monday, would be able to run with all the New England entries transported by owners in private trucks.

Oaklawn Park at Hot Springs, Ark., said no horses are quartered there and ODT's ruling apparently squelches hopes for a fall meeting.

Horsemen at New York's metropolitan tracks, preferred to keep mum until ODT's orders were further clarified, feeling that the action was an emergency one and would be lifted at the earliest moment possible.

Racing leaders in California said that horsemen would comply to the letter with the new ruling and that racing could continue there without any loss of prestige.

HARRIDGE SAYS NIGHT RIDES TO BE CURTAILED

Suggests Moving Up Time of Games

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—A reshuffling of playing schedules in order to meet increasing transportation difficulties was agreed upon today by American league club owners.

They met in a separate session preliminary to a joint meeting with the National league tomorrow afternoon. Sen. Chandler, new commissioner, will meet with the owners for the first time.

The National league owners will huddle tomorrow morning for a general discussion before attending the two league conference with Chandler presiding.

Will Harridge, American league president, said that each club in his circuit will work out its own schedule revisions, and that all teams probably will be affected.

Night Schedule to Be Hit

"We'll make whatever changes are necessary in order to fit our schedules in with sleeping car accommodations and other travel conditions," Harridge said.

The office of defense transportation recently reduced the number of Pullman cars available to civilians, making it almost impossible for ball clubs to obtain sufficient sleeping reservations.

Night games scheduled on the tail-end of series may have to be played in the day time, even moved ahead, in some instances a full day in double headers.

Harridge said he thought the best solution was to start games earlier in the day time, whenever a transportation problem is involved.

Sox, Cubs an Example

He pointed to both Chicago clubs, White Sox and Cubs, who begin their games at 1:30 p. m. daily.

"This enables them to catch a train about 4 o'clock and get to Cleveland or Detroit without an overnight ride," he said. "And the Chicago fans have shown they will readjust themselves to the earlier starting time because attendance has held up for both the Sox and Cubs."

The White Sox were represented by Thomas J. Sheehan, Chicago attorney, in the absence of Harry Grabiner, vice president of the club.

Other than the transportation problem today's meeting was merely for a general discussion, Harridge said.

He said that the matter of finances of the commissioner's office was not brought up, nor was the signing of Chandler's seven year $50,000 a year contract.

"Those are things which rightfully must be considered between the commissioner and the 16 club owners who hired him," Harridge said.

Chandler May Sign Today

Chandler is expected to sign his contract tomorrow and will ask that funds of the commissioner's office be turned over to his secretary-treasurer, Walter W. Mulbry.

Harridge was emphatic on two scores: 1—That Chandler's contract will be the same that the late K. M. Landis operated under. 2—That reports about Landis making bad investments with the office's funds were unfounded.

"There never was any secret about the judge's finances," Harridge said. "Every club had a complete audit regularly, and everybody thoroly understood what the judge was doing."

The club owners' first session with Chandler will serve a dual purpose. Some of them never have met the man they hired to boss the big leagues, and, secondly, they'll exchange ideas about the whole baseball future.

One point that Chandler probably will raise is the signing of teen-age players, strenuously objected to by high schools and colleges.

DAILY TROUBLE WINS HANDICAP AT WASHINGTON

Devalue 2d, Fire Dust 3d in Great Western

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN

Daily Trouble, owned by David Straus of Cincinnati, O., and ridden by Freddy Smith, did it again. The 7 year old son of Psychic Bid, which captured one division of the $25,000 Equipoise Mile last Saturday added the $15,000 Great Western handicap to his record yesterday at Washington Park.

The Howard Wells-trained gelding came down the stretch like a champion showing a burst of speed that left the Happy Hour farm's Devalue a neck in back as they flashed past the judges' stand in one of the tightest finishes the historic old race ever had.

Fire Dust Finishes Third

Mrs. Emil Denemark's Fire Dust took third money under a splendid ride by Tony Skoronsky, finishing three lengths in front of the fast closing Take Wing from the stables of Mrs. Clyde Troutt. There were 10 starters seeking $11,500, net value of the event which goes away back to 1884 for its traditions.

Daily Trouble, which was coupled with Walmac farm's Old Kentuck in the betting, paid $4, $2.80, and $2.60. Devalue, piloted by Billy Nichols, returned $10 and $7, and Fire Dust paid $8.40 to show. The winner's time was exceptionally good, 1:50 1/5 for the mile and a furlong route. The track record, held by Misty Isle, is 1:49 3/5.

Good Bid Fades in Stretch

The Straus colorbearer never was far back, getting off third from his No. 1 post position and settling into fourth behind H. E. Jacoby's Good Bid, Fire Dust, and S. D. Sidell's St. Jock as they went into the stretch. Good Bid showed a world of speed up to that point and held a three length advantage most of the way, but lacked the stuff to stick it out as his 50 to 1 odds would indicate.

Devalue lacked early speed but finished with power, altho not quite able to match the winner's late drive. Fire Dust, which held second place most of the way, took a momentary lead in the stretch, then faltered.

Old Kentuck Finishes Seventh

Old Kentuck never had a chance and St. Jock, one of the better backed entrants which finished second to Wells' Equifox in one division of the Equipoise, faded to seventh after running in third place for three quarters of a mile.

The race and its supporting program attracted a crowd of 21,000 spectators who sent the mutuel handle above the million dollar mark for the seventh time during the first 15 days of the 64 day meeting. The day's handle totaled $1,434,682.

Tony Skoronski and Billy Nichols rode the daily double winners, My Star [$8] and Highthorne [$9.40]. Holders of double tickets were rewarded with $51.80.

Sox Open 2d Invasion of East Tonight

BY IRVING VAUGHAN

The White Sox will open their second eastern trip of the season this evening in Washington but, unfortunately will not be as glamorous as when they made their swing thru the Seaboard section in late May. For at least a part of that swing they were the American league's first placers, a joyful state of affairs, at least for Boss James Dykes, that the Yankees broke up.

20 Games in 6 Cities

Things haven't ben so hot lately for the recently high stepping Sox but the immediate future is no time for them to sit down and try to figure out what became of their onetime skill. They are going to be kept too busy for that, the schedule for the trip calling for 20 games spread thru six cities of the league.

Not a little of the recent unpleasantness experienced by the Dyke's boys can be attributed to the very fellows they must face tonight, tomorrow night, and again Saturday afternoon. The Senators when here last week took our delegates for four straight—a turn of events that lifted them from second division oblivion into the role, probably temporary, of would be pennant bidders.

Lee to Try Again

Thornton Lee, the elderly tho able left hander, will try his skill under the Washington lights tonight and is hopeful his pals won't be as backward about scoring runs as when he last tried to pitch them to victory. That was against the tail end Athletics last Friday night.

Jeanne Cline Loses, 1 Up, to Virginia Nilles

Decatur, Ill., July 11 [Special]—Jeanne Cline, defending champion from Bloomington, was eliminated from the Illinois Women's Golf association tournament today in the quarter-final round when she lost a 1 up decision to medalist Virginia Nilles, Park Ridge, at the Decatur Country club.

14 Year Old Loses

Miss Lindsay defeated Dorothy Foster, Springfield, 2 and 1; Miss More eliminated Mrs. Harold Sims, Evanston, second low qualifier, 4 and 3, and Miss Muench beat Tommie Riley, 14 year old Bloomington sophomore, 3 and 1.

Tomorrow morning, Miss Nilles plays Miss Lindsay and Miss More meets Miss Muench.

Off to a bad start when she lost three of the first four holes, Miss Cline cut this margin to one up at the turn and pulled up on even terms by winning the 14th hole. Miss Nilles won the 15th and 16th hole. A sensational tee shot on the 134 yard 17th hole by Miss Cline, the ball stopping four inches from the cup, left Miss Nilles one up and they halved the 18th with par fives.

Play Close Match

The Lindsay-Foster match was close most of the way with the Decatur girl holding a two up margin at the turn and maintaining it going to the 17th hole. Miss Foster's tee shot was 15 feet away from the pin, Miss Lindsay was to the right of the green but she pitched to within four feet of the hole and dropped it for a match-ending half.

Miss More shot the best nine of the tournament when she fired a one-under-par 37 to hold a two-up lead at the turn over Mrs. Sims. She had three birdies going out and won three of the six holes played on the back nine.

Today's results:

Marjorie Lindsay, Decatur, beat Dorothy Foster, Springfield, 3 and 1.

Miss Nilles vs. Miss Lindsay.
Miss More vs. Miss Muench.

BOB HAMILTON, M'SPADEN LOSE IN PGA MEET

encountered imperturable Clarence Dozer of Hartsdale, N. Y. Clarence, who qualified for his first P. G. A. in 1929 at the age of 19, came out of the morning 18 with a two up margin. He was still that many to the good after 27, and eventually added three more holes for a 5 and 4 decision.

Ghezzi Eliminates Dudley

Ky Laffoon of Chicago's St. Andrews club, who led all qualifiers in the Illinois test for this show with a 36 hole score of 136 at Oak Park, gained the second round with a 4 to 3 conquest of Felix Serafin, Pittston, Pa., veteran.

Victor Ghezzi, who received an honorable discharge from the army last week, put out Ed Dudley of Atlantic City, N. J., National P. G. A. president, 7 and 6.

Nelson, the tournament favorite who won the 1940 crown and was runner-up in 1939, 1941, and 1944, was forced to the 33d green by the 43 year old Gene Sarazen of New York, himself a three time holder of the championship, before he could win, 4 and 3.

Nelson Opposes Turnesa

Doser's second round foe will be Tony Penna of Dayton, who had to go the full route before he could win from Wayne Timberman, young Indianapolis pro. Y., a 5 and 3 winner over Harry Nettelbladt of Avon, Conn. Nelson will tee off against Mike Turnesa of White Plains, who, after being 5 up on Johnny Gibson of Westmoreland after 18, saw the Chicagoan reduce that edge to 2 up thru the 27th with a medal of 34. Turnesa then took three of the next five for a 5 and 4 decision.

A WORD TO WIVES CHANGES THEM TO CHIN-UP GIRLS

200 Join to Forget Their War Time Loneliness

A word to the wives was sufficient last evening to create Chicago's first chapter of W. I. V. E. S., a national group composed of the loyal spouses of army and navy men, marines, and merchant mariners.

The message concerning the activities of this organization, whose full name is Wives Insure Victory, Equality and Security, was brought here by Mrs. Naomi Nash of New York, national president.

More than 200 women, their nucleus being the Chicago Service Men's Wives club, and other small clubs of "waiting" women, attended the meeting in the Y. W. C. A., 59 E. Monroe st. At the end of the evening, it was pretty clear they intended to band together for the benefit of "the community and the nation as a whole."

"Chin-Up Pin-Up Girls"

Appealing to these "chin-up, pin-up" girls, Mrs. Nash outlined the four point program of the W. I. V. E. S. Its purpose, she said, is to keep up the morale of the soldiers and sailors, to keep up the morale of their lonesome wives, to help win the war, and to insure a secure post-war world.

"We had war in our fathers' time, and war in our husbands' time, and want peace in our children's time," she asserted. "We decided the only way to maintain peace, was to work and not weep for it. That's how W. I. V. E. S. began."

Mrs. Nash explained that the organization, which numbers some 5,000 members in New York City alone and has chapters in New Jersey, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Alabama, and Georgia, was founded when nine young matrons went to Washington, D. C., to lobby for the federal soldier ballot two years ago. The snowball started down hill fast.

Groups' Activities Detailed

In the 7th war loan drive, W. I. V. E. S. sold 4 million dollars in bonds and purchased a hospital ship. Its members did Red Cross work, rolling bandages, filling prisoner-of-war packages, obtaining funds, knitting, sewing and contributing blood. "Some of our most important activities are educational," she said. "We keep abreast of current legislation and each month conduct a forum. We have psychiatrists address us on bridging our separation from our husbands and rearing our children born in a war era.

"Best of all, it seems to me, W. I. V. E. S has busied our hands and hearts and kept us out of mischief."

POLICE OUTWIT, SEIZE 2 EX-GIs IN 4 HOLDUPS

Two cousins, both discharged paratroopers, were arrested last night as the bandits who held up four stores on the south side within two hours. They identified themselves as William Yant, 21, of 6801 Parnell av., who served on Guadalcanal and New Georgia and wears the Purple Heart, and Fred Trent, 20, of 6334 Norman blvd., whose three years' service was in this country.

Detectives Fred Crowley, Richard Folsom, and Charles Malek, a robbery detail squad, made the arrests by anticipating the possible fifth robbery. They had responded to reports of holdups in cleaning shops at 747 W. 79th st. and 1033 W. 79th st. and the drug store at 9101 Ashland av. when the police radio reported the bandits had just left the drug store at 8258 Halsted st.

Guessing the most likely place for the robbers' next call, the detectives went to the drug store at 81st st. and Vincennes av. There the red roadster, supposedly stolen, which the bandits had been reported using, stood at the curb. Presently the two cousins walked out of the tavern next door. Both were armed, the policemen reported.

POLICE SHOOT 8 TIMES IN CHASE AND SEIZE TRIO

Three men riding in a stolen car were captured by police last night after a wild chase in the Lake View district. Three of eight police bullets crashed thru the fugitives' automobile. No one was wounded.

Those seized were Merlin Bauchhens, 24, of 3318 N. Clark st., who said he was dishonorably discharged from the army; George Lagios, 25, of 904 Belmont av., and Edward Sargis, 19, of 2944 Broadway, said to be an ex-sailor. The car, belonging to Roy McCarthy, 5686 N. Ridge av., was stolen from in front of 3750 Lake Shore dr.

The trio were seen in the car 20 minutes later by Sgt. Peter McGuire and Detectives Lawrence Weir and Charles Daly of the detective bureau, at Deming pl. and Clark st. A three mile chase at high speed followed. Police fired eight shots. The car was curbed in Lake View av. at Arlington pl. Lagios jumped out and fled. While Daly held Sargis and Bauchhens, McGuire and Weir pursued Lagios on foot and caught him in St. James tavern, St. James and Clark st.

Police said that Lagios and Bauchens were placed on probation for a year Tuesday in Town Hall court on a charge of vagrancy.

Boy's Death 'Accidental'; Gun Seller to Face Court

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the fatal shooting of George Langas, 15, of 6526 S. Keeler av., in the home of Walter Jackowiec, 17, of 6531 S. Keeler av. Morry D. Cohos, 39, of 4946 S. Damen av., a temporary game warden, charged with selling a gun to a minor and selling firearms without a permit, will be arraigned Friday.

ALDERMEN BACK PLAN FOR CURB GARBAGE PICKUP

Would Cut Slipshod Work, They Say

Curb collection of garbage was indorsed by several aldermen yesterday at a meeting of a council subcommittee headed by Ald. Grealis [44th]. The meeting was called to consider a report on the city's refuse collection problem "submitted by Lloyd M. Johnson, commissioner of streets and electricity.

The report had contained a suggestion that curb collections might prove advantageous over alley pickups in many locations.

Would Cut Sloppy Work

"I am for curb collections 100 per cent," Ald. Duffy [19th] said. "For one thing it would eliminate slipshod work of collectors. When they drop garbage off their shovels in alleys they're inclined to leave it. Nobody sees them. They couldn't do that in front, where they could be seen by every one in the block."

Duffy added, however, that weekly pickups should be made on regular schedules.

Duffy was backed by Ald. Lindell [9th] and Ald. Wagner [14th]. Wagner said that where curb collections were made in his ward, weekly pickups were the rule. But in alleys garbage was picked up only once in two weeks, he said.

Curb Work Costs Less

Johnson explained that he did not favor a 100 per cent change to curb collections. In many areas alleys are perfectly suitable, he said, and good service is being provided.

Curb collections, he said, would almost insure use of proper containers, would cost less, and would prove an effective rat control measure.

Johnson was instructed by the committee to confer with the law department regarding a proposed new refuse disposal ordinance. The new measure would provide for more effective enforcement, including assignment of a policeman to each ward office.

FIGHTS RETURN TO CELL AFTER 16 YEARS FOR $6

Atty. Martin S. Gerber, representing Alex Mazy, 45, who was released from Stateville penitentiary last year on a writ of habeas corpus after serving 16 years for a $6 robbery, asked the United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday to reconsider its recent decision to permit the state to return Mazy to prison.

Mazy, a former coal miner in Johnston City, Williamson county, was arrested in June, 1927, for robbery, but before he could be tried on the criminal charge he was found insane by a jury and committed to the asylum at Chester. He was released by the asylum superintendent in 1928, tried for robbery, and sentenced to 10 years to life in prison.

Federal Judge William J. Campbell ordered him released May 11, 1944, when Gerber argued that a jury should have been impanelled to decide whether Mazy was sane before he was tried on the robbery charge. The appellate court reversed the habeas corpus order June 28 this year. Mazy still is free.

GOV. GREEN AID SUFFOCATED IN APARTMENT FIRE

Frank Dukes Jr., director of the Chicago office of Gov. Green's commission for veterans' rehabilitation, 176 W. Adams st., was suffocated by flame and smoke in his apartment at 7263 South Shore dr. last night.

Frank Dukes Jr.

He was lying on a daybed when the daybed caught fire, probably, said Acting Chief James Driscoll of the 19th battalion, from a fallen cigaret. Dukes managed to get away from the flaming bed and out to the hall, where he collapsed and died.

A physical infirmity dating back to the 1916 Mexican border trouble apparently contributed to Dukes' death. A cavalryman, he was thrown from his horse and suffered a spinal injury which since had forced him to wear braces. But for this, police said, he might have escaped the fire. His wife, Mabel, was at church at the time.

Dukes was 47, active for the last 25 years in veterans' work, and at his death commander of Midway post, No. 881, of the American Legion.

CAVIAR WORRIES TONY MORE THAN HIS 20 MILLION

Persons knowing William Anthony Furness, 16, is heir to 20 million dollars and who saw him guarding a box of caviar yesterday in the North Western railroad station might have thought the fish roe topped the money.

Tony, as he is called, son of the late Marmaduke Furness, English shipping magnate, and the latter's second wife, Thelma Morgan Converse Furness, stopped here yesterday en route from Los Angeles to England and his 20 million inheritance. But he didn't appear much concerned about that.

Instead, he concentrated on keeping a big, be-ribboned box of caviar upright and unbumped by the crowds as he alighted from the City of Los Angeles. The fish eggs, he explained, were for his aunt, his mother's twin sister, Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt, whom he is to meet in New York City. His mother, who was with him, a slim brunette still possessing the attractiveness that made her a beauty of the '20s, said she had charged him with seeing that the caviar got to New York in good condition.

LOSES HUSBAND FROM BOAT AND SWIMS 7 HOURS

Coast guards from Michigan City, Ind., yesterday searched the lake off Ogden Dunes for the body of Leon Reyniers, 30, of 1358 Jarvis av., Chicago, who was believed to have drowned there Tuesday afternoon.

Leon Reyniers

Reyniers' wife, Margaret, 30, reported they were sailing 14 miles west of Michigan City when her husband accidentally was knocked off their sailboat by the boom and sank despite her efforts to rescue him.

Mrs. Reyniers said she swung the boat back to the spot and jumped into the water in a rescue attempt. The boat drifted away and she swam for seven hours before reaching shore at Burns Ditch, west of Michigan City. She spent Tuesday night with residents there and was taken to the coast guard station yesterday. The boat later drifted ashore at St. Joseph, Mich., 40 miles north of Michigan City.

EXPECT 50 NEW TROLLEYS FOR FALL DELIVERY

Fifty new street cars for the Clark st. route are expected to be ready for operation this fall and the rest of the 200 cars ordered should be delivered before spring, officials of the Chicago Surface lines said yesterday.

The orders have been placed with the St. Louis Car company and the Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company, said to be the only two companies now manufacturing street cars. Should more materials be released by the federal government the delivery schedule could be speeded up, it was said. The new cars will be faster and more comfortable than those now operating on Madison st.

WIFE WHO SHOT HUSBAND GETS ONE YEAR TERM

Too many women in Chicago are shooting their husbands these days, when husbands are scarce, Judge William V. Daly said in Felony court yesterday. He admonished Mrs. Frances Leenheer, 26, of 6945 May st., who was arraigned on the complaint of her husband, George, 26, that she fired three shots at him and hit him once as he was lying on a couch June 12. Judge Daly found Mrs. Leenheer guilty of assault with a deadly weapon and sentenced her to one year in the Bridewell. He continued a motion for probation to July 25 and recommended that both Mr. and Mrs. Leenheer see a psychiatrist.

PULLMAN TICKET REFUNDS READY FOR TRAVELERS

Refunds on sleeping car tickets for points within 450 miles of Chicago may be obtained at any Pennsylvania or New York Central railroad ticket office, the railroads announced yesterday. Both lines will discontinue sleeping car service within the 450 miles radius Sunday and thereafter under an office of defense transportation order.

Both lines said they would add more coaches to trains whenever available to carry all passengers who have to travel in spite of the Pullman ban.

Railroad officials said they expected to be able to accommodate nearly every one who has to travel on business. They asked vacationers to stay at home.

EUROPE ROUTE AIR LINE RULE IS SCRUTINIZED

Powerful Financial Backing Hinted

BY FRANK HUGHES

Congressional investigators are scrutinizing ownership of the three American air transport companies the civil aeronautics board has authorized to fly between the United States and Europe, it was learned yesterday.

The three companies granted seven year licenses for North Atlantic routes last Thursday are Pan American Airways, American Export Airlines, and Transcontinental and Western Air. They will operate from Chicago, New York, Washington, Boston, Philadelphia, and Detroit.

Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] has demanded an explanation of issuance of a certificate to T. W. A., recalling that Brig. Gen. Elliott Roosevelt was feted by the air line's officials at the time of his wedding last November to Faye Emerson, movie actress. Shafer said he was suspicious that "undue influence" may have entered into the award.

Stocks Soar 25 Points

Sen. McCarran [D., Nev.] also called attention to the 25 point rises in market value of stock of T. W. A. and Pan American shortly before the CAB awarded them trans-Atlantic routes.

T. W. A. is the only one of the three companies which does not have intricate financial connections with houses which thru long association among the money marts of Europe are popularly referred to as "international bankers." At one time, however, a segment of T. W. A. stock large enough to constitute control did pass thru the hands of one of these firms.

Among these banking houses are Emanuel & Co., of which Victor Emanuel, a New Deal capitalist and heavy contributor to the first Roosevelt campaign fund, is a partner; Lehman Brothers, founded by the family of Herbert H. Lehman, former New Deal governor of New York and international food and relief administrator, and Kuhn, Loeb & Co.

"Not International Bankers"

Victor Emanuel has maintained that he is not an international banker, having no foreign accounts other than a small one in Canada, and that neither he nor any of his firms controls refugee funds or any other type of foreign fund.

Lehman Brothers has stated that "we are not an international banking firm as we have no foreign branches and have not engaged in international banking operations." It also has said that Herbert H. Lehman, once a partner, has had no connection with the firm in a dozen years.

T. W. A. was laid out by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, and some of its stock at one time was held by General Motors corporation. In November, 1935, a Lehman partner announced purchase of this stock, amounting to a 13 per cent interest, by Lehman Brothers and Atlas corporation, large investing company whose president is Floyd B. Odlum. The block of 81,204 shares, largest held at that time by any stockholder, was said to represent "working control" of the 3,400 mile system.

Important Stake Denied

Lehman Brothers maintains, however, that it sold this stock two years later and that any inference that Lehman has an important stock interest in T. W. A. is erroneous.

About this time Howard Hughes, the Texas oil magnate who had been setting 'round the world air speed records, producing movies, and whose father is credited with putting Jesse Jones into "big business" in Texas, bought into T. W. A. As of last March 2, the Hughes Tool company owned 435,050 shares, or 46.6 per cent of the capital stock of T. W. A. No other stockholder had as much as 5 per cent.

Pan American was born out of the dream of three young men from Yale university, Juan Terry Trippe, brother-in-law of former Secretary of State Stettinius, himself a figure among capitalists; John Hambleton, who died in an air crash in 1929, and Cornelius Vanderbilt [Sonny] Whitney, grandson of Commodore Vanderbilt.

Control Is Tough Question

The three organized the company as Aviation Corporation of the Americas in 1926, late changing the name. In February, 1942, Whitney took a commission in the army air forces, resigned from the Pan American board, and sold his 88,532 shares of capital stock to Lehman Brothers. The firm subsequently resold it.

A battalion of corporation lawyers probably could not prove where control of Pan American lies today, but one of the best informed men in Wall st. said recently that Aviation corporation probably is the biggest factor in both Pan Ameri-

Settlement of 5 Strikes Trims Idle to 45,000

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS]

Settlement of five major strikes trimmed the nation's total of idle in labor disputes to 45,000 yesterday.

One thousand CIO dairy workers voted to resume work in Detroit. The strike of 1,000 CIO Oil and Gas Workers in the east was settled temporarily. In New Brunswick, N. J., 2,500 CIO unionists voted to end a long strike that had 5,400 others out in sympathy. The 1,200 idle Dodge Chicago plant employes resumed work on B-29s, and 3,000 Camden, N. J., welders of the New York Shipbuilding corporation went back on the job.

WLB Hearing Tomorrow

The New Brunswick strikes involving 7,900 United Automobile Workers in plants of the Mack Manufacturing company and affiliates were expected to end after 2,500 strikers at the New Brunswick Mack plant voted to resume work. The war labor board will conduct a hearing tomorrow on the layoff seniority issue which has shut the plants since June 25.

Striking CIO United Dairy Workers voted to return to work immediately after cutting off milk supplies of 500,000 customers more than two days. The strike, at two creameries, arose over employment of union cashiers.

International representatives of the CIO Oil and Gas Workers union announced a temporary end to a strike tying up operations of the United Fuel Gas company in six eastern states. The return of the strikers hinged on assurance that the war labor board would conduct a hearing next week on wage increase issues.

Firestone Strike Largest

Other stoppages of Detroit were at four war plants, with 6,400 CIO United Automobile Workers off their jobs, and at 12 lumber yards where 700 AFL unionists were idle.

Disputes involving United Mine Workers at five mines in Pennsylvania and Ohio continued.

The country's largest single strike was the 11 day walkout by 16,500 CIO United Rubber Workers at the Firestone Tire and Rubber company in Akron, O.

JUDGE DECIDES DU PONT GROUP HAD MONOPOLY

New York, July 11 (AP)—Federal Judge Simon H. Rifkind ruled today that E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., National Lead company, and Titan Company, Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the National Lead, formed a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade.

In an opinion in the government's anti-trust suit charging monopoly in the titanium industry, he wrote: "Whether the form of association they created be called a cartel, an 'international cartel, a patent pool, or a 'technical and commercial operation' is of little consequence. It is a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade; and the restraint is unreasonable."

Egg Contract Declines Run to ½ Cent a Dozen

Refrigerator shell egg futures declined again yesterday in light trading on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The November delivery fell ½ cent to 45 cents a dozen.

CLOTHING PRICE RISE VIEWED AS SERIOUS THREAT OF INFLATION

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—James F. Brownlee, OPA deputy administrator, said today that unless the rise in clothing prices is halted and reversed "we shall not be able to hold the line."

Clothing items are the only important section of the cost of living index "which has had a continued, steady rise," Brownlee wrote Sen. Young [R., N. D.]. "That rise has amounted to more than 12 per cent in 22 months. If the trend is not halted the vicious spiral of increasing prices will lead us swiftly and surely to inflation."

Many low and medium priced items no longer are available, he said, making the actual cost to consumers higher than indicated by the index.

Army Cancels Contract for Bullet Cores

The latest in a series of reductions in the ammunition production program in the Chicago area was reported yesterday by the Chicago ordnance district with the cancellation of the remaining $3,900,000 of a contract with Edison General Electric Appliance company.

The terminated cost-plus-fixed-fee type contract was for production of .50 caliber machine gun bullet cores by the ordnance division of the company in its Cicero plant at 1531 S. 54th av.

Releases 1,200 Workers

Production, which will end July 31, will result in the release of approximately 1,200 workers in the next three weeks, R. W. Turnbull, Edison General Electric president, said. The termination will not affect war work in the company's two other plants in the Chicago area.

Col. John Slezak, chief of the ordnance district, said the termination reflected a reduced demand for small arms ammunition following the end of the war of Europe.

First Output in July, 1942

The plant turned out its first machine gun bullet cores in July, 1942, and since that time has produced approximately 1 billion 700 million cores of the armor piercing and incendiary types, valued at between 30 and 40 million dollars.

United States employment service offices in Chicago have taken steps to channel workers being released into other vital war jobs, for which the war man power commission said there is a large need. Chicago continues to be one of the most critical labor areas in the country, it said.

DISCLOSES VAST SOVIET PLAN FOR AUTO INDUSTRY

MOSCOW, July 11 (AP)—The newspaper Pravda today announced that the Soviet Union was preparing to start an ambitious program of automobile manufacture under which new factories would be erected, old factories rebuilt, and every branch of the industry expanded on a broad scale.

New plants will be opened in Dnepropetrovsk, Kutais, Ulyanovsk, and other cities, the announcement said. The big Stalin plant in Moscow is turning out cars and trucks which were described as the "last word" in automotive construction.

Such expansion would indicate that cars may be on their way to the Soviet people for private use. Very few individuals now own cars.

More Large Financing Is Put on Market

Investment bankers yesterday offered approximately 74 million dollars of bonds, debentures, and stocks. At least another 40 million dollars of securities are scheduled for sale today.

A banking group headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co. offered 39 million dollars of Texas and Pacific Railway company 3⅞ per cent bonds of 1985 at 100.50. The syndicate won the issue on a bid of 98.6399.

Fifteen million dollars of Household Finance corporation 2¾ per cent sinking fund debentures of 1970 were marketed at 100¾ and accrued interest by Lee Higginson corporation and associated underwriters. Net proceeds will be used to reduce short term notes payable to banks.

Markets Mortgage Bonds

Mead corporation, manufacturer of paper and paper products, reported the sale of 8 million dollars of an authorized issue of 10 millions of 3¼ per cent first mortgage bonds to four unnamed life insurance companies. Six million dollars will be used to retire a like amount of 3¼ per cent bonds, and 2 million will be added to working capital.

An underwriting group headed by Dillon, Read & Co. sold 46,464 shares of Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company $100 par $3.50 preferred stock at $100 a share. The shares are the remainder of a total issue of 125,000 shares which were not exchanged for old $4.25 preferred under an offer which expired Tuesday.

Mellon Securities corporation offered three issues of Standard Oil common stocks, including 50,000 shares of Socony-Vacuum at $16, 29,000 shares of Standard Oil company [Indiana] at $37.87½, and 54,787 shares of Standard Oil [New Jersey] at $62.12½. Books on the first two issues have been closed.

Offers Baking Company Issue

Sixteen and one-half million dollars of Continental Baking company 20 year 3 per cent debentures will be offered today by a banking group headed by Wertheim & Co. and Lehman Brothers. The price is 102 and accrued interest from July 1.

Other offerings scheduled today include 140,000 shares of Panhandle Eastern Pipe Line company $100 par 4 per cent cumulative preferred stock at $104 a share and accrued dividends and 13 million dollars of debentures and 100,000 shares of no par $4.50 cumulative preferred stock of the Champion Paper and Fibre company. The debentures are priced at 102½ per cent, the preferred at $105.

Eversharp, Inc., Chicago, has filed a registration with the securities and exchange commission covering 32,500 shares at $1 par common stock offered by Martin L. Strauss II., president, and the Advance corporation. Initial public offering price will be based on the last selling price on the New York Curb exchange prior to the release of the stock.

OMAHA WITNESS ASSAILS UTILITY PROPERTY SALE

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—William Ritchie, Omaha attorney, told a house committee today that the sale of the Nebraska Power company to the Omaha Electric Committee, Inc., was a "dirty mess."

He contended the price of the property, sold by the American Power and Light company, was millions of dollars too high, and that utility rates which should be lowered will be kept up for years. He said the purchase price "will aggregate nearly 46 million dollars when the deal is closed."

Chairman Boren [D., Okla.] of a house interstate commerce subcommittee, investigating the sale, said the Nebraska Power company had been appraised at $27,750,000 by the federal power commission and asked the witness, "Why the difference?"

"The public is paying the difference," Ritchie replied.

Trane Company Declares Extra Dividend of 5 Cents

Trane company, manufacturer of heating and air conditioning equipment, yesterday declared an extra dividend of 5 cents a share with a disbursement of 25 cents for the third quarter, compared with 20 cents each in the first two quarters of this year.

PRICES OF RYE BOUND AGAIN; CORN IS HIGHER

Wheat Turns Easy on Hedging Sales

Rye futures prices bounded yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade to extend the recovery of Tuesday's market from a week's decline. July climbed 4¾ cents a bushel at one time and closed 1⅞ higher in light trading. Deferred deliveries of rye rose 3 cents, but reacted on profit taking and finished ¼ cent higher.

The government's forecast of a smaller corn crop this year caused buying which sent all corn futures to the ceiling level, with the market unchanged to 1 cent lower. Hedging sales were an adverse factor in late trading. Oats gained ¾ to 1¼ and barely 1⅛ to 1⅜.

Crop Forecasts Aid Buying

The rise of most grain prices was attributed chiefly to the crop forecasts which were considered bullish. The rye advance was made thru buying that was mostly short covering.

Reports that Secretary of Agriculture Anderson had asked the war production board to ban the use of grain for beverage alcohol, effective Aug. 1, and that the government may allocate supplies of rye to assure equitable distribution tended to temper bullish sentiment.

A belief that the July 1 department of agriculture estimate of the corn crop may be too low was expressed by some brokers. C. M. Galvin, crop expert, said the size of the harvest would be determined largely by coming weather conditions. The corn belt has an ample supply of moisture and hot forcing weather to promote rapid growth would improve the current outlook, he said.

CCC Buys for Export

In the southwest the Commodity Credit corporation was taking hard winter wheat from Texas and Oklahoma for shipment to gulf ports in the army export program and was buying spring wheat at ceiling prices in the northwest for the same agency.

With a short corn crop in prospect there was good commission house demand for oats and barley futures. Large shipping sales of cash oats were made to the south and southeastern states, the scarcity of cash corn forcing feed interests to buy substitutes.

PAW CUTS PLANE GASOLINE ORDER, BOOSTS FUEL OIL

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—A reduction in the aviation gasoline program to step up production of other products, principally diesel fuel oil, was announced today by the petroleum administration for war. No change in civilian allotments was involved.

PAW said changes in the program reflect the increasing importance of fuel oil for the war in the Pacific and call for the elimination of a "strategic reserve" of several million barrels of 100 octane gasoline. Day to day demands of the Pacific war can be met without the strategic reserve, it said.

Treasury's Cash Balance Tops 25 Billion First Time

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—For the first time in history, the cash balance of the treasury is above 25 billion dollars. The daily treasury statement showed that on July 9 the balance was $25,010,512,191. The high figure was caused by the 7th war loan drive. A month ago the balance was less than 10 billions.

Northwestern U. Announces Faculty Home Building Plans

Northwestern university yesterday announced a million dollar home development for faculty members at Lake av. and Harms rd., Wilmette, adjacent to the university golf course. Harry L. Wells, vice president and business manager, said 75 residences will be erected and sold at prices ranging from $11,750 to $15,000.

Harry L. Wells

The homes will be built as soon after the war as priorities permit. Purchasers will be permitted to make interior suggestions provided these do not conflict with exterior plans and designs already adopted.

Land Will be Leased

Lots will be one-fourth to one-third acre each. They will not be sold, but will be leased to the residence buyer at rentals of $105 to $150 annually. Leases will be for 25 years, with options to the buyer to renew for two additional periods of 20 years each at the same rental.

Title will be held by Northwestern university in order to maintain the character of the area. The university bought the golf course, formerly known as the Wilmette Country club, last fall.

Houses will be sold by the university, subject to federal and state regulations, on a down payment of 20 per cent or more of the established sale price. The university will take a mortgage for the remainder, with moderate monthly amortization payments.

Order of Availability Listed

A brochure giving details of the new development said the homes will be made available first to members of the university faculty and staff, second to trustees, alumni, and associations, and third to selected friends of the university. All applications for purchase must be acceptable to the board of trustees investment committee. The university will consider repurchase of the houses at a mutually satisfactory price.

Stocks Lower from Neglect; Selling Light

New York, July 11 (AP)—Stocks declined from neglect rather than real selling pressure today as most leaders edged lower. Light offerings cropped up after three successive days of recovery.

British doubts regarding outcome of the recent election—results are due about July 26—were viewed as a bit bearish. Industrials have been slipping on the London exchange. Expectation of further developments on speculation control, together with widespread labor disputes, also led to trimming of accounts.

Prices began their retreat after a fairly steady opening. Rails led the move, but dealings slowed appreciably. Transfers of 810,000 shares compared with 940,000 yesterday and were the second smallest for a full day in three months.

The 4 for 1 stock split proposal for Sears, Roebuck apparently had been discounted, and the issue reacted ¾ to 120¼.

BOND MARKET QUIET

New York, July 11 (AP)—Preoccupation of investors with a group of new stock and bond offerings and several secondary distributions was a restraining influence on the bond market today. Prices drifted irregularly lower on extremely small volume.

People and Events

W. J. Ramm, vice president of the First National bank of Danville, Ill., has been named chairman of a special committee of the Illinois Bankers association to organize an instalment lending division, Floyd M. Condit, president of the association, announced yesterday. Bartholomew O'Toole, president of Pullman Trust and Savings bank, Chicago, is vice chairman. The committee will organize in Chicago the second week in September and then conduct a study of instalment lending procedures of commercial banks.

Paul A. Mertz, Chicago, has been named field director for 21 states of the "training within industry" branch of the war man power commission. He will have headquarters in Chicago.

The luncheon of the veterans' placement committee of the National Association of Personnel Directors, which was to have been held today, has been postponed to July 24.

H. C. Bonfig, vice president in charge of household radio for Zenith Radio corporation, has appointed A. V. Duke assistant vice president of the household radio division.

CHICAGO LABOR NEEDS HOLD AT CRITICAL LEVEL

369 Firms Receive Top Priorities

The demand for workers in critical war industries in Chicago remains as large as ever despite the fact that overall labor needs in the area have decreased 16 per cent below the level forecast for this period last March, Lester Brown, Chicago area war man power commission director said yesterday.

Lester Brown

As of last Monday, the latest date for which figures were available, top priorities were granted to 369 companies in the critical production category for a total of 22,152 workers compared with 22,370 as of June 29.

Estimate Needs at 55,900

"Based on reports of major plants in the area, there is an estimated current overall demand for approximately 55,900 workers," Brown said. "This is a decrease of 16 per cent from the 66,500 demand forecast for this period from March reports of the same plants."

Brown said the drop in overall

Post-War Market Wide, Survey Shows

(This is the fifth of a series of articles on discharged veterans' opportunities for employment and for starting their own businesses.)

The estimated consumer demand in Chicago and surrounding areas for household appliances and radios appears to indicate a profitable opportunity for veterans considering opening a retail outlet offering such goods.

A thoro survey discloses that persons in this territory wish to buy approximately 160 million dollars worth of washing machines, mechanical refrigerators, stoves, ironers, vacuum cleaners, radios, toasters, waffle irons, and other appliances the first year after the war.

Divided among the estimated 1,200 area dealers now in business, this amounts to an average of approximately $133,000 each. If the number of outlets were to increase to 2,000 the individual share would amount to $80,000.

$10,000 Minimum Advised

Opening a home appliance and radio store requires an estimated minimum capital investment of about $10,000, trade sources say. This is supposed to cover inventory, fixtures, and working capital. If accounts receivable in a substantial amount are carried, more capital may be needed.

Veterans who do not have this amount of capital or do not wish to invest this amount immediately are advised to take jobs as salesmen in this line for a year or start a business emphasizing servicing rather than sales.

A year of selling will provide the veteran who may be a newcomer to the business field with experience and training he will need, since he will be competing in many cases with established merchants who have acquired sales techniques which can be learned only in actual business practice.

Repair Service an Asset

Efficient and prompt repair service is a valuable asset neglected by certain merchants interested only in sales. The value of servicing facilities was clearly demonstrated the last several years. When the manufacture of consumer durables was stopped for war production, servicing was one of the few things these dealers could offer. It has paid off well.

In choosing a site for his store, the veteran is advised to locate in his home community and a reasonable distance from a competing dealer. Across the street competition often leads to vindictive and injurious business practices.

With prices expected to be held to 1942 or pre-war levels and manufacturing costs up, dealers are being warned that retail margins will be smaller than formerly.

CHICAGO LABOR NEEDS HOLD AT CRITICAL LEVEL

Grant Top Priorities to 369 Firms

demand was a result of the following factors:

1. Labor demand anticipated by the aircraft industry was markedly cut when V-E day reduced the need for certain types of aircraft. This, however, was a cut in expected demands, and not an actual layoff of workers.

2. A reduction in future demands, and in actual working force, in the radio-radar industry.

Arms Output Cutback

3. Large cutbacks in plants producing heavy combat and motor vehicles for use in the European theater.

4. Reductions [both "paper cuts" and layoffs] in the small arms and medium caliber ammunition industry after V-E day.

5. Some cuts and layoffs in the ordnance equipment industry [gun mounts, anti-aircraft, etc.] after V-E day.

Brown said that in the critical war industries there has been a shift of emphasis in production. Many Chicago plants have been granted new contracts and asked to increase schedules at the same time plants producing other types of war equipment have received production cuts or have shut down completely.

Cutbacks Taper Off

"Cutbacks are continuing, but on a smaller scale than in the early days after V-E day, when the first major production adjustments were made as the country turned from a two front to a one front war," he said. "Present cutbacks are fewer in number and result in fewer layoffs."

Brown said the man power supply has not been affected much by the total of returning veterans or by workers returning to Chicago from other parts of the country. Both these sources of man power are small compared to the total Chicago working force.

Producers of supplies urgently needed for the Pacific war whose needs for workers are larger than before V-E day include manufacturers of packaging for overseas shipments, steel and paper containers, fungus and waterproofing equipment, processing perishable foods, steel strapping, navy rockets, and aircraft.

CROWLEY BACKS EXPORT-IMPORT BANK FUND HIKE

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—Leo T. Crowley, chairman of the Export-Import bank today urged increasing capitalization of the government owned bank from 700 million dollars to 3½ billion to boost post-war trade and aid the economies of other nations.

"The United States has before it an unusually favorable opportunity to maintain its foreign trade at high levels, ease the problems of reconversion, and assist in the reconstruction and further development of the economies of foreign countries," he told the house banking committee. Crowley supported legislation offered by Chairman Spence [D., Ky.] which is expected to be put thru congress before a summer recess.

Crowley said the bank, which has operated at a profit for several years, would provide needed financing for other nations to purchase American goods until the proposed Bretton Woods international bank began to function.

SUPPLY OF HOGS SLUMPS; PRICES FIRM AT CEILING

Only 11,000 hogs arrived, a 55 per cent drop from a year ago and 58 per cent fewer than two years ago. Twenty leading markets in the first half of this week received 173,000 hogs, 207,000 fewer than a year ago.

The cattle supply was average for a Wednesday at 12,000 head, but trading dragged on a steady to 25 cents lower basis in many kinds. The $18 per 100 pounds steer top, the ceiling, equaled the 1945 peak but other kinds selling at $15.50 to $17.50 showed losses running to 25 cents.

Lambs and sheep arrived in fewer numbers, but prices remained mostly steady, with $16.35 the top.

LANE BRYANT'S JUNE, 6 MONTH SALES INCREASE

Lane Bryant yesterday reported June sales were $3,157,201, an 8.6 per cent increase over a year ago. Sales for the first six months totaled $19,025,369, a gain of 9.2 per cent.

June sales of S. S. Kresge company were $18,010,826 an increase of 12 per cent, and in the six months totaled $100,278,618, a 5½ per cent rise.

COMMONWEALTH EDISON

Please explain the deduction of $11,100,000 from Commonwealth Edison company's 1944 earnings in the form of "charges equivalent to federal tax savings." What is the dividend yield on its stock?—K. N.

The deduction was made so that net income would be neither increased nor decreased by special factors which cut the federal tax liability. The tax saving last year was $11,100,000, of which $6,596,000 resulted from nonrecurring transactions in connection with the refinancing of the company's funded debt. The remainder was the result of special write-offs of the cost of war facilities under the five year amortization plan.

This accelerated amortization is allowed by the government for determining income and excess profits taxes. In its reports to stockholders Commonwealth Edison deducts only normal depreciation and eliminates from its income account the tax saving due to the excess of the amortization allowed over regular depreciation charges.

The amortization tax saving of $4,504,000 last year was applied to write down intangible assets. The saving from refinancing was used to reduce unamortized bond discount and expense.

At recent prices for the stock the yield from the $1.40 dividend is about 4.44 per cent. Earnings in 1944 were $1.78 a share on the 12,726,988 shares. Net income was $22,651,796 compared with $25,414,590 in 1939 when taxes were lower. The growth possibilities of this utility, serving Chicago with electricity and suburban and other northern Illinois areas with electricity and gas, are considered exceptional.

REPORT TIGHT MATERIAL RULE MAY END OCT. 1

Washington, D. C., July 11 (AP)—The possibility developed today that the WPB may discard its complex system of materials control by Oct. 1.

If adopted, the proposal would place American industry under a simple priority system three months ahead of the date originally set. The remaining priority rules would be designed to protect war production almost exclusively.

Officials familiar with an internal WPB contest on the issue said the steel division was advocating early scrapping of the controled materials plan, under which steel, copper, and aluminum are allotted to war and essential civilian users.

Chairman Krug, tho leaning toward the proposal, reportedly has notified the steel industry it must provide greater assurances that essential metal needs will be met before he will approve the plan. The department of agriculture and other agencies have resisted early relaxation of controls.

PRESS WIRELESS HAS CUT RATES, NORTON ASSERTS

New York, July 11 [Special]—Commenting on a federal comunications commission order for an investigation of Press Wireless, Inc., rates and charges, A. Warren Norton, president of Press Wireless, today said the company has consistently reduced rates without initiation from the commission.

Negotiations have been under way to effect rate reductions on certain existing circuits, he said. The realization of these reductions depends only on the consent of the foreign administrations who participate in the rates.

Beech, Cessna Aircraft Drop Merger Proposal

New York, July 11 (AP)—Beech Aircraft corporation and Cessna Aircraft company announced today that negotiations for a proposed merger had been discontinued. Complications in war production operations of the companies made any merger impractical at this time, it was said.

C. & E. I. Advances Time of Chicago-St. Louis Trains

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad has rearranged its schedules, effective July 15, so its train to St. Louis, which leaves Chicago at 11:40 p. m., will depart at 6 p. m. and arrive in St. Louis at 11:40 p. m. instead of 7:14 a. m. North bound the late train will leave St. Louis at 6:10 p. m. instead of 11:59 p. m. and arrive in Chicago at 11:45 p. m. instead of 7:05 a. m. H. R. Sampson, passenger traffic manager, said the purpose is to make travel without Pullmans more convenient for the public.

Paper Company Plans Big Post-War Expansion

The Minnesota and Ontario Paper company has completed plans for a 6 million dollar remodeling and expansion program to be undertaken as soon as government regulations permit and labor and materials become available, Donald D. Davis, president, said yesterday.

A WORLD-WIDE U.S. WIRE SETUP IS ADVOCATED

Reports It Would Help Make Press Free

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., July 11—A unified world-wide American communications system was advocated in a statement today by Sen. McFarland [D., Ariz.], chairman of a senate interstate commerce subcommittee which is studying post-war communications policies.

It was learned that McFarland's statement was issued without his consulting other members of the senate interstate commerce committee, which is sharply divided on the question of whether a communications monopoly should be established or free competition in overseas communications be permitted.

McFarland recently returned from a trip to Europe with a group of interstate commerce committee members, headed by Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.], which studied army and navy communications systems overseas.

"I feel," McFarland stated, "that our survey trip has implemented my earlier view that there can be no adequate freedom of news in the world without an effectively unified American communications system . . . operating all over the world."

McFarland asserted he had been told by military authorities, including former employes of American communications companies, and American business men in Europe and the near east that an integrated American system for commercial communications was needed if this country is to compete successfully in world trade.

"It is clear to me," McFarland said, "that if a unified world-wide American communications system cannot be speedily established, other steps will have to be taken. It has been suggested, for example, that the army and navy systems, now virtually world girdling and unquestionably the finest in the world, could be used at least temporarily as a basis for a world-wide system."

The suggestion of a government-owned communications monopoly, even on a temporary basis, goes beyond even the plans of James B. Fly, former federal communications chairman, who advocated a merger of existing companies with part ownership by the federal government.

Opponents of Fly's plan, which had the support of high army and navy officials, argued that it carried the threat of outright government ownership in the future and that by stifling competition it would retard technical advances.

When McFarland's subcommittee began its study of post-war communications policy last winter, he announced he had an open mind on the monopoly question, altho he was the author of federal legislation merging the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.
